In loving remembrance of Robert A.
Marshall, who died Dec. 2,

1901, aged 34 yrs.

We have to mourn the death of one

Beloved on earth, regretted, gone,

Oh! not lost, but gone before us;

In our hearts they perish not.

Our light troubles for a moment,

Are not worthy to compare,

And the glory we shall share.

Ask of my dear husband, Robert,

Strong young men and fair young

Are you walking 'neath his rod?

If its well to trust the Lord,

He will answer quickly saying,

Creatures of the living God.

Are you trusting in Jehovah?

Joy in life and trust in Jesus,

Peace in death it surely gives,

In the place where Jesus lives.

None but God, alone can tell,

Yet if taithful, we shall meet you,

In a better land-farewell,

Cood-bye husband, how we miss you,

Greatest joy beyond expression,

Joy of joys it does afford,

With the beauty of our Jesus

Sweet the memories that come o'er us,

Remembered in the grave.

Let him never be forgot;

We did our best to save,
