HOPEVILLE DEMONSTRATION

PASSED OFF WITHOUT A HITCH

Splendid Speaking.

Tuesday of this week the little hamlet of Hopeville was honored by the presence of two members of the Ontario ministry who were there to meet the electors of that part of South Grey to discuss the public questions of the day, the handling of which in whatever manner forms the record of the government. This task, or rather duty, is also felt to be a privilege, for certainly seldom if ever, had a ministry so much to fall back upon in excellence of administration as ever a lengthened tenure of office than has the Liberal ministry of Ontario.

Hopeville is a pleasantly situated village at a "four corners" three miles from the western boundary of Proton and about 5 miles from the northern boundary. It contains a few stores, blacksmith shop, Post office, Saw Mill, etc., and is surrounded by a level country, whose well kept farms and trim and regular fields are looking their best in summer productivity and beauty, though the cold, wet spring has interfered somewhat with vegetation. The bush was a thing of beauty, no caterpillars to annoy though mosquitoes were in evidence. Platform and seating arrangements were good though the latter proved too ample for the crowd present which could not be called a large one, though quite representative of Proton and Egremont as well as South Glenelg and Artemesia.

The Chair was pleasantly filled by Mr. Gillespie, and on the platform were Mr. Binnie, candidate of the Reform party, Hon. J. M. Gibson, Attorney General, Hon. F. R. Latchford, Minister of Public Works, and Geo. P. Graham, M. P., Brockville. After a few appropriate words from the chairman Mr. Binnie was called upon and made a brief address touching on the record of the government, especially in its management of the finances, and on the character of the grants now being given by the government, in which the power is retained to assume control themselves. He was pleased to find organization proceeding smoothly and urged all to attend to this important matter. He thanked them all for the warm reception he had received since becoming the candidate of the Reform party, and was convinced the Riding would again send a supporter of the wise and progressive Ross government.

Mr. Gibson followed and made a few congratulatory words to place and people. He was pleased to meet so many at a time when no campaign was on hand, no excitement, and so forth. He and his colleagues were there for their own good, as well as the people's. They had been blamed for hanging round their departments, so now they were getting in touch with the people, who in charge of provincial interests, they were simply giving an account of their stewardship, and were willing to stand or fall by their record. He got in fine touch with the older part of his audience by relating his own experience as a farm boy developing into an ox driver with a V-drag, and latterly taking a dash at college life in intervals of harvesting, etc. It seems that every member of the ministry but one began his life work on an Ontario farm, surely a fitting qualification in a ministry placed over an Agricultural province.

He paid a warm tribute to Premier Ross, who in whatever sphere, was determined to accomplish something. As Min. of Education, he pushed ahead where some were afraid to follow, yet the results had justified his push. As Premier he soon announced an important forward policy—the development of New Ontario. Here Mr. G. entered on a comparison of size of New Ontario with the countries of Europe, which, as is well known, makes a startling showing. Not only the land territory and its extent was valuable, but the water stretches to the north were teeming with fish and were capable of supporting a large industrial population, and all tributary to Ontario.

New Ontario was said to contain 20 million acres of fertile land, tests have been made, explorers have reported valuable land at a latitude much further south than some productive lands further west.

It was Mr. Ross' policy to develop this country, hence his purpose to make the James Bay railway a government enterprise, a beaten track from old to New Ontario. This is what Mr. Whitney scoffs at! but what he and the few others who profess to think like him, will have a chance to see confirmed before long.

At the Sault and northern shore of L. Superior too, development was taking place. In the past 6 or 7 yrs immense strides have been taken in conjunction with private enterprise to develop the mineral and other areas of which Sir John Macdonald once declared that not one stick of timber nor ounce of ore should ever belong to Ontario.

The mineral development in 11 years was outlined, the rise of the nickel industry, the pulp industry, &c. He dilated eloquently on the possibilities yet before the province, of the vast wealth yet available to Ontario, rendering far away, if ever, the possibility of direct taxation, though for several elections this had been the parrot cry of their opponents.

Referring to Mr. Whitney's charges to the W. Elgin and N. Waterloo election irregularities, "crimes if you like," he indignantly repelled the insinuation that the government or any accredited agent thereof had been shown to be in the least implicated. He looked to the next election with confidence and trusted they would do their whole duty and return Mr. Binnie who would worthily represent them and support the present progressive administration.

