Talmage Advises People to Stand Clear Of It and Invest Their Money in Mortgage

Washington report— In this discourse Dr. Talmage arraigns the spirit of wild speculation and gives some account of the financial ruin of other days.

Stocks rose and fell, and now they begin to rise again, and thousands will fall again until thousands of young men will be ruined unless the printing press and the pulpit give emphatic utterance.

Across the island of New York in 1684 a wall made of stone and earth and cannon mounted, was built to keep off the savages.

But while that street is a type of a type of unbounded avarice.

It is one of the greatest curses? An old magazine of those days describes the scene (Hunt's Magazine). It says: "From morning until evening 'change alley was full of overflowing with one dense, moving mass of living beings, composed of the incongruous materials and in all things save the mad pursuit whereof they were employed utterly opposite in their principles and feelings and far asunder in their stations in life and the professions they follow."

Let me say it is no place for a man to go into business unless his moral principle is thoroughly settled. That is no place for a man to go into business who does not know whether he had better take it back or not.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON NO. XIII JUNE 30, 1901.

Review.—I Cor. 15: 12-26

Summary.—Lesson I. Topic: The risen Christ. Place: At and near Calvary. Christ was crucified on Friday, April 7th; rose early Sunday morning, April 9th; several women were early at the tomb; the stone was rolled away; the women entered the sepulchre; Christ was not there; two angels appeared in the form of men; their faces were like lightning; and their garments were dazzling; the women were afraid; the angels told them Christ had risen; they go to tell the disciples, who cannot believe; Peter and John run to the tomb.

Lesson II. Topic: Christ's love manifested in His careful instruction to His disciples on leaving them. He gave them new ability and spiritual insight into the Scriptures. He directed them to them the golden thread running through the entire Scriptures, which revealed Christ as the expected Saviour of men from the beginning. Hence they were enabled to grasp the sense of His former teaching and connect it with the written Scriptures.

Lesson XXX. Topic: Christ's love manifested in His careful instruction to His disciples on leaving them. He gave them new ability and spiritual insight into the Scriptures. He directed them to them the golden thread running through the entire Scriptures, which revealed Christ as the expected Saviour of men from the beginning.

"The resurrection was a crowning victory to Jesus Himself. It set a seal to the truth of all His teachings, both of Himself and to others, as well as all His works. The resurrection was a time of gladness to the disciples of Jesus, and it is the true comfort of all believers."

II. During the time Jesus was in the tomb the disciples must have been greatly discouraged. Jesus had told them of His death and resurrection, but they did not comprehend His words. Nothing could dispel the gloom which actually seized His face and knowing that He was alive. His first appearance to Mary Magdalene filled her with grief.

III. Christ's love was manifested in His careful instruction to His disciples on leaving them. He gave them new ability and spiritual insight into the Scriptures. He directed them to them the golden thread running through the entire Scriptures, which revealed Christ as the expected Saviour of men from the beginning.

IV. Christ appeared to His disciples when they were assembled on the evening of the resurrection day. He also then on week later. He quieted their fears and banished all their doubts. They saw His feet and hands, and were permitted to put their hands upon Him. Even the one who had the greatest unbelief was satisfied that the resurrection was a fact.

V. "Christ loved His tolling disciples and brought them temporal success and thus was revealed to them as they brought in the great draught of fishes. Through their natural sense He drew them on to know Him as the Messiah. He taught them of spiritual labor in reaching men's souls and bringing them to Christ."

VI. The great commission. Jesus always keeps His promises. He told the disciples He would meet them in Galilee. He was there. He has promised to meet with His people when they assemble in His name. Jesus should be worshipped. We are not in a position to receive a commission from Christ, or to help others, until we are true worshippers ourselves.

VII. "The ascension of Jesus did not throw over the apostles the shadow of gloom. He was not in His crucifixion. He ascended a living Saviour, leaving them assured that they were not to live without His care, but should be assisted by the Holy Ghost to carry out His commands. Before their eyes were turned from gazing upward toward heaven the angel messengers brought a sweet message of hope and comfort, declaring that Jesus should return in like manner as He went, not changed, but as they last saw Him."

