Miss MacLachlan will sing "Gunchroch gun aighean" and "Thainig an Gille Dubh" on Friday night, with the ancient Highland harp accompaniment.
Our gaelic knowledge can not translate these titles, but coming from a warm heart they appeal to others besides her countrymen. "O can ye sew cushions" by the same lady, swept a Toronto audience, and so did "W' a hundred pipers."

THREE MORE DEATHS.

Mrs. Falaise,
Mr. John Mather,
Mrs. Thos. Knox.

Again it is our painful duty to record the passing of more of our fellow travelers from life's journey. One of these with the journey well spent, the others taken away when their companionship was valued most, with the prospect of going along the pathway for many years yet together.

MRS. FALAISE.
On Jan. 29th last there died another of Glenelg's early settlers in the person of Mrs. Falaise, Sr., at the age of 74 yrs 10 mos. She had been a resident of the township for 45 years and thus had a practical knowledge of the early set-tler's difficulties. Mrs. Falaise died two years ago left her very infirm and her death was, to her a happy release from much suffering. She was married in 1854 in the island of Jersey, of which she was a native. She was buried at a Zion cemetery. Rev. Mr. McGregor conducting the services. Two sons Wm. and John, both in the township, are chief mourners.

MR. JOHN MATHER.
Very painful did the news strike all who knew him when the announcement came on Friday last that John Mather was dead. A short time before he was in his usual health, and we had the pleasure only a few weeks ago of a call from him and an agreeable conversation. Two years ago his life was in the balance from a kick he received, and this no doubt weakened his vitality to withstand an attack of the prevailing La Grippe. To the widow and children our sympathy is extended in their great loss of a loving husband and father.

MRS. THOS. KNOX.

On Sunday last after a brief illness, this lady passed away leaving a blank that can not be filled. Another victim of the prevailing disease cut off in the midst of life and usefulness leaving a small family to miss a mother's care.
She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
John Leith, who live close by and who will be deeply affected at the loss of a kind and loving daughter, while to her devoted husband and their children her loss will be irreparable. One sister Jane survives her, and 5 brothers: George Merchant, at Spry, Peter near Spry David, in Normanby, John, a doctor in N. Dakota and William at home.

Mr. C. Knapp this week mourns the death of his mother which took place on Monday morning last at Neustadt.
On Tuesday morning confirming the old adage that trouble never comes singly, the painful news was heard that his sister-in-law had also passed away.
To all bereaved we extend sympathy.

Mr. Thos. Ewan who died last week at the patriarchal age of 88 years was born in Pennycook, Middlethian, Scotland, and was married there in 1871 to Miss Fairlie, and to them were born eight sons and daughters. Four of these died in youth, the others are Grace Ewan at home, Mr. John Ewan, Rocky Saugeen, Mrs. Wm. Vessie, (Janet) and Robert Ewan, Aberdeen. These with 31 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren have sprung from this pair.
In 1857 they came to Blenheim with their family where their son John had arrived one year before and after a brief stay here moved into the wilds of Bentnick and bought the farm on which he died. There with his sons they endured the pioneer's life of toil, and he was privileged to see his children and his children's children grow to years of usefulness and attain the comforts of life around him. He was strongly Presbyterian all his life and in politics was a Reformer. He was buried on Feb. 1, in the new cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of mourners. Rev. Mr. Farquharson conducted the services.

DURHAM'S LAST TRIBUTE.

Churches Filled Funeral Day.

The Methodist church on Saturday last was crowded on the occasion of the Union Memorial Services in connection with the funeral of Queen Victoria. Rev. Mr. Smith presided, and the choir rendered appropriate music. A fine picture of her Majesty occupied a position in front of the pulpit and was draped in royal purple, and, though the function was semi-public, there was all the appearance of genuine grief that is looked for on the average private occasion.

Rev. Mr. McGregor spoke on Leadership, pointing out how God had chosen Moses for the leader of His people at a critical period of their history, how a preacher like Paul was wanted at a particular time, and similarly it seemed as if Queen Victoria had been chosen to furnish an example of leadership in piety, wisdom and goodness, as well as in other queenly qualities.

She was great as a woman, the reflection of the goodness in her life having influenced the world. Her moral force was everywhere recognized, and her character was a striking example of the results of early training by a wise Christian mother.

She was great in heart power, love and feeling, and it should be remembered that a nation's greatness is not chiefly in its armies and its fleets, but in the principles of righteousness which were embodied in the life of our good queen. Her life was also an exemplification of the greatness that comes through suffering and sorrow.

