PREMIER G. W. ROSS.

Nothing succeeds like success. When Mr Ross held a minor portfolio, he did not obtrude himself. He effaced himself gracefully. That was his role. It is easy to see now how he could have swamped Sir Oliver Mowat, with his oratory-Sir Oliver, a bland, winsome he could have eclipsed Mr Fraser, who Merry Xmas arts of pleasing, gifts of camaraderic boldness of design, firmness of execuboldness of design, firmness of execu. tion, which he kept in check many years. All these qualities he gave to the work of his department, and there he built up a splendid edifice. All this shows the marvelous patience of the man. At last his turn came, and he bourgeoned forth grandly. His thought had lost no particle of bloom; his lan guage showed nosign of jadedness; he himself was as keen for affairs as if he had been the supreme authority all his Premier Ross has shown himself a capable man of affairs, an enterprising, far-sighted premier; but he is still an orator. He has not forgotten the graces of language in the activities of his premiership. In Ontario we think less of elequence than they do in Quebec. That Province, probably because it does not read many newspapers, has always been swayed by the spoken word. The careers of Chapleau, Mercier, Laurier prove that. In spite of a certabanal in way of looking at things which this Province has, Mr Ross has held fast to his ideals, dignifying great eyents with adequate language. When a man is making history, he ought to be able to preach it well.

The past season has in certain localities been unfayourable for the perfect maturing of grain. In some districts it has been injured by rain during harvest or from being stacked before fully dry, thus causing it to spront or heat, while in other localities it has suffered more or less from early autumn frost. When exposed to either of these conditions cereals are apt to lose a portion of their vitality or to have it so weakened as to produce when sown an unsatisfactory growth. The character of the crop is greatly influenced by the quality of seed used, and to obtain the best results it should have its germinating power unimpaired, so that when placed in the soil the young plants may make a prompt and vigorous start. Hence it is very important that farmers should ascertain whether grain they are holding for seed possesses the vitality necessary to produce a good

By instruction of the Honourable Minister of Agriculture, provision bas been made whereby the vitality of seed can be ascertained without cost to the individual, and any farmer in the Dominion, who may have any varieties which he desires to have tested can get the information he seeks, by for warding to the director of the Experimental Farms, Ottawa, samples of such
