More to be Dreaded Than an Outbreak of Smallpox.

No Epidemic in the Last Quarter of a Century Has Carried Off as Many People as Annually Fall Victims to Consumption. (L'Avenir du Nord, St. Jerome, Que.) Throughout Canada much alarm has at the outbreak of smallpox that has occurred in various localities and thousands of dollars have been expended-and rightly so-in suppressing it. And yet year in and year out this country suffers from a plague that claims more victims annually than have been carried off by any epidemic during the past quarter of a century. Consumption-the great white plague of the north-is more to be dreaded than any epidemic. Its victims throughout Canada are numbered by the thousands annually, and through its ravages bright young lives in every quarter are brought to an untimely end. Why? There are two reasons, the insidious character of the disease, and the all too prevalent belief that those who inherit weak lungs are foredoomed to an early death, and that the most that can be done is to give the loved ones temporary relief in the journey towards the grave. This is a great mistake. Medical science now knows that consumption, when it has not How could she bear this loneliness? reached an acute stage, is curable. But better still, it is preventable. Sufferers from weak lungs who will clothe themselves properly, who will keep the blood rich and red, not only need not dread consumption, but will nitimately become healthy, robust [ people. Among those upon whom consumption had fastened its fangs, and who have proved the disease is curable, is Mr. Ildege St. George, of | cuffs, and never puts them off again, St. Jerome, Que. His story as re- taking a chilly air of miserable related to a reporter of L'Avenir du Nord, will be of interest to similar sufferers.
