

THE WHITE PLAGUE.

One-Sixth of All the Deaths
Due to Consumption.

Its Ravages Spare No Class—Rich and Poor Alike Fall Victims—How This Dread Trouble May be Prevented.

Consumption has been well named the great white plague. One-sixth of all the deaths occurring in Canada annually are due to the ravages of this terrible disease. Its victims are found among all classes; rich and poor alike succumb to its insidious advance. Only a few years ago the victim of consumption was regarded as incurable, and horror-stricken friends watched the loved one day by day fade away until death came as a merciful release. Now, however, it is known that in its earlier stages consumption is curable, and that by a proper care of the blood—keeping it rich, red and pure—those who are pre-disposed to the disease escape its ravages. Consumption is now classed among the preventable diseases, and those who are pale, easily tired, emaciated, or show any of the numerous symptoms of general debility should at once fortify the system by enriching and purifying the blood—thus strengthening not only the lungs, but all parts of the body.

Among those who have escaped a threatened death from consumption is Mrs. Robert McCracken, of Marshville, Ont. Mrs. McCracken gives her experience that it may be of benefit to some other sufferer. She says: "A few years ago I began to experience a general weakness. My appetite was poor; I was very pale; was troubled with shortness of breath and a smothering feeling in my chest. Besides these symptoms I became very nervous, at times dizzy and faint, and my hands and feet would get as cold as ice. As the trouble progressed I began to lose flesh rapidly, and in a short time was only a shadow of my former self. I had good medical treatment, but did not get relief, and as a harsh cough set in I began to fear that consumption had fastened itself upon me. I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I at once procured a supply and had not taken them long when I noted a change for the better. By the time I had taken six or eight boxes I was able to move around the house again and felt better and stronger in every way. I continued the use of the pills until I had taken a dozen boxes, when all my old time strength and vigor had returned, and I was as well as ever. During the time I was using the pills my weight increased twenty-six pounds. Several years have since passed, and in that time not a symptom of my former trouble has made its appearance, so that I think I am safe in saying that my cure is permanent. I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life, and I strongly advise all suffering from general weakness to give them a trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic and not a purgative medicine. They enrich the blood from the first dose to the last, and give health and strength to every organ in the body. The genuine pills are sold only in boxes with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," printed on the wrapper. If any other pills cannot supply you send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

ABOUT BERESFORD.

How Mr. O'Conno's Paper Describes Him.

Lord William Beresford was in appearance something between Lord Charles and Lord Marcus. Like them, he was just about the middle height, perhaps a little above it; like them, he had large, blue, open eyes—eyes that were almost invisible in their innocence and transparency. If it were not that there was a certain quizzical expression in them which revealed to the close observer the man of the world who had done everything, seen everything, knew everything. The figure was alert and boyish. He was a man who seemed always in condition—ready for a fight in a campaign or anything that was going. Though the moustache was white, the cheeks had the ruddiness, and the eyes the clearness of eternal youth. With all that, he seemed to have a certain amount of fighting blood in him. He had all the legends told about him were well-founded, he deserves a high place in the annals of the brave sappers who were as assistants in the battle as they are daring in the field. As military secretary to three viceroys, he had the most delicate of offices; but his infinite tact, inexhaustible good humor, knowledge of men and knowledge of women, were equal to that or any other emergency.—M. A Tale of Two Brothers.

A Fable by One, A.D.

Once there were two Brothers, who started away to College at the same time. Just before they boarded the Train, Pa. led them aside and handed them some splendid Advice. He told them that they were now ready to mould their Futures. He said he wanted them to stay in or out of College, and he wanted them to stand high in their Classes and devote their Spare Moments to Reading, rather than to the Whimsies and Mimical Fooleries of a University Town.

William listened solemnly and promised to Behave. Cholley flitted in his Chair and said it was nearly Train Time.

So they rode away on the Vandalia Cars, William reading and Cholley playing Seven-Up with a Shoe Drummer from Lowell, who gave him several Yarns that he afterwards told as his own.