As a sovereign she was characterized by efficiency, trustworthiness and a devoted sense of public duty, and she lived to see the whole empire recognize these grand qualities and spring to arms to defend it in a time of danger.

Rev. Mr. Farquharson took his text from I Sam. 25:1. "And Samuel died, and all the Israelites were gathered together and lamented him and buried him in his house in Ramah." It was a deep and sincere sorrow the people had for Samuel for he had been to them a life-long stay and support.
But there was no royal bridge to carry anyone over the cares and sorrows of life, nor over its limit, so Prophet and Queen had to pass.

The length of years of the Queen's service was forcibly shown when one considered the great ministers of her reign. Melbourne, Peel, Russell, Palmerston, Disraeli, Gladstone, passed into history before her. Young men grew up and grew old in her presence.
He noted some of the great physical changes of the reign, and thought the greatest effect of the long reign had been the binding of the empire. Canada in 1837, a disaffected bunch of colonies, now a prosperous whole. Scotland, bound to the empire firmly by her presence served to reveal the lack of it in Ireland, and much was done by the royal visit last year.

Only nobility of character could have done all she did. Love and wise parental training were factors of it all.
Mr. Farquharson related a personal recollection of his father who had been witness to the Duchess of Kent's thoughtfulness when on one of their annual visits to Balmoral. The empire owed a debt of gratitude to the mother for the daughter she so wisely trained, and to the Queen's father also whose good character was reflected in his illustrious child.

Rev. Mr. Stewart, the aged and well and widely loved Baptist minister was next called upon. To few indeed is it given to look in conscious life on such a long vista of human experience. To him the queen was a girl.
From the standpoint of his nearly 90 years he remembered her birth, her accession, her marriage, her widowhood, her jubilees, and now her death.
He is one of the few of this generation who has lived in 5 British reigns. He remembers the death of Geo III in 1820. He was then a small boy herding cattle in Banffshire, and the Royal Mail coach passing with an unusual draping black made a memory, which has lasted 80 years.

Very interesting and touching was his testimony. "Our Queen is gone" said Mr. Stewart, "but the language of the bible applies, she being dead yet speaketh," and he prayed that others, parents especially, would follow the noble example she had left us. He had a vivid recollection of the funeral of Geo III, of the coronation of his two sons as well as Victoria's whole career from the cradle to the grave.
He had some recollections of the feelings he had when former sovereigns died, but they were not comparable to this. She was a sister to sisters and a mother to all, and though this peace-loving queen was departing life in the midst of war he hoped that before many years the dove of peace would rest on the empire so blessed by her reign.

Rev. Mr. Smith emphasized the fact that she was "our" Queen and had touched Canada in the first year of her reign, and through her father Canada had been greatly benefited as far back as 1793. He paid a glowing tribute to her affection for her husband and to the value of the example she left us. It was the duty of Canadians and the Empire to buttress the throne of her son with prayer, that the spirit of his mother may dominate him that he will be mourned as sincerely when he is called.

In the forenoon special services were held in Trinity church, with a good congregation. The desk, pulpit and chancel were appropriately draped, and the music and hymns were both appropriately selected and rendered. The ritual for the burial of the dead was read, including a passage from Job the 39th Psalm and 1 Corinthians chapter 15. Rev. Mr. Ryan took his text from Hebrews 9:27 "As it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment." He drew practical lessons from the certainty of death, whether in high or low degree there was no escape. He spoke in high terms of the Queen's character, a character which would be fittingly rewarded in realms of bliss by a brighter crown than ever adorned a monarch of earth. A character that had raised the character of her subjects and benefited the whole world.

Throughout the empire, and outside of it, similar tributes were paid. Some of our Canadian cities draped their public buildings, business was generally suspended, even the financial institutions of New York were closed. The spectacle of children and grand-children including the King and Queen and Emperor of Germany walking behind the bier as at a peasant's funeral, anon following in carriages those royal remains hoisted on a gun carriage, through throbbing but silent and gloomy London, is one that was never before seen on earth.

Honored in life, honored in death, she now lies beside her long and ever-lamented husband in the beautiful Mausoleum she built for him nearly 40 years ago, the inscription on which has a pathos that will ring down the ages.

"Here at last I will rest with thee, With thee in Christ shall rise again."
Things are getting adjusted. The feeling of sorrow is giving way to one of pride that one has lived in her time, that her life is completed without a possibility of marring, that her son and his Queen are likely to be worthy successors of a Queen renowned above all earthly monarchs.

Though there is almost a surfeit of memorial matter we ask our readers to examine the Report of the funeral on inside pages.
