

An Accident at the Exhibition Grounds Which Nearly Proved Fatal to a Toronto Lady.

Mrs. John Mannell, 76 Gerrard street west, Toronto, is a lady who is very widely known and most highly respected by a large circle of friends and neighbors. She is known far and wide for her kindly solicitude and readiness to render all assistance in her power to all who need it, especially in cases of sickness. Mr. Mannell is a well-known and prosperous business man, and the cozy residence is the home of a family of whom any parents might well be proud. Mrs. Mannell, during her earlier years, was unusually strong, though of slender and graceful figure, and household duties that prove most exhausting to the generality of women were easy to her. It was not till that noticeable change through which every woman must pass—the change of life—was approaching, that her troubles began.

Last fall, while attending the fireworks at the Industrial Exhibition, with her husband, Mrs. Mannell met with an accident that hastened the crisis. While making her way to her seat near the front of the grand stand, she was obliged by her husband to step from her seat in order to reach the desired point. As she pressed forward the heel of her boot caught on the edge of one of the benches, and she fell forward, striking heavily against the seat in front. The shock to her system was severe, but did not seem serious, till a few days later, when she began to suffer from marked nervousness. Her troubles appeared also, and the spells of throbbing and palpitation were at times unbearable. Her breath grew short and labored, and she fell rapidly in flesh and strength. Frightful nervous headaches, which were agonizing during the daytime, and at night sleep was impossible. Night after night she was obliged to walk the floor of her room, wearily waiting for day. The muscles of her limbs grew hard, tense and painful, and to walk caused severe pain. She was compelled to give up her household work and before long her neighbors had given up all expectation of ever seeing her again. Her family physician did all in his power for her, but to no benefit resulted. Various kinds of patent medicines were used, but without any material change. Just when hope seemed dead, and all prospects of recovery appeared to

CHICAGO'S KRAUT FACTORY.

Odorous Establishment Where It is Prepared.

TRAMPING IT INTO BARRELS.

Out in Ashland avenue, within sight of the gas houses, stands a long, low, ramshackle building that might be taken for a cowshed or an abandoned coal yard—anything, in fact, but what it really is, a manufacturing establishment. At one side is a large cabbage garden, where thousands of heads of that old-fashioned vegetable hold themselves up stiffly in unbroken rows. To the north is a large pasture, where a number of cows browse industriously at the close grass or gaze curiously out of their soft eyes at the passerby, and chickens roll over and over in the soft dirt by the sidewalk. It is a small piece of the country transplanted to Chicago, even to the yellow dog that stands guard beside the gate and barks at everybody who enters.

AN OVERPOWERING SMELL.

The smell of a block away is indescribable. It might be the stock yards or the Chicago River, or a combination of the two, but a nearer approach decides the matter, for visions of Germany beam into view, and cabbage is the only thing that finds a place in the mind—or the nostrils. To enter the premises it is necessary first to pass the yellow dog before mentioned. He barks vociferously and sniffs about your clothes, and if he decides you are all right you may pass on, otherwise the visitor must stand outside on the sidewalk until help comes. Entering the shed where the sauerkraut is manufactured, the stranger finds himself surrounded on all sides by immense casks, each holding 125 barrels of kraut. A platform is built eight feet above the floor around three sides of the shed, and all the machinery is located above. Ascending by means of a short ladder the visitor gazes upon a busy scene. Seven women are trimming the loose outside leaves from the cabbages as fast as they can handle them. Two boys are passing the trimmed heads to four other boys who are feeding the cutting machine. Outside an old white horse is piddling wearily around and around, day after day, furnishing the power that moves the knives, large circular affairs set close together on a round piece of iron. The thought comes involuntarily to the mind that the poor horse must eventually become a victim of parents on account of this dreary treadmill work. The cabbage falls as it is cut into shreds into a large box set on a truck. As soon as this is filled it is taken away to be emptied into one of the casks and another one is shoved in to take its place.

