BYTEBIAN

e Confession of Faith be Revised?

SEMBLY'S QUESTION

gle Begun Yesterday and is Given a Summary of the ents Presented for and t Action on the Committee's

U. S. Presbyterian General yesterday the question of n of the Confession of Faith

Charles A. Dickey opened royal, presenting the matwo-thirds of the Presby-We revere our fathers, but e not infallible. The ter-Lord are prominent in the the love of God should have ie Rev. Dr. Mckibben took orm and presented the minrt. He is a tall, wiry man, lear eye, a fine voice, and method which seemed ir-If you open the door a said, why should it not by e thrown wide open. No are needed. The faith of rs is the faith of the chilhy try dangerous experithis era of Presbyterian dience followed him with the ossible attention. He was rical, but he was delightfulve. The hearers were like wheat in a gale of wind, ed to have a mastery over I when he took his seat the equalled that which had n the previous speaker. Dr. Herrick Jonnson made wonderful speech. He is a nd he has a certain personal m which carries all before time being. He is a man and when he concluded his favor of some sort of ree audience could not be held Whether this was in consea general approval of what r the result of his eloquence was hard to determine. the arguments presented follows:

For Kevision. ev. Dr. Charles A. Dickeythe accepted time to settle ter. Dismissal would not anen so many presbyteries deme change. The Assembly e willing to do that which and consistent, which does roach the past, and which dishonor on the church, God's he whole world, the influence loly Spirit, and the value of should form the foundation onfession.' ev. Dr. William McKibbennfession should be made clear subject of elect infants. It e demonstrated to this genthat God's grace lays hold ct of death and glorifies the ato transformation when it he child from its mother's

ev. Dr. Herrick Johnson-"The ties of the creed are not in-They wrote some things in we do not believe to be true "That anti-Christ, man of son of perdition. We repudiat belief, and why should it ved to remain? We have had d 250 years, and will be folthe footsteps of the Westminnster fathers did. What libad they that we do not rding predestination Dr. John-

not arraign the doctrine of election, but to shut mercy the elect is to take away ry. We want nothing but fio the truth. Truth is two our Confession holds up one on our side,

Rev. Dr. Samuel J. Noccollsis the report of Scriptural dge up to date. Our fathers rote it recognized this fact. hout our church there has n expression of dissatisfaction he statements in our written sion, and this dissatisfaction wing. We do know something. our fathers did not know, or, t, which they did not write. reasonable that Presbyteries ask you to consider?

may term these questions, are agitating the church, little but little things sometimes much irritation. How easy it alse the cry that the faith is d. I do not believe in beating lastical drams. It is my opinat when a document don't exyour convictions the easiest s to change it.

Against Revision.

Rev. Dr. George D. Baker .assertion has been made that onfession of Faith is not up e, and that the love of God is fficiently magnified. These perevidently to not know the conn. There exists in the Assembly timent which cries, "Hands off!" commissioners lean toward the on of an explanatory stateas an easy way out of the dify. An explanatory statement interpretation of the confession ith by the majority. It must be ribed to by ministers making ordination vows, and will thus prived of their religious liberty. r church losing its hold on the d? Is it a weakling church? 10 t rather stronger than ever be-? Let us beware how we seil our bright for a mess of pottage!"

GREEN OR BLACK, A Strong Quartet of Virtues.

PURITY ECONOMY CLEANLINESS WHOLESOMENESS

Coylon Teas are sold in sealed lead packets only, never in bulk, Black, flixed or Uncolored Ceylon Samples on application. Address "SALADA," Teronto.

PLOT FOR EMPIRE.

THRILLING STORY OF CONTINENTAL CONSPIRACY AGAINST BRITAIN.

Felix was preparing to enter agother cab, but Wolfenden laid his hand upon his shoulder. "Won't you come into my club here, and have a wash?" he suggested. " am afraid that you have cut your cheek." Felix raised his handkerchief to his face, and found it covered with blood. "Thank you, Lord Wolfenden," he the Good Samaritan to me! lavatory.