At the University William remembered what Pa. had said, so he cooped himself up in his Room and was greatly despised as a pet of the Professors. Cholley was a striped Jersey and joined the Track Team and worked in the Glee Club. He went to his room when all the other Places had closed up. Every time a Show struck Town he was in the Front Row to give the Performers and pick up some new Gags, so as to maintain his Reputation as an Original Comedian. He went calling on all the Town Girls who would stand for his Fresh Wives, and he was known as the best Dancer in the K. K. Chapter of the Gamma Psi-sian Greek Letter Fraternity. The reports sent home indicated that William was corraling the Honors in Scholarship and Cholley was getting through each Exam on the side of his Teeth, but he had been elected a Yell Captain and could do his 100 Yards in Ten Seconds Flat. Pa. would write to Cholley now and then and tell him to brace up and give him a Hand that Life was full of Sober Responsibilities, and therefore he had better store his Mind with Useful Knowledge and Chop off all the Fat that was on his back, whereupon Cholley would write back that he needed Fifty by Return Mail to pay for Chemicals Used in the Laboratory.

By the time that both were Seniors William had grown a fuzzy Climber in front of each Ear and was troubled with Weak Eyes. He always had a volume of Kant under his arm and seemed to be in a Brown Study as he walked across the Campus. Cholley kept himself Neat and Nobby and seemed always Cheerful, even though he had two or three Conditions to his discredit, and had only an Outside Chance of taking his degree. He was Manager of the Football Team, having been elected because of his Opinions as a Mixer, and had earned his affectionate nickname of "Rocky." He was a great Hand to get acquainted with any Girl who dared to show herself near the Halls of Learning, and by constant Practice he had developed into a Star of the night that he could Talk Low to almost any one of them and make her believe that of all the Flowers that ever bloomed she was the one and only thirty thousand dollar Carnation.

William kept away from Hove and P-comrades, because he remembered what Pa. had said about the Distracting Influence of Frivolous and the "Bottle-Trotty of Artificial Society. The only Girl he knew was a Professor's Sister. Fifty-one years old, with whom he was wont to discuss the Theory of Unconscious Cerebration. Then he would drink a cup of Young Hyson Tea and go home at a quarter to nine P. M. Cholley at about that time would be starting out on his "Bottle-Trotty and Docket-Ready Suit to write his name on Dance Cards and get acquainted with the Real Folks.

On Commencement Day William received the Cyren J. Dinker Prize of a set of Books for getting the Highest General Average of any one in the Class. Cholley just managed to squeeze through the Faculty gate with a degree for fear that if it didn't he might come back and stay another Year.

After they had graduated Pa. gave them another Talk. He said he was proud of William, but Cholley had been a Trial to him. Still he hoped it was not too late to set his Boy on the Right Track. He was going to put both of them into a Law Office, and he would like to have a fight on Law for all they were worth, and not be lured away from their Work by the Glittering Temptations of Life in a Big City. William said he was prepared to Read Law, but he was Black in the Face. Cholley said he wouldn't mind picking a few Heats with Blackstone and Cooley now and then, if he found that he could spare the Time. The Father frowned inwardly, and did not see much Hope for Cholley.

When the two Sons became Fixtures in the Office of an established Law Firm, William kept his Nose between the Leaves of a Court Report, and Cholley was out in the other Room warming up to the influential Clients and making Dates for Luncheons and Golf Foursomes.

Within three months after they started at the Office, William had read all the Books in the Place and Cholley was out spending three weeks at the Summer Home of the President of a Construction Company, who was stuck on Cholley's dialect Stories and liked to have him around because he was such a good Dresser and made it lively for the Women.

Out at this Country Place it happened that Cholley met a Girl who didn't know how much she was worth, so Cholley thought it would be an Act of Kindness to help her find out. When he sat out with her in the Cool of the Evening and gave her the Barring Gaze and the Low, entrancing Love Purr, that he had practiced for Four Years at the University, she stopped him before he was half finished and told him that he needed her. She said she had had him picked out from the Moment that she noticed how well his Coat sat in the Back.

In one large Office Buildings of the City there is a suite finished in Dark Wood. At a massive roll top Desk sits Cholley, the handsome Lawyer, who is acquainted with Bill the Club Fellow, Society Bucks and Golf Demons. When a client comes in with a Knotty Question Cholley calls in a Bond Stenographer to jot down all the Facts in the Case. Then he and the client rattle a few mutual Acquaintances and the Client departs. Cholley rings a Bell and Brother William comes out of a Side Room with his Coat hunched in the Back and his Trousers Bagged at the Knees. His Cravat is tied on one side only, and he needs a Shave, but he is full of the Law. Cholley turns all the Papers over to him, tells him to wrestle with the Authorities for a few Days and Nights. Then William slips back into his Hole and humps himself over the Calf-bound Volume of Cholley put on his Slate-covered Goggles and Top Coat and goes out to where Simpson is holding a Carriage Door open for him. He and Nellie look on air in the Street, but he thought with her Money, and later in the Day they dine with the Stockton Bonds and finish at the Theatre.