TRAMPING DOWN THE KRAUT.

About the casks another busy scene is taking place. The cabbage is packed in thin layers, with layers of fine salt between. Two men stand inside, wearing high rubber boots, tramping the cabbage down tightly. It is placed in the cask, for if it loosely packed it will mold. It takes two days with sixteen people working from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night, to fill one of these 125-barrel casks. There are thirteen of these to be filled, besides eleven twenty-five-barrel casks, kept in another building off at one side.

When these immense affairs are all filled work is stopped for two or three weeks. Loose boards are thrown over the tops of the casks and the cabbage is left to ferment and become sour. When this process takes place the product is full-fledged sauerkraut. It is then ready to be placed in barrels for the market and is dealt out with a pitchfork by men or boys standing in the aisles. The kraut is finished all hands lay by for the winter and the old white horse stands limply out in the stable, munching his hay and gathering together his scattered wits for the busy season.—Chicago Chronicle.

AFTER EFFECTS OF FEVER.

Mrs. Angle, of Merrittton, Suffered so Severely That Her Friends Feared She Was Likely to be a Permanent Invalid.

In the picturesque village of Merrittton resides Mrs. William Angle, who, after months of suffering, has found a cure from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Angle relates as follows the experience which she has passed. "Four years ago this spring, while a resident of Buffalo, I had an attack of typhoid fever and the disease left me in a worn out and extremely nervous condition, so that the least noise startled me. I could not sleep at times for a week on account of terrible attacks of heart trouble. Then again my head would trouble me and I had had dreams, and had no appetite and lost weight. Two pounds in weight and had become so very thin that my friends were alarmed. While in this condition I was treated by two physicians but with no avail. I tried everything recommended, but still found no relief. Finally a relative persuaded me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After I had taken the first box I could see a change for the better, so I continued the use of the pills until I had finished six boxes and the results were most gratifying. I now have normal sleep, there is no more twitching in my hands, my palpitations have ceased, and I have gained in weight and strength. My whole system seems toned up, and I feel entirely well. I feel grateful to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., and hope they will keep up the good work of administering to the afflicted."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

One and Two Naughts.

An Irish counsel having lost a case which had been tried before three judges, one of whom was esteemed a very able lawyer, and the other two but indifferent, some of the other counsel had scoffed him a good deal. "Well, now," said he, "who the devil could help it when there were a hundred judges on the bench?" A hundred "I said a bystander. "There were but three." "By St. Patrick," replied the counsel, "there was one and two ciphers."

CUT THESE OUT. They May be Useful to the Cook at Christmas.

TURKEY FILLED WITH OYSTERS. Put in the frying pan over a clear fire a teaspoonful of butter. Heat until slightly brown, then cut into a small onion. Stir until the onion is nicely fried. Add to it two cupsful of bread crumbs, and stir until well mixed. Chop fine a teaspoonful of parsley, a bay leaf, a sprinkle of cayenne pepper and a teaspoonful of salt. Drain the juice from twenty-five oysters and add them to the bread crumbs. Fill the turkey and roast. The same recipe may be used for a turkey that is to be boiled. Chestnuts make a delicious stuffing for roast turkey. They should be boiled and the skin removed and the chestnuts mashed with butter. Whole chestnuts should also be used in thickening the gravy.

BONED TURKEY. Take a fine, large, tender turkey and after it is prepared lay it on a clear meat board. A knife with a very sharp, narrow blade is necessary. Begin at the neck, then cut around the shoulders and the wings, separating the flesh from the bone. Next slip the knife under the flesh of the breast, back and body. When each bone has been loosened, take the turkey by the neck and with a gentle pull the entire skeleton can be bread and put three leaves of sweet basil, finely grated, and two small onions cut into a quarter of an ounce of mace, a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of black pepper. Boil hard four eggs, and when cold crumble them fine and add them with the spices to the bread crumbs. Keep it in the natural shape as nearly as possible. This can be so well done that one can scarcely tell that it has been boned. Bake for three hours in a hot oven. The beaten yolks of two eggs and a glass of white wine. This is delicious to serve as a cold dish, or may be served hot from the oven.