I was following? Wolfenden shook his head. "Mr. Sabin?" he suggested. "Not Mr. Sabin himself," Felix an- gan to smoke. swered, "but almost the same thing. It was Foo Cha, his Chinese servant, who has just arrived in England. Have you any idea where Mr. Sabin is?" They both shook their heads. "I do not know," Wolfenden said, "but I am very anxious to find out. I have an account to settle with him!" "And I," Felix murmured in a low tone, "have a very much longer one against him. To-night, if I am not too in the air." late, there will be a balance struck between us! I have lost Foo Cha, but others, better skilled than I am, are in search of his master. They will succeed, too! They always succeed, What have you against him, Lord Wolfentell the man the truth? He had no there are others. I have been into ance, breaking through the hard crust thing to gain by concealment.

house in Norfolk and obtained, either | Mr. Sabin drew a quiet little breath. by force or craft, some valuable pa- For a moment his haggard face seempers. My father was in delicate health, ed almost ghastly. He recovered himand we fear that the shock will cost self, however, with an effort.

were ?" Felix said. "I can tell you! Do | the law of this country; no man can you want to know what he required enter here if we resist. If we are them for? I can tell you that too! really being watched, it must be by He has concocted a marvellous scheme, persons in the pay of the Russian. and if he is left to himself for another | But they can do nothing; it is too hour or two, he will succeed. But I late; Knigenstein will be here in half have no fear; I have set working a an hour. The thing will be settled mightier machinery than ever he can | then, once and forever."

They had walked together into the smoke-room; Felix seemed somewhat "Strange men this end and that end shaken, and was glad to rest for a few | of street. Me no like it. Ah!

guitly of any crime?" Wolfenden ask- though some one had but feebly touched; "he is daring enough!"

ing a cigarette, but his hand trembled was something almost ominous in so that he could scarcely hold the that gentle peal.

"A further reaching arm than the Mr. Sabin said. "It may be Knigenlaw," he said, dropping his voice; stein come early; if so, show him in "more powerful than governments. at once. To everybody else the Even by this time his whereabouts are house is empty. known. If we are only in time; that | Foo Cha bowed silently and with-

is the only fear." asked, "something of this wonderful lamp. Then he opened the door causcheme of his-why he was so anxious | tiously. to get those papers and drawings | One man alone was standing there. short. from my father-to what purpose can | Foo Cha looked at him in despair; it | "You very nearly," he said, sol-

he possibly put them?" Felix hesitated. ever. Mr. Sabin is the Duc de Souspen- hands in his pockets. erica, one subject only, for three a mountain. ships and fortifications by electri- ed. part of typist to your father, whom man." he knew to be the greatest living nected with your country. Every line Sabin, until by some means your fath | Sabin."

landing of troops on the east and fingers. There seemed to be one or two lieved to have found him. south coast, at certain selected spots. words upon it, traced in a delicate, This scheme, together with some very | sloping handwriting. Mr. Sabin had alarming secret information affecting snatched at the little piece of pastethe great majority of your battle- board with some impatience, but the I am overwhelmed with work of the ships, will, he asserts with absolute moment he had read those few words utmost importance. You have finconfidence, place your country at the a remarkable change came over him. ished now, I hope. You are ready for mercy of any power to whom he He started as though he had received me?" chooses to sell it. He offered it to an electric shock; the pupils of his "I am as ready for you." Mr. Sab-Russia first, and then to Germany. eyes seemed hideously dilated; the in said, grimly, "as I ever shall be!"

thing as this was not possible. Yet even that short silence was broken by the cry of the newsboys out in the street-

"Germany Arming! Reported Declaration of War!" CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The Men Who Saved England. Mr. Sabin leaned back in his chair are not often misinformed." with a long, deep sigh of content. destined always to play the part of The labor of years was concluded at "is perfectly correct." last. With that final little sketch They both went with him into the his work was done. A pile of manu- matter," the stranger continued, "and out like knotted string; his mouth scripts and charts lay before him: I am here to acquaint you with our | twitched as he spoke; he could not everything was in order. He took a decision. The papers are to be burnt. | control himself. when he had sponged his face, "whom | bill of lading from his letter-case, and | and the appliances to be destroyed pinned it carefully to the rest. Then forthwith. No portion of them is to he cried. "Very well. Russia has he glanced at his watch, and, taking be shown to the German Government | bought you! Very well. If Lobenski

> Mr. Sabin, who had recognized the in two months. approaching footsteps, glanced up carelessly.