VIII. It is possible for the soul to be fully imbued with the divine nature, bearing in all its manifestations some plain resemblance to his God, conveying to all on whom it acts some impression of Him mounting heavenward in all its movements, and harmoniously pouring forth from all its faculties the praises of the Lord.

IX. Christ our high priest. 1. His first great work was to provide a proper sacrifice for sin. This He did by giving Himself. His was a perfect offering, exceeding infinitely greater, grander and nobler than the sacrifices offered under the Levitical priesthood. The blood of bulls and goats was not precious, but Christ's blood was precious. There was no power in those sacrifices to save the soul or cleanse from sin, but there is efficacy in all power in the blood of Christ to do both. These sacrifices were for a small nation, Christ's is for the whole world.

X. Paul's conversion. First, God brought him low. He was persecuting Jesus with madness, seeking to exterminate His name. His word and His Church. He was arrested and his strength and sight taken from him. God humbled and subdued him. Then it was that he could turn his eyes upon his own heart and see his own wickedness now, in order to bring Paul into fellowship with the followers of Christ, a humble disciple, whose very life he had so recently been seeking, was sent to open to him the kingdom of God.

XI. Christ tells of a new heaven, a new earth, and a new city on that new earth, whatever may be meant—these are all before us. Paul had a glimpse of the third heaven, but was not permitted to enter, as he saw John, by means of strong figurative language, undertaken to give us an idea of the glory that awaits the finally faithful.

WHOLESALE LYNCHING. Tartar Village Obliterated and Its Inhabitants Slain. Vienna cable says: The Volksblatt publishes a message from St. Petersburg giving an account of a fearful act of lynch justice.

The Tartar inhabitants of the village of Irbelak, on the River Yenisei, had for a long time made themselves a name by the people of the neighboring district.

The latter finally lost their patience, and arming themselves with huge sticks, axes, farm implements, and similar weapons, proceeded to avenge themselves on the Tartars of Irbelak.

They lynched the whole population of Irbelak, men, women, and children alike, and threw the bodies into the Yenisei. Afterwards they destroyed the entire village, and burnt all the wreckage. The place was, in fact, wiped off the face of the earth.

The Russian authorities were subsequently able to arrest over 100 persons who had taken part in the terrible act of vengeance.

PRACTICAL SURVEY. Lesson I. The empty grave was the boundary line between the old dispensation and the new. "The sublimest expectations of the Old Testament were now fulfilled in the resurrection of Jesus. In the world He stange conqueror of sin and death,

Trade at Montreal has been quiet the past week in particular, a larger movement in dairy sections and an expansion in the money circulation in those parts of the Province which have brought about some improvement in remittances. There is a good demand for money and rates are steady. Trade at Toronto has not been specially active this week. There has been a fair demand for sorting parcels of goods, but the movement has been fairly large.

There has been a marked improvement in business at Winnipeg since the opening of the present month. This is largely owing to the improvement in crop conditions. Trade at the coast has been moderately active in a few lines lately, but the threatened trouble in the canning industry has acted to some extent as a drawback in trade. The demand from the interior for supplies is fair.

Business at Hamilton has been fair this week. The manufacturers have been busy on fall orders and labor is well employed in the city. The orders from travellers is satisfactory, both for current requirements and for the autumn. Collections are and for the autumn. Collections are and for the autumn. Collections are and for the autumn.

At Quebec business continues moderately active in wholesale circles. Travellers are sending in fair orders for fall delivery, and it is generally expected that the volume will be as good as in past seasons.

THEORY AND PRACTICE. It is reported that the Rev. Dr. Charles Sheldon, of Topeka, Kansas, who wrote a book advising employers to treat their servants as equals, is having serious domestic troubles. His wife last week refused to allow the servant girl to dine with the family. The girl promptly gave up her place, and before leaving she reminded Mrs. Sheldon that her husband had recently solved the servant girl problem by declaring that domestics should have equal privileges with the family. Mrs. Sheldon told the girl that she was not responsible for her husband's opinions, but could write to him. The pastor's dilemma is said to have caused great amusement.
