A year or two flew past and you No loager sat alone; A little one was in your arms, Your darling and my own.

And then another year or so. And someone else was there, And "Willie" gat near me, you know, While "Tottie' claimed your care.

The years have sped since first I led You to the table, dear, And you looked queenty at the foot, And I fest kingly here.

To-day as I look down at you On either side I see A row of hungry little ones All gazing up at me.

We've added leaves, one after one, And you are far away-Aye, thrice as far, my dear, as on That happy, happy day.

But though we sit so far apartheart

Stretch down to you, my dear. Thank God for every extra leaf The table holds to-day, And may we never know the grief Of putting one away.

THE BOY AND THE GIRL.

Elizabeth Caddy Stanton on the Increasing Influence of Women.

Is it likely that a brother and sister rocked in the same cradle, reared in the same home, taught in the same school and college will be so entirely unlike one another that their life work will never coincide?