The Chinaman glided to his side. "Master," he said softly, "I have fears. There is something not good He realized once more the full glory show yourself. If one fails, there was shown in

Mr. Sabin turned sharply round. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"Master, I was followed from the house of the German by a man, who coloring of Imperialism firing the drove fast after me in a two-wheeled | imagination of her children, draw-Wolfenden hesitated; yet why not cab. He lost me on the way, but ing all hearts back to their allegithe street, and I am sure of it. The of materialism which had spread like "He forced himself into my father's house is being watched on all sides."

"We are not in China, Foo Cha," he "Do you want to know what they said. "I have done nothing against Foo Cha was troubled still. "Me afraid," he admitted frankly.

The front door bell rang softly; it "Has he outstepped the law, been was a timid, hesitating ring, as ed the nob. Foo Cha and his master Felix laughed shortly. He was light- looked at one another in silence. There

"You must see who it is, Foo Cha,' drew. He struck a match in the dark "Cannot you tell us," Wolfenden passage, and lit the hanging gas-who has played many strange parts ed. "What you want with me?" in European history. Amongst other The man did not answer at once, gain one day we lose the next. It is of his accomplishments, he is a me- but he stepped inside into the passage. fate, it is life. Once more, friend, rechanical and strategical genius. Foo Cha tried to shut the door in his member! Farewell!" He has studied under Addison in Am- face, but it was like pushing against father on Tuesday morning. Now, "Master," he said, "there is a man muffled up to the chin with a what he professes broadly is that he | there whom we cannot stop. When me | handkerchief, was shown into has elaborated a scheme, by means | tell him you no here, he laugh at me. | room. of which, combined with the ald of He will see you; he no go way. He and leave London at the mercy of any | what on it." plans include the absolutely safe and took the card from the Chinaman's ity, and was evidently much re-Germany has accepted his terms and usual pallor of his face was merged "What do you mean?" Knigenwill declare war upon England the in a ghastly whiteness. And then, af stein asked sharply. "Don't tell me moment she has his whole scheme ter the first shock, came a look of that anything has gone amiss! I am and inventions in her possession," deep and utter despair; his hand fell a ruined man, unless you carry out wollenden and Densham Rocket as to as side; a man-muttered imprecaone another, partly incredulous, partity aghast. It was like a page from the laid the card gently, even with the Arablan Nights. Surely such a reverence, upon the desk before him.

The Heart of the Princess.

The Heart of the Princess.

When word upon your honor."

Pembroke ... ... ...

The Heart of the Princess.

When Wolfenden opened his paper on all the mischief they do.—Rochefoular and the mischief they do.—Roc

"You can show him in, Foo Cha," he directed, in a low tone; "show him through his yellow, protuberant teeth | Europe. are blown sky high! That like a hiss. A single stroke of that long | is the position. Knigenstein; we are knife-it would be so easy. Then he re- undone!" membered the respect with which Mr. Sabin had treated that card, and he sighed. Perhaps it would be a mistake: bin's arm. and gripped it fiercely. it might make evil worse. He beckoned to the stranger, and conducted him

ing. He was still very pale, but his be dismissed and banished. I have face had resumed its wonted impass-iveness. In the dim lamp-ilt room he cannot mean to play me false like could see very little of his visitor, only this. If there is any personal favor a thick-set man with dark eyes and a or reward. which the Emperor can closely-cropped black beard. He was grant, it is yours-I will answer for roughly dressed, yet held himself it. I will answer for it. too, that well. The two men eyed one another, war shall be declared against steadily for several moments, before any speech passed between them.

"You are surprised." the stranger said; "I do not wonder at it. Perhaps-you have been much engrossed. it is said-you had even forgotten." Mr. Sabin's lips curled in a bitter

"One does not forget those things," he said. "To business. Let me know what is required of me."

"It has been reported." stranger said. "that you have conceived and brought to great perfection a comprehensive and infallible scheme for the conquest of this country. Further, that you are on the point of handing it over to the Emperor of Germany, for the use of that country. I think I may conclude | can. that the report is correct?" he added. with a glance at the table. "We

"The report," Mr. Sabin assented, "We have taken counsel upon a cigarette-case from his pocket, be or any person representing that coun. has bribed you with all the gold in

