

THE ROYAL REVIEW, TORONTO

Editor Durham Review. Sir: I think that it would not be much out of place to give a short sketch of this great military pageant that took place in Toronto on the 11th.

It is the best rural regiment in Canada being ten companies strong. A fine lot of men and good officers, one of them being Lieutenant Fred Campbell of Normanby, who was with one of the maxim guns in South Africa.

As the Royal carriage approached each company gave the Royal salute, after all was over the different regiments formed up and marched back to camp which took till about 4 or 5 p. m.

Friday morning get up and get ready for the final event, everybody is on the stir cleaning up for the royal inspection and every soldier wanted to look his best when he was going to be inspected by his future King.

There could not be a much better place for this grand review as it was upon historic ground. Here to our right and to the east of our lines, the old mud fort, a block house and broken down stockades showing the site of some of the bloody conflicts of 1812-15.

The review being over we are taken right off for a street march, it must have been a fine sight for any one that had elevation enough to see 11000 troops marching in column.

Yours Truly, R. TORRY, Lieut. Priceville.

Friday morning last reminded us of seeking a better country, when the face of the earth was covered to the depth of two inches of snow, some were thinking of getting their sleighs and bells in order but while they were thus debating between two opinions, the good old sun put in an appearance and melted the most of the snow out of sight so no sleighing this time yet.

Mr Neil McKinnon, post master, who spent the last two months in Manitoba came back a few days ago looking hale and hearty; he says there are hundreds of acres of wheat out in stock yet in Manitoba.

Our great annual show was quite a success—more so than any previous year. Priceville is hard to compete with in producing fine looking animals of all description, and other things as well.

Sunday last turned out fine after the squally weather of the previous week, affording opportunity to a large congregation to assemble in the Presbyterian Church for the celebration of the Lord's supper.

On Friday the Rev. Mr. Broad of Cedarville preached preparatory services. On Sunday before last 85 members partook sacrament in the Gaelic language, a very small percentage of the Gaelic speaking people but we may say that very few of the above number that necessarily required to attend the Gaelic, but we are sorry to see some of the chief leaders of that noble language absent themselves from participating in the noble work interested to them.

On Monday the 14th Mr Dezel gave a lecture and gramophone talk and singing in the Presbyterian church which was well rendered.

Mrs Thompson of Woodstock is visiting her sons Mr James Thompson on the Hemstock farm South line Glenelg.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mrs James Calder, Fairbairn Egremont. Mrs Calder was Miss Jane McCuaig of Glenelg sister to Archie McCuaig and has been in failing health for some time.

Messrs John McArthur and N. McCannel let a contract on townline Arismetia and Glenelg on Saturday last for a new bridge approach.

John Black finished threshing at his brother-in-law's Mr. Patrick Sullivan and left his outfit there till next threshing season.

The application of W L Dixon esq. was accepted as teacher in S S No. 10 Glenelg and Egremont for 1901, Mr Dixon being an old and experienced teacher. The trustees thought wisely to give him the preference. Miss Leeson the present teacher intends to go to London Normal school at the beginning of the year.

We understand Mr McGill does not intend to remain in Priceville. Mr McGill is a gentleman in every respect, so we are sorry to see him leave.

As the winter is approaching we hear talk of marriages sometime in future but these events have to be talked over a long time before the contracting parties are aware of its occurrence.

It will soon be time for Municipal aspirants to be making themselves known again. We do not fear of any changes on either side of county or Arismetia. Mr McFadden of course will be seeking reelection for reeve of Glenelg, an office which he has filled with much credit to himself and municipality during the year now drawing to a close.

Mr John McArthur, Glen, was in Toronto seeing the Duke and Duchess on Friday.

We saw the smiling face of Mr John Campbell of the Review staff on show day.

What became of Colin this year that he didn't attend our Show.

If you gave your boy a pig or a calf and after he had cared for and reared it you sold it and pocketed the proceeds, don't join the church until you have squared things with that boy.
