Flowers Worn as Bons for Evening

A very dainty, pretty notion that is having wide vogue in the French capital tut now may strike our women as being rather useless and too conspicuous, but as worn by French women they really have a decided grace. These are flower bows for evening wear. The pretty little affairs are oftenest made of detached petals of artificial flowers massed together to form a blooming garland. Then the ends are finished with a cluster of fullblown flowers, buds and leaves.

FLOWER-DECORATED MUFFS. Fancy muffs, flower decorated may also be classed as a Parisia craze, so often are they seen on the boulevards, These are most frequently worn as an accessory to costume where the muff is of vel ret to match or to contrast har moniously with the shade of the gown and its floral decoration cleverly designed to produce an artistic result. One beauty mentioned in our advices was of dark-brown velvet. lined with old ivory satin, adorned with a beautiful bunch of President Carnot roses.