Mr Sabin stood quite still, his wronged our country-our Fatherhands resting lightly upon the desk | land! Listen! A word shall "What is it, Foo Cha? I told you in front of him. His eyes, fixed on breathed in the ears of a handful that I would ring when I wanted vacancy, were looking far out of of our officers. Where you go. they that shabby, little room, back along shall go; if you leave England you the avenues of time, thronged with will be struck on the cheek in the of his daring and ambitous scheme. are others-hundreds, thousands, an He saw his country revelling again army! Oh. you shall not escape, my in her old splendor, stretching out Foo Cha was apologetic but seri- her limbs, and taking once more the foremost place among her sister nations. He saw the pageantry and rich an evil dream through the land. He saw himself great and revered. the patriot, the Richelieu of his days, the adored of the people, the friend and restorer of his king. Once more he was a figure in European history. the consort of Emperors, the man whose slightest word could shake the money markets of the world. He saw all these things, as though for the last time, with strange, unreal vivid- earth." he said, "than the hand of ness; once more their full glory warm- his Imperial Majesty the Emperor ed his blood, and dazzled his eyes. of Germany." Then a flash of memory, an effort of realization chilled him; his feet were upon the earth again, his head you know little of these things; yet was heavy. That thick-set, motionless figure before him seemed like the I suppose you have some knowledge incarnation of his despair. "I shall appeal," he said, hoarsely; 'England is no friend of ours.' The man shrugged his shoulders. "England is tolerant at least," he said; "and she has sheltered us."

"I shall appeal," Mr. Sabin repeated. The man shook his head. "It is the order of the High Couneil," he said, "there is no appeal." "It is my life's work," Mr. Sabin faltered. "Your life's work," the man said, slowly, "should be with us." "God knows why I ever-"

The man stretched out a white hand, which gleamed through the semi-darkness. Mr. Sabin stopped was certainly not Knigenstein, nor emuly, "pronounced your own deathwas there any sign of his carriage sentence. If you had finished what "Well," he said, "why not? You in the street. The stranger was you were about to say, I could never have a right to know. Understand a man of middle height, squarely built have saved you. Be wise, friend. This that I myself have only the barest and stout. He wore a long black is a disappointment to you; well, is outline of it : I will tell you this, how- overcoat, and he stood with his not our life one long, torturing disappointment? What of us, indeed? We nier, a Frenchman of fabulous wealth, "What you want?" Foo Cha ask- are like the waves which beat ceaselessly against the sea-shore, what we

Mr. Sabin was left alone, a martyr years—the destruction of war. "Where is your master?" he ask to his thoughts. Already it was past everything. As a matter of fact, the hour for Knigenstein's visit. | they have saved England!" eral world. Then he came to Eng- answered, with glib and untruthful storm, or should be catch the boat- groaned. "I must go and telegraph, ticularly susceptible to tubercular Huntingdonshire. 55,015 land, and collected a vast amount of earnestness. "Indeed he is not here- train from Charing Cross and has But, Souspennier, one word. information concerning your navy and | quite true. He come to-morrow. I pre- ten to hide himself in one of the most coast defences in many different ways paring house for him. What do you remote quarters of the civilized set of drawings, of no fewer than fast gaze, and he was silent. The stein's disgrace. And then the luxury fully carry out our part of the contwenty-seven of England's finest ves- stranger was dressed in the garb of a of choice was suddenly denied him; tract. and the whole glory shall be sels, every one of which has a large superior working man, but his speech he was brought back to the present. yours. You will be immortalized; you proportion of defective armor plat- and manner indicated a very different and a sense of its paramount embar- will win fame that shall be deathing, which would render the vessels station. Foo Cha took the card and rassments by a pealing ring at the utterly useless in case of war. These left him in the passage. He made his bell, and the trampling of horse's feet in the heart of your country's hisdrawings show the exact position of way softly into the sitting-room, and in the street. He had no time to re- tory." the defective plates, and it was to as he entered he turned the key in scind his previous instructions to Foo secure these illustrations that Mr. the lock behind him; there, at any Cha before Knigenstein himself, wrap-Sabin paid that daring visit to your rate, was a moment or two of respite. ped in a great sealskin coat, and

The Ambassador's usually phleghis inventions, a few torpedo boats laugh again when I try shut the door. matic face bore traces of some anxcan silence every fort in the Thames. He give me card; I no understand liety. Behind his spectacles his eyes invaders. At the same time his Mr. Sabin stretched out his hand Sabin's hand with unwonted cordial-

