-- The British House of Commons has made a grant of $50,000 to Lord Kitchever of Khartown for recent distinguished services.

.... Court of the Province of Ontario received the honor of Knighthood as a Queen's Birthday honor. All agree to his worthiness.

-Last week the Grand Lodge of British America met in Toronto, and the reports showed a successful year in the matter of growth. The Hon. N. Clark Wallace is again elected Grand Master, and made ringing speeches in the usual loyal and patriotic view. The city tendered the Grand Lodge a banquet on Thursday night. We notice amongst other constructive legislation, that membership in future is to be denied to all persons engaged in the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor.

-Rev. B. F. Austin, formerly Printhodist ministry by the London Conference last week for holding heretical opinions. The Rev. gentleman seems to have expected it, and firmly holds to the alleged heresy. The most glaring charge, which is fully admitted, is that he believes in clairvoyance, spiritualism, and such like new and fantastic, and sometimes criminal practices.

-The Peace Conference is really of it but discussion on mediation, arbitration, and the rules of civilized warfare, much good will be done, and the Czar should be thankful. The hearty way in which proposals are being made by the more enlightened nations must be an education in itself to the others. If these proposals result in the establishment of an international Court of Arbitration, we are approaching the time spoken of by Tennyson in Locksley Hall:

CORRUPTION IN ELECTIONS

The Globe of Friday last in an article under the above caption has some very pertinent remarks, suggested by a correspondent writing on the subject so painfully brought before the public by recent election trials. The Globe Mr Malcolm Cameron of this village agrees with him that voiding an election is an inadequate remedy and the fire must have been from the stove points out that an election trial is a pri- pipes. This is a loss to Mr. Cameryate and not a public proceeding petitioner in most cases being satisfied when he ousts his opponent not being prepared to do further ferreting at his own expense. We quote in full the concluding paragraphs whose ring for purity of election should sound the Boyle of this place. party they may belong. It is the interest not of purists or Pharisees but of the whole body of respectable people who want to see elections fairly conducted and decided on the merits of men and measures. But of this nine-tenths, using that figure as a matter of convenier.ce, a large number are keen politicians, who, while they would scorn to give or receive a bribe, are somewhat disposed to condone corruption on their own side. They are so busily engaged -Chancellor Boyd, of the High in fighting one another that they do not perceive that they are really being governed by the corrupt and corrupting tenth. Politics are continually exhibiting phenomenon of the tail wagging the dog. The corrupt margin will continue to rule just so long as men regard the success of their own party as more important than fair elections. It will come to an end just as soon as the ninetenths unite and declare that they will no longer be governed by the tenth, This is a matter on which a Liberal has no right to preach to a Conservative nor a Conservative to a Liberal nor any man to his neighbor, because hardly any man in the community is free from reproach of allowing government to degenerate into a farce through electoral corruption. For what a farce it is to talk of the country being ruled by the people, when the votes of one-half of the people neutralize those of the other half and the question is decided by a minority not only insignificant in public spirit, cipal of Alma Ladies' College, St. but also insignificant in numbers, Thomas, was deposed from the Me- a minority which despises the arguments of this place. of the platform and the press, and there gards these as useful only for keeping away to the General Assembly the the honest yoters within the party ring

The many are ruled by the few. but it is not the uninstructed many ruled by the few wise, but the great body of honest and intelligent people ruled making progress and if nothing comes by the few who are willing to give and take bribes. Laws may be devised to make the punishment for these offences more and more stringent, but at root the the remedy lies in the resumption of power by the people, in the nine-tenths coming together and saying that whateyer else may be the result of their conflicts they will no longer be ruled by the Sunday last. corrupting and cerrupted tenth. We do not quite approve of our correspondent's suggestion that South Ontario should be disfranchised. The people of South Ontario are probably very much like those of any other constituency in Ontario. There is no doubt a small purchasable element everywhere, and its power depends largely on the keenness and closeness of the contest. Whenever the electors choose to say that a fair election is more important than the success of either party they have the remedy in their own hands."