Cholley often reflects that it was a piece of Foresight on Pa's part to counsel Studious Habits and Rigid Mental Discipline, for if William had not been a Grind at College, he would not have proved to be such a Help around the Office, and although William gets the Loser's End of the Fees and is never Called on to make a witty Speech at a Banquet given by the Bar Association, he has the Satisfaction of knowing he is the Silent Partner of the best dressed Attorney in Town and one who is welcome wherever he goes.

Catarrhone Cures Child of Catarrh.

"Terth, Ont.,—I cannot withhold my testimony as to the great value of Catarrhone as a remedy for Catarrh, one bottle having cured my daughter of that trouble. I heartily recommend it to all who are suffering with Catarrh. No one should be without it. Mrs. J. A. Morris."

World's Idea of a Wife.

Some women who are to marry professional men study medicine or law, or even theology, in order to be able to sympathize intelligently and helpfully with the spiritual or intellectual pursuits of the husband-to-be and in a way supplement the gyrations of his brain with her own, and thus lay broad and deep the foundation for a practically perfect life.

To be wholly absorbed in him, even to making self-effacement the stepping-stone and highway for his success, stands everywhere and for all time the world's ideal of a wife. When a man so devotes himself to his wife he is nobody's ideal of a husband.

While women are proud to be known as the wife of a distinguished man, they are pleased to be noticed or accepted on the ground of being the husband of a distinguished woman.—Mary Wager-Fisher, in the December Woman's Home Companion.

Sure Cure for the Grip.

We don't know much about the effect of materia medica upon the human system, but we do write, fill and take the following prescription, which knocked the grippe higher than Gilderoy's kite—Four quarts of whiskey, into which were dissolved four ounces of loaf sugar. To this we added a teaspoonful of water and another quart of whiskey and then placed over a hot fire and let boil sufficiently long to boil out all the water. We then stirred in a little more whiskey to cool and gulped it down without blinking an eye. In order to remove the taste from our mouth we took a little more whiskey.—Glenwood, Col., Avalanche.

One Day for Bathing in Mexico

Only one country in the world has a national bathing day, and that is Mexico. The day is the 14th of June, and in that twenty-four hours so nominated everyone in the republic, from President Diaz, down to the commonest servant, is expected to take a good wash. Numbers of non-vandals also knocked no water to touch their persons except on this occasion, known as St. John's day.

A PLEASANT DISAPPOINTMENT

A Cheltenham Man is Agreeably Surprised—An Old Grudge Paid.

Mr. Turner After a Successful Effort to Get Rid of One Enemy Finds That in Doing so He Has Put Away Another.

Cheltenham, Ont., Feb. 11.—(Special.)—A fortunate man, indeed, is Mr. Charles Turner, of this place. For years Mr. Turner has been suffering with kidney disease. It gave him great pain, and for the last two or three years rheumatism has added to his already heavy burden of sickness. He has long known an hour free from pain. Not associating the rheumatism with the old kidney trouble, and despairing of curing the former, Mr. Turner bought and used a bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the kidney trouble. He used a few boxes, and the pain in his back kept getting less and less, and finally went away. All the unpleasant symptoms of kidney disease disappeared, and what was still more strange to Mr. Turner, he has not since been bothered with rheumatism.

He is so grateful for the miraculous results of the treatment that he has been cheerfully telling his friends and neighbors his experience. He says: "Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills have cured me of a long-standing case of kidney disease. I was also a sufferer from rheumatism, and although I took the pills for the kidney trouble, I was surprised to find that when this disease was cured the rheumatism also disappeared. This was over a year ago, and I have not been troubled since. I used in all six boxes. The first two boxes did not appear to do me any good, but I persevered, and the result is that I am now a healthy man."