HOW TO USE COLLIER'S TURKEY. Cut the cold mutton, so that the fat may be visible in appearance. Add a little hot water to the gravy that was left over, and heat it to boiling point. Add a lump of butter weighing an ounce, half a salt-spoonful of grated nutmeg, the same amount of cloves, and a teaspoonful of walnut catsup. Mix together a teaspoonful of currant jelly, a little piece of butter, and a little of the giblets, the beaten yolks of two eggs and a glass of white wine. This is delicious to serve as a cold dish, or may be served hot from the oven.

Wade's Slight Was Restored by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mrs. Geo. Barnes Was Only Slightly Sick, But Deaf—Part of a Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills Restored Both Sight and Hearing.

Smith's Falls, Dec. 4.—The case of R. A. Wade, the great criminal lawyer, who has attracted considerable attention in the United States, many of the papers of that country having devoted considerable space to it. A similar case occurred on our own side of the line, in that of Mrs. George Barnes, of this town.

R. A. Wade is the lawyer who defended Frederick the first time he was tried for the murder of Carter Harrison, Mayor of Chicago. He had been retained in a number of sensational trials before and has been since, and is one of the best known lawyers in America. Mrs. Barnes had Kidney Disease, and the uric acid, always present in the system when the kidneys are deranged, attacked his eyes and Mr. Wade went blind. He started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and gradually the kidney trouble disappeared and his sight returned.

Now read Mrs. Barnes' letter and see how what was almost considered a miracle by the people of Chicago has been duplicated in Canada.

Smith's Falls, Dec. 4.—Gentlemen,—I have been troubled for over a year with female weakness, and a great deal of trouble, resulting from Kidney Disease. I have consulted a doctor who gave me medicine that seemed to make me worse. At times I would be deaf, and at other times I would be blind. I was told to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and I got one box. I have used part of the box, and am completely cured, and strange to say both my hearing and eyesight is now unimpaired. You may publish this if it will be the means of assisting others. I remain, yours, etc., Mrs. George Barnes.

Salt on Roadbeds.

The application of salt to the roadbed will be tried this winter in New York. It is believed that salt will prevent the top soil from freezing, thus obviating the mud which invariably comes from a thaw. Professor Burr, of Columbia University, says of the proposed experiment that the effect of salt will be to lower the temperature at which the surface soil would freeze, and it would also take up the moisture, and so, perhaps, do away with the mud.

Wonders of the Locomotive.

The story of the locomotive sounds simple in the recital. The wonder of the thing comes into view only when one reflects on the speed and nicety with which its cumbersome parts are made to do their duty. The piston and connecting bar of a modern locomotive weigh some 600 pounds. When the speed is sixty miles an hour these parts travel back and forth five times a second.

Be Cured of Catarrh. CATARRHOZE.

New Scientific Treatment by Which Diseased Parts of the Head, Throat, and Lungs Can be Reached.

If you suffer from Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Hay Fever, and want to be cured and stay cured, try Catarrhoze, the medicated air cure. Ointments, powders, liquids and snuffs have proved useless. The reason for this is plain. First, moisture and heat cannot assert the bronchial tubes or lungs, and all the old treatments, being given with douches and sprays, do not reach the diseased parts. Secondly, the bacilli of Catarrh, Bronchitis and Consumption grow with almost inconceivable rapidity in a few hours; hence treatments once a day cannot prevent their increase, whereas Catarrhoze, inhaled carried in your pocket can be used at any time or in any place, and every breath of the medicated air is sure death to the germs that cause the disease. The germ moisture destroyed, nature asserts itself and the inflamed membranes soon heal, effecting a permanent cure. It requires but a few weeks in the most severe cases to bring about a perfect cure when Catarrhoze is used. Catarrhoze outfit, complete, price $1.00 at all druggists or direct by mail. Send 10c in stamps for sample outfit and testimonials to N. C. Polson & Co., Mfg. Chemists, Box 514 Kingston, Ont.