Mr. Latchford opened with expressions of delight at his trip to Hopeville and pleasure at meeting so many electors of South Grey. Referring to New Ontario he begged them always to remember that this splendid patrimony belonged to Ontario by virtue of the fight made by Sir Oliver Mowat against the friends of Mr. Whitney in power at that time in Ottawa. He recalled the scandals of the time when timber limits were dealt out to "friends" at $5 a square mile! Now timber limits were sold by auction at most remunerative prices, over a million a year being derived from this source.

Speaking of the Succession Duty Tax, he held that it was only fair that large fortunes made by making use of some public utility should in part be returned to the people. Mr. Whitney was opposed to this tax as he was to that imposed by the government on insurance companies and other corporations though at the same time being illegal enough to denounce the government, as being the friends of the Monopolist! Mr. Whitney condemned our taxation, our expenditure but never said just where he would make a change. His financial policy was a little of a paradox for, 1st—He would collect less, 2nd—He would spend more, and strangely would save more, and Mr. L's graphic way of putting it drew the laughter of the crowd.

Referring to the surplus he noted the fact that right to prove its non-existence was now given up. How could it continue when the tangibility of the surplus was shown in one fact alone that one million dollars was to be spent on the roads of the province. At no point were the opposition strong, for even Mr. Marter the former leader could not agree with Mr. Whitney the present one, especially on the grant to the Algoma railway which Mr. Whitney opposed in 1900 but allowed a similar grant to pass in 1901 without protest.

While having no quarrel with Dr. Jamison personally he urged a warm support of Mr. Binnie so truly representative of the yeomanry of the country, with so much municipal experience and such a wide grasp of public questions.

Mr. Graham followed and opened with a facetious wit to the ladies. He knew they were tired and he was glad of it, which cruel remark he justified by reminding them they often made the men tired, when they couldn't sleep. In answer to a question he said not a fraction of a cent had been added to any insur. policy by the insurance policy of the government. On the contrary policy holders and others had been benefited by the tax laid on the larger insurance companies whose profits were known to be large.

He scored some good points for the government by showing how they had succeeded in taxing street railways and such like corporations as "going concerns," as a whole, instead of at a cran iron value, the explosion of the Conservative party at past elections were humorously but effectively shown up, and in relation to their demands that the Agricultural College should be a revenue producing institution he asked the same fair play as was freely meted to the other schools of the country from none of which direct financial returns were ever expected. The college spends thousands in experimenting for the good of the whole, and leads in expensive work which no single farmer dare try, but by which all farmers are benefited.

The class of bacon now produced was given as an instance of improvement by the College, the travelling dairy was the first inspiration to improved methods of home and factory dairying, by which Canadian butter was fast coming to the front, and for much of improvement in this line credit must be given to Hon. John Dryden who patiently worked to the success now observable.

He dealt effectively with Mr. Whitney's desire to "round up" the school system, although he, Mr. Whitney, never says where he would touch it. Mr. Graham entered into figures to show, that each branch of the educational tree was being duly attended to, and that the grants to the public school had been growing relatively larger than the other.

Mr. Graham touched in trenchant style on many other points we have not space to note. It was a day of splendid speaking. The Ministers present their case clearly and effectively, Mr. Gibson's apologies for a rambling speech being quite unnecessary. The work they are doing will, without doubt, confirm the country in the belief it is now possessed of, that the Ross government is doing more for Ontario than any possible combination of their opponents could approach to. Mr. Graham, as we said last week, was a valuable auxiliary. He has a taking platform manner with a fund of humor that stands him in good stead.

All the speakers referred feelingly to the serious illness of Hon. Mr. Hardy, who was at the point of death.

Mr. Binnie and the visitors left for Holstein about 6 p. m., and held a successful meeting in the Agricultural Hall, which was well filled for the occasion. Mr. Robt. Morice acted as Chairman, and the same speakers held forth.

South Grey has lost population since the last census by considerably over 1000. This experience is likely to be common in the purely rural districts; Owen Sound we would imagine being the only municipality showing much growth. Durham it is satisfactory to know has gone forward and is likely to keep a-going. The County of Bruce has lost so much that some think it will only be entitled to two members at next redistribution. The exact figures have not been issued from Ottawa yet.