Of course, to those who recognize rheumatism as what it really is, a symptom of kidney disease, there is nothing wonder in it. Mr. Turner's experience, Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills always cure Kidney Trouble, and with it Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lame Back, Neuralgia, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Diabetic, Bright's Disease, and any of the other many forms in which it may often does appear.

Reptilian Reflections.

The editor of an Edinburgh newspaper of some importance had been condemned to pay damages for libel upon a merchant of the same city. Among other compliments that had passed between the parties to the cause was a remark by the merchant that the editor, who was of short, slight figure, was a "wee snake."

Some time afterward the editor revenged himself for losing his suit by writing upon some statistics which his old enemy had put together, by remarking that everybody knew that Mr. Duncan MacLaren was "a great adder."

Englishmen and the Queen.

Curiously enough the great mass of Englishmen know little or nothing of the sovereign as their ruler. They had only the vaguest idea of the part she took in the government of their country, and they knew nothing of her realm and her people; they knew, therefore, that she was the controlling and dominant force she exercised in international and domestic politics. But about this they cared nothing. It was sufficient for them to know that she was a good woman, a woman whose heart always went out to her people, who shared with them their joys as well as their sorrows, who was kindly in regard to everything, who could make them better and happier. And perhaps more than anything else was the knowledge that she was a woman who had suffered much, whose heart had been sorely troubled, and whose spirit often tried, and yet through it all she had remained serene, hopeful, always an example for right living, always an inspiration to the many who knew her. Perhaps that was the real secret of the devotion which she inspired in Englishmen the world over.—A. Maurice Low, in Harper's Weekly.

WHEN BLOOD IS HOT.

A Bit of War as It Was Played by the Scots.

At last, by superhuman efforts, some 200 burghers pressed up to within 100 yards of "the slaughter-house," after having picked off most of the men in that trench. They crept up a few yards more; then, rising, poured in a volley and rushed at the schanz. But behind the "slaughter-house" were the Royal Scots—a mud-stained, unkempt set of ruffians they looked. They saw the Boers rushing, and their warrior hearts beat quick with joy. Shortly, like a man in a dream, their captain gave the word, "fix bayonets." It was done in a trice. "Ready!" The men loaded their rifles. "A volley, my lads, and then the steel. All together!"—the warlike blows. A flame flew along the parapet. Then over the stone walls spring the Royal Scots. Once they shouted; only once.

Then the claying began. Grimly they thrust in the steel, searing through all that stood before them; through bone and sinew, through heart and lungs, through limb and trunk. So fierce, so virginal were the blows, that the red point almost came out at the other side. The burghers were brave enough; but when they saw the steel leaping on them like a troop of lions upon a defenceless flock. They must either run or die. So they ran—and leaving mangled bodies of friends and kinsfolk, and comrades dying the agony of the garrison had triumphed, and from the heights across the landscape, where the Basuto country was burst shouts and songs of triumph. Fifty yeils and shouts of derision. Fifty thousand throats swelled the chorus. Ever since the siege began the black warriors had been gathered in their thousands on these heights, watching with fascinated interest the struggle of the white men. Like the spectators at a mediaeval tournament, they had applauded the gallant deeds of the combatants, and as they saw the British holding out day after day, night after night, against the assault of enormous odds, they came to have a profound trust and confidence in the "big heart" of the Queen's soldiers.

When, therefore, they saw the Royal Scots launch themselves like the levin-bolt at five times their number, they held their breath for a time, wondering what the end might be, but when they saw the bloody bayonets of the First Foot scotch and utterly destroy the hated Dutchmen, they opened their throats and yelled their applause across the river.—Casell's History of the Boer War.

After Typhoid fever, or other almost mortal sickness, a man or woman sometimes will gain a pound a day from taking an ounce a day of SCOTT'S EMULSION and the gain be healthy.

The ounce gives strength to get the pound; there is no miracle in it.

Body and mind are weak; digestion is weak; and hunger is ravenous.

SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil is the food to begin and go on with. It furnishes strength to digest a little easy other food; and a little grows to enough. But the gain is nearly all fat.

The bones had not lost much; the muscles had lost, and had not got back their strength; they have lost their bulk; the fat was all gone.

The fat has come back; the muscle slowly recovers its bulk, more slowly its strength—the bulk of muscle was fat—and the bones are about the same as before.

It is SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil that starts the body going again—give it time.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.
