One of the most remarkable but least noticed facts in connection with the war in the Transvaal is the extreme youth of a large part of General De Wet's army. When hostilities broke out almost every grown man enlisted, eyen the enfeebled, but the pace has been too rapid for the venerable burghers. As they were killed or incapacitated their places have gradually been taken by mere school-children, many only thirteen or fourteen years of age. Under the title of "The Youngest Soldiers in the World," in the June Cosmo-POLITAN ALLEN SANGREE throws more light on the make-up and life of General De Wet's commandoes than anything hitherto published. The native, simple letter from fourteen-year-old Deneys Reitz to his father, the Secretary of State of the Transvaal Republic, has seldom been qualled for vital interest by any carefully written article on the war,

Whenever you hear of a girl marrying a man old enough to be her grandfather, you may know she spells her name "Edythe," or Alyse."