'My dear Souspennier," "this is a great occasion. I am a little late, but as you can imagine, a very tight place! I am bound hand and foot. There," he cried, pointing to the grate, half choked Foo Cha glided out disappointed with a pile of quivering grey ashes. Something had gone terribly wrong. "lies the work of seven years of he was sure of that. He went slowly my life-seven years of intrigue. of downstairs, his eyes fixed upon the calculation, of unceasing toil. By dark figure standing motionless in the this time all my American invendimly-lit hall. He drew a sharp breath | tions, which would have paralyzed Knigenstein was shaking like a child; he laid his hand upon Mr. Sa-"Souspennier." he said, "If you are speaking the truth I am ruined, and disgraced forever. The Em-Mr. Sabin received his visitor stand- peror will never forgive me! I shall > France within six months of the conclusion of peace with England. Come, say that you have been jesting. Good God! Man. you are torturing me. Why, have you seen the papers to-night? The Emperor has been hasty. I own, but he has already struck the first blow. War is as good as declared. I am waiting > for my papers every hour." "I cannot help it." Mr. Sabin said, doggedly. "The thing is at an end. To give up all the fruits of my work-the labor of the best years of my life-is as bitter to me as your dilemma is to you! But it is inevitable! Be a man. Knigenstein; put the best face on it you

The utter impotence of all that he could say was suddenly revealed to Knigenstein in Mr. Sabin's set face and hopeless words. His tone of entreaty changed to one of anthe ger; the veins on his forehead stood of his letters. Then he began to open cers, now permit the publication of "You have made up your mind!" try, nor to any other Power. Fur Christendom you shall never enjoy There was a knock at the door, and ther. you are to leave England with it! You shall not live a year! I swear it! You have insulted and friend! But if ever you dare to set foot in Germany "--"I can assure you." Mr. Sabin in- tonhole. terrupted. "that I shall take particular care never to visit your delightful country. Elsewhere, I think I can take care of myself. But listen. Knigenstein! All your talk about Russia and playing you false is absurd. If I had wished to deal with son who saved your country! And I Lobenski, I could have done so, instead of with you. I have not even la Maux, Duc de Souspennier!" seen him. A greater hand than his has stopped me. a greater even than the hand of your Emperor!" Knigenstein looked at him as one looks at a madman. "There is no greater hand on

Mr. Sabin smiled. "You are a German." he said, "and you call yourself a diplomatist, and of what this means.'

He lifted the lamp from the table and walked to the wall opposite to the door. Knigenstein followed him closely. Before them, high up as the fingers of a man could reach. was a small, irregular red patchsomething between a cross and a star. Mr. Sabin held the lamp high over his head, and pointed to the mark.

"Do you know what that means?" he asked. The man by his side groaned. "Yes." he answered, with a gesture of abject despair, "I know."

ble, and set down the lamp. "You know now," he said, coolly, "who has intervened." "If I had had any idea." Knigen- questionable amusements and stein said, "that you were one of tual vice. If one were anxious to them. I should not have treated prepare his system for the germs

"It was many years ago." Mr. Sabin said. with a sigh. "My father was half a Russian, you know. It germs do not fasten themselves Chester ..... ... served my purpose whilst I was envoy at Teheran; since then I had lost sight of them. I thought that they, too, had lost sight of me. 1 was mistaken-only an hour ago I was visited by a chief official. They knew everything; they forbade

"And ruined us," Knigenstein

"You are a brave man and a pat--finally he sent a girl to play the want? Go away, or me call police- world? In any case, it was a dreary riot; you want to see your counoutlook for him. Not only had this try free. Well, why not free it The intruder smiled indulgently into dearly cherished scheme of his come still? You and I are philosophers, authority upon all naval matters con- the Chinaman's earnest, upturned face. crashing about his head, but he had we know that life after all is an "Foo Cha," he said, "that is enough. very seriously compromised himself uncertain thing. Hold to your barhe wrote was copied and sent to Mr. Take this card to your master, Mr. with a great country. The Emperor's gain with us. It will be to your gracious letter was in his pocket. He death. I do not deny that. But I er's suspicions were aroused, and the Foo Cha was ready to begin another smiled grimly to himself, as he will pledge the honor of my coungirl was dismissed. The last portion torrent of expostulations, but in the thought for a moment of the con try. I will give you the holy word of your father's work consisted of a gaslight he met the newcomer's stead- sternation of Berlin, and of Knigen of the Emperor. that we will faith-

Mr. Sabin shook his head slowly. "My dear Knigenstein." he said, 'pray don't misunderstand me. I do not cast the slightest reflection upon your Emperor or your honor. But if ever there was a country which required watching, it is yours. I could

CHAPTER XXXIX.

