SOME INCIDENTS OF THE BATTLE OF SPION KOP.

(Black and White)

Not a tithe of the dramatic occurrences of the war can ever be told. We get a good impression of the extraordinary scenes common to the combatants life in a volume just issued—Buller's Campaign, by Lieutenant G. Blake Knox, R. A. M. C. (Brigadier Johnson, 102, 62, net). This gallant officer has given us a stirring story of some of the most remarkable tableaux in the great battles in South Africa.

A Battlefield Promotion. Some time previously Thorneycroft had led a magnificent sortie to drive off some Boers who were threatening Despatch from short range. He fell and dislocated his ankle, and was still lying prone with his men around him firing at a range of 150 yards at the enemy when the messenger arrived. As the man was about to speak a shot hit him in the head, and he fell dead across Thorneycroft's body, with his errand unfulfilled.

Tricked Into Spion Kop. It was in the same battle that a trick was practiced which had incalculable effect upon the Boer fortunes. Blunt (who afterwards became notorious in connection with train wrecking), with two others, managed to get on to a ridge near Acton Homes and plant a Transvaal flag on the summit.

A Pathetic Last Message. Much has been written about Spion Kop, and we have by no means heard the last of it. Lieutenant Knox contributes important additions. Some of his pictures are intensely dramatic. When General Woodgate, who had the command, received his fatal wound, he ordered the heliographer to signal: "We are between a terrible cross-fire, and can barely hold our own. Water is badly needed. Help us. A shell smashed the instrument as the last official words of the unfortunate officer were being transferred.

STILL HUNTING. So you can't find work at your trade. Poor man! What is your trade? Wright Bower—I curries hoeses for automobile companies.

HERE AND THERE

F. L. Hill & Co's. elevator at Markdale, with 1,600 bushels of grain, was burned. Bulletins declare that the condition of Queen Wilhelmina continues to be satisfactory.

Mr. Zardetti, who is named to succeed Mr. Falconio as Apostolic Delegate to Canada, is lying at the point of death in Rome. The manse belonging to the Kintyre Presbyterian Church, together with nearly all of its contents, has been destroyed by fire.

Another revolution has broken out in Santo Domingo. Telegraphic communication between that republic and Haiti is entirely interrupted.

C. P. R. LAND SALES

Returns of Companies Show a Decrease in Business.

Winnipeg, Man., May 5.—The returns of the C. P. R. land department and the Canada Northern Land Department and the Canada Northern Land Company show what an immense amount of business is being done. The Endless Chain Scheme. Mr. Young's scheme for attracting good Canadian dollars to his strong box was based on the efficiency of an endless chain. Anyone who was attracted by the representations sent $2.50, for which he would receive "one of the best solid gold fountain pens made," which impartial valuers say are actually worth about 35 cents.

The P. O. Stepped In. This would have been the "jumping out" stage of the company, if they had been given a free fill, but thanks to the vigilance of the Toronto postal authorities, Warren L. Young & Co. had to "jump out" of Toronto before they had fairly set sail.