Parted Hair.

There is a movement on foot to again have a fad for wearing the hair parted in the centre and prettily waved, announced Paris correspondents. Some charming American girls who were recently in Paris had their hair dressed at the most fashionable places, and the manner of parting the hair in the middle seemed to exactly suit their features. At some very well known functions thereafter their coiffures were greatly admired. The fashion which has been revived is now French "a la Armandine."

Few Weddings in Cincinnati.

There has been a surprising and unaccountable decrease in the number of marriages annually performed in Cincinnati since 1890. In that year, when the population of the city was 296,906, 3,343 marriage licenses were issued in Hamilton county. In 1895 the population was 330,083, and the number of licenses issued, 3,487. In 1897 the population rose to 410,000 and the marriage licenses decreased to 2,967, and last year, with a further increase in the number of inhabitants, there were but 2,847 marriages recorded.

Increased Customs Revenue.

The following statement shows the custom revenue collection in the Dominion during the past five months of this fiscal year since 1894-5: 1894-5, $7,228,946; 1895-6, $8,404,308; 1896-7, $8,088,105; 1897-8, $8,183,481; 1898-9, $10,369,006; 1899-1900, $12,051,378. These figures tell the tale of the growing time for themselves. A similar increase is to be seen in the figures for November of this year, as compared with those for the same month last year: customs receipts, November, 1899-1900, $2,394,163; November, 1898-9, $1,935,106; increase, $461,057.

Queer Medicines.

Ground oyster shells were given by the medieval doctors to children suffering from rickets and scrofula. Now it appears that they were right. The shell contains lime, nitrogen, iron, sulphur, manganese, magnesia, flour, bromide, phosphoric acid and iodine, all excellent for feeble children. They say that if growing children were to take powdered oyster shells in their food the teeth would be improved.

OUT OF CANNON RANGE. How the British Care for the Wounded in South Africa.

Modern artillery's effectiveness has put a very different complexion upon the uses and necessities of field hospitals. A field hospital used to be very near the fighting line—it was often actually under fire. But nowadays, when artillery fire is commonly effective at four thousand yards, no field hospital could be allowed sufficiently near the fighting line to permit the wounded being taken directly to it, and the organization of aid has been altogether altered.

In South Africa it has been arranged that all the effective aid in the field will be that of the Army Medical Corps. Voluntary aid will consist of the field and the base hospital and between the base and general hospitals. The working organization is as follows: Accompanying the fighting line are the base hospitals—three or four men to each regular regimental company. When a man drops out, wounded, the Army Medical Corps men pick him up and take him to the nearest dressing station, where he is attended to as quickly as possible. From the dressing station the wounded are taken to collecting stations, these being placed at points where more shelter is obtainable.

In the case of collecting stations, it is possible, of course, to select more effective shelter than at the dressing station, where shelter is more a matter of improvisation. From the collecting stations the wounded are carried as quickly as possible to the field hospital. Here, generally speaking, they remain a day, and are then removed to the base and general hospitals. There will be twelve field hospitals in South Africa, four stationary or base hospitals and four general hospitals, each with its complete staff. The distribution of these hospitals will be determined by the officers commanding in South Africa, and must depend on the manner in which the military situation develops.

"I have noticed," said Rev. Dr. Goodman, pausing in his discourse, "that two or three of the brethren have looked at their watches several times in the last few minutes. For fear their timeliness may not agree I will say that the correct time is 11:45. I set my watch by the regulator at the jeweler's last night. The service will be over at 12:01 o'clock, and in the last few minutes, let us proceed to consider now what the apostle means when he says, 'I press toward the mark.'"—Chicago Tribune.