FRAGRANT OZODONT

for the TEETH and BREATH

New Size SOZODONT LIQUID New Patent Box SOZOBONT POWDER . Large LIQUID and POWDER . . . At the Stores or by Mail, postpaid, for the Price.

A Dentist's Opinion: "As an antiseptic and hygienic mouthwash, and for the care and preservation of the teeth and gums, I cordially recommend Sozodont. I consider it the ideal dentifrice for children's use." [Name of writer upon application.]

HALL & RUCKEL, MONTREAL.

ready drawn a great breath, partly of relief, partly of surprise, for the black head-lines which topped the columns of the papers, the placards in the streets, and the cry of the newsboys, all declared a most remarkable change in the political situation. "The German Emperor Explains! There Will Be No War! German Consul Ordered Home! No Rupture!"

Wolfenden, in common with most of his fellow-countrymen, could scarcely believe his eyes; yet there it was in plain black and white. The dogs of war had been called back. Germany General has given out the following was climbing down-not with dignity statement from the census office: she had gone too far for that-but paper through before he even thought received from the local census offithem slowly. The first was from his the figures for the administrative He turned to the next one; it was in a returns of London and the county delicate, foreign handwriting, and ex- boroughs, having already been given, haled a faint perfume which seemed the data for a statement as to the vaguely familiar to him. He opened it, gross total population are at hand. and his heart stood still.

"14. Grosvenor Square. · "London, W. "Will you come and see me to-day turns as affecting urban and rural about four o'clock ?-Helene." He looked at his watch-four o'clock liminary report, but the following seemed a very long way off. He de- comparative figures may be deemed cided that he would go out and find of immediate interest: Felix; but almost immediately the the fragments of his broken dreams. first public place at which you door was opened and that very person May 31st, 1901 ..... 32,525,716 Felix was radiant; he appeared to have grown years younger. was immaculately dressed, and he Wolfenden greeted him warmly.

"Have you seen the paper ?" he asked. "Do you know the news?" Felix laughed. "Of course! You may not believe it, but it is true that I am the peram quits at last with Herbert de "Meaning, I suppose, the person whom we have been accustomed to call-Mr. Sabin?" Wolfenden remark-" Exactly !" Wolfenden pushed an easy chair towards his visitor and produced some cigarettes. "I must say," he continued, "that should exceedingly like to know how the thing was done.' Felix smiled. (To be Continued.)

CONSUMPTION'S CAUSES.

Dissipation is a Sort of Feeder to the Disease. It was Joseph Cooke who said that "dissipated" meant "dizzypated," which was his way of emphasizing an important hygienic truth. To weaken one's system through any form of dissipation is Administrative Counties-Populationpractically suicide. It is difficult enough to sustain good health with (The figures of 1901 are unrevised.) the best of care; yet many people England and 1891. 1901. keep very late hours, deny themselves adequate rest, gorge them 62 Administra-Mr. Sabin walked back to the ta- selves with indigestible food, poison tive Counties 29,935,597 23,386,526 their systems with spirituous drinks 67 County Borand destroy their physical vitality oughs ... ... 8,066,928 9,139,190 through participation in all sorts of of tuberculosis or consumption, it Buckinghamshire. 186,680 would be difficult for him to select | Cambridgeshire ... 120,645 a more direct method. The disease readily upon healthy organs, espe. Cornwall . cially when they are supported by Cumberland ... ... 266,549 pure and strong blood, but they Derbyshire ..... 425,472 make disastrous inroads upon weak- Devonshire ... .... 442,287 ened organisms when the system is, Dorsetshire .... 193,542 for any reason, in an enfeebled Durham ...... 720,793 condition. Alcoholism is responsible Essex ..... 578,471 for predisposing a great many cases Gloucestershire ... 323,980 to pulmonary consumption. Even the Herefordshire .... 115,762 children of alcoholic parents are par- Hertfordshire .... 226,587 forms of dissipation become ex- Lancaster ... ... 1,564,696 ceedingly careless as to their per- Leicestershire .... 201,639 sonal habits, particularly with re- Lincolnshireference to cleanliness. This condition makes them doubly susceptible and at the same time highly dangerous to those with whom they come in contact. Dissipation means weak ness, weakness means disease, and disease means death. A note of warning cannot be sounded too loudly or too long to this generation to abstain from weakening the body and thus gvoid becoming the victims of

"The White Plague." A BOOK FOR MOTHERS.

