Events outside of Parliament have been more interesting these holiday times than anything going on within the legislative halls where the people's representatives have been principally engaged in voting supplies, - a very necessary proceeding, and of much importance to all concerned, but one that is admittedly uninteresting as a rule to the ordinary citizens. The public galleries have been empty all the week, and the occupants of the press gallery , -who are always found faithful to duty whether there is anything worth reporting or not, -have found difficulty in fixing up "copy" in any kind of readable shape.

Outside, however, it has been different. Take for example the Young Liberal banquet in Toronto on Easter Monday night; it is a question it any political event has occurred in Ontario since the general elections of more interest and moment. This importance was derived principally from the spendid impression created upon an Ontario audience of representative men-mainly Protestant, and entirely English-speaking, by Senator Dan-

A REPRESENTATIVE FRENCH CATHOLIC, from Quebec who was most appropriately called upon to respond to the toast of "Canada," and did so in terms which delighted his auditors, and stamped him as worthy to interpret the best sentiments of the pest men who are making that name beloved in Empire and respected in the world. He took as his "text', -A house divided against itself cannot stand, and after deprecatmg in no uncertain terms, the wretched endeavors so constantly made in the late campaign, to stir up racial strife, he pointed out the utter toolishness of supposing that the French -speaking section in Lower Canada would wish to throw off British rule He is striking out blindly, hoping to and place themselves under the control of old France. This is not a section of this country, he declared, that is more interested in maintaining the present condition than the French -Canadians; they are as good, as patriotic Canadians as in any other into a profitable surplus if things go section or any other race in this country, "The reason is obvious", continued the Senator, "we are the oldest inhabitants country; we have no single tie with

This is an insult to our intelligence Why should we desire to abandon our freedom, our autonomy, our absolute centrol of our affairs, to return to-what? To the status of a French colony, which has in the Parisian Parliament. We have we are expected to throw that to the winds, abandon it, and return to a system in which we would have no control of our own affairs, would be governed by a non-responsible Government as the French colonies are. The announcement that the Govern ment has been able to contract for the steel rails needed for the Intercolonial Railway with Canadian manufacturers instead of having to buy them in the States as heretofore, must be a matter for congratulations to all Canadians. irrespective of political proclivities The arrangement by which this will be done is another evidence of the constant efforts of the present Administration to toster Canadian industries. The custom thus secured has decided the energetic Clergue syndicate to ure of these rails, for the establishment it in the House, "It would result in the establishment of a permanent industry and would secure to railway companies and others who might require rails, a supply obtainable in this country while ment.
