PLAGUE OF MONKEYS.

The Question of Their Massacre a Serious One for India.

The monkey slaughter question has, it appears, assumed a serious aspect excitement among orthodox Hindus far as the news has travelled. We seriously warn the authorities against this injudicious proposal of the Puri city fathers, lest the question should lead to some serious consequences. The religious feelings of orthodox Hindus, who form the majority in India, cannot be trifled with in this matter, and the lessons of the Benares riots should not be thrown away. We are against this slaughter more for the maintenance of peace and order than for anything else. The massacre of the quadrumana itself is a far uglier nuisance than all the mischief committed by monkeys put together. It may be, however, that these so-called ancestors of humanity are giving a good deal of trouble at Puri; but where do they not? Most of the principal seats of Hindu pilgrimage are literally colonixed by these restless brutes, but have they not been tolerated from time immemorial, and has there ever been such a crusade against them? If it is so difficult to put up with any longer at Puri, cannot they be banished from the town rather than killed?

There are villages at Bengal where these wicked creatures sometimes do considerable harm to villagers, who, by the way, instead of having them swept out of existence catch the lead- their will verbally if they so desired, comparatively respectable classes have help me. er of the party, with a process known to every child in Bengal, and, painting his face hideously, hold a mirror be- Act, except in the case mentioned startled me by demanding an alms. advised me to try them, and I did so. fore his eyes—the village chaps made above. It would be far better to have these mischief makers deported to some distant parts than endangering public peace by shocking the religious feelings of the pilgrams by such an, in their view, inhuman action. As many as 15 out of 21 Pundits consulted at Puri are adverse to slaughter, and the remaining six dwindle down to a microscopic minority against the mass of Pundit opinion supporting orthodoxy in this country. "JACK" AND HIS WILL.

A Special Act of the British l'arliament Arranges That Matter.

Jack has the proud distinction of having had an Act of Parliament passed just now. It has caused considerable for the express purpose of deciding the way in which he must make his will,so not only in Orissa and Bengal, but as that while all other Britons are lumped together in this matter under the Wills Act for 1838, sailors' testamentary documents are made under the Naval Wills Act of 1866. The most important proviso of this Act is that all wills made by sailors or marines, must be witnessed and attested by the chaplain or some other officer if they are actually made on board ship, and this is somewhat curious.

If a sailor likes to make his will on shore anyone can witness it for him, but on board ship the case is different. Needless to say they almost all to a man choose the latter course, as they know that things will be straighter for bearing an officer's signature. If, however, supposing that the vessel was in action and a man was to be struck down who had not previously made a will, if he had to do so before he died, even if it were not attested by an ofto act on the merits of the case and

The majority of the citizens agreed that the case was not a remarkable one for Dodd's Kidney Pills, which, they said, cure every case of Kidney Disease for which they are used. Some few persons, however, doubted the accuracy of the report.

To settle the question, once for all, we interviewed Mr. Dean, and asked him if the press reports were true. "Certainly they are true," said he "The only fault they have is that they are not strong enough.