Containing Much Information as the Care of Children, and the Treatment of Ills That Commonly Afflict Little Ones-

Given Free. "Baby's Battles; A Message for not carry your pledges with me into Mothers,' is the title of a very handoblivion, and there is no one to whom some little pamphlet just issued by I could leave the legacy. That being the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company. the case, I think that I prefer to live." It is devoted entirely to the care Knigenstein buttoned up his coat of infants and small children and tells the mother how to aid her lit-"I am a ruined man, Souspennier," the ones in the emergencies of every he said, "but I bear you no malice. Let day life. It describes the ills that me leave you a little word of warning, commonly afflict children, and tells though. The Nihilists are not the only how to treat them. This little book people in the world who have the cour- is one that should be in every home age and the wit to avenge themselves. where there are infants or small Brecknock ... children. All mothers who send their | Cardigan ... Mr. Sabin broke into a queer little name and address on a post card to Carmarthen laugh as he listened to his guest's de- the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company. | Carnarvon ... ... 117,586 parting footsteps. Then he lit a cigar- Brockville, Ont., will receive a copy Denbigh ... ... ... 118,979 ette, and called to Foo Cha for some of this book free of charge. Mention Flint ... ... ... ... 77,041 this paper when writing.

Few men are so clever as to know | Montgomery ... ... 58,003

Increase of Last Decade Was 12.15 Per Cent.

London Cable Report-Registrar-

The unrevised summary returns, as mother. The Admiral was distinctly counties of England and Wales. The

> This amounts to 32,525,716. A detailed examination of these reareas must be reserved for the pre-

Population. April 6th, 1891 ...... 29,002,525 April 4th, 1881 ..... 25,974,439 wore an exquisite orchid in his but- From 1891 to 1901 ..... 3,523,191 From 1881 to 1891 .....

Increase per cent. during intercensal period, 1891 to 1901 ..... .... ... Increase per cent, during intercensal period, 1881 11.65 to 1891 ..... .... ...

The increase per cent., therefore, over the whole of England and Wales since 1891 has been greater by % per cent. than during the previous decennium. This may also be illustrated by the following comparison: Ascertained population on March 31st ..... Population as estimated by the Registrar General on the same day on the basis of increase in the previous decade 32,356,731

Excess ..... ..... .... The total population is made up as follows, the figures for certain county boroughs, as given on the 4th inst, having been revised: County of London ... .. 4,536,034 Administrative Other Counties ... ... ... 18,850,492 County Boroughs ..... 9,139,190 in 1891 and 1901. Wales ... ... 29,002,525 32,525,716

England.

Isle of Ely ... ... 63,340 601,042 114,150 258,044

1.827,330 Kesteven ... ... 105,362 4.586.034 Northamptonshire, 189,218 Soke of Peterboro. 35,249 Northumberland, 319,730 274,688 Nottinghamshire, 231,745 Oxfordshire ... 143,753 137,118 19,708 20,659 Rutlandshire ..... 239,297 236,827 Shropshire ..... Somersetshire ... 378,166 385,059 Southampton ... ... 334,194 377,121 Lele of Wight ... 78,672 82,387 819.625 117,585 519,522

Staffordehire ... ... 771,258 Suffolk - Eastern 184,405 Suffolk -Western 121,350 Surrey ... ... ... 419,115 Sussex-Eastern... 227,699 261,691 Suesex-Western., 140,987 151,546 301,412 347,693 Warwickehire ..... 64.411 Westmoreland ..... 66,215 262,551 271,372 Wiltshire ... ... 297,389 Worcestershire ... Yorkehire-..... 141,180 N. Riding ... 284,015 W. Riding ... ......1,294,428 1,460,857

Waies. Anglesey ... 135,320 125,654 131,588 81,487 Glamorgan ... ... 467,954 48,786

ONTARIO ARCHIVES TORONTO