The prize was a silver cup, and it is to be used to drink the health of the Owen Sound team when they get beaten at their match here on the 8th of August. Miss J. Fraser, photographer, received an Atlin paper this week containing the gratifying information that her brother (there had been appointed Gold Commissioner. His worth is evident when it is known that the office sought him, his appointment being a surprise to himself, as he was not one of the applicants. The paper expresses the delight of the business section at his appointment.

KNOX COLLEGE PROFESSOR

The Board and Senate of Knox College met on Monday of this week to take steps to fill the chair of Apologetics and Homoeletics made vacant by the sudden death of Professor Halliday Douglas. Many names of eminent young men on both sides of the Atlantic were mentioned, and a number of speeches on Current Theology were delivered, but further than a preliminary vote, when each wrote the name or names of persons he thought competent to fill the chair, no action was taken. A somewhat large committee, to look more narrowly into the qualifications of the men whose names were mentioned, was appointed with instructions to report to a subsequent meeting. The attendance at the Board and Senate was large, one indication of the sense of the importance of the steps to be taken in the minds of the supporters of the college.

THE "MAN IN THE WELL"

For a sensational rescue of a man from imminent peril nothing we ever read or heard of equals the case of Joshua Sandford, near Paris, Ont., last week. Sixty feet down a well on Tuesday, its brick sides caved in about him and miraculously formed an arch above him. An iron shaft down the well, in which the drill worked, must have kept space enough to admit air to him, for he lived 72 hours without food or water, and was 100 hours imprisoned in the shifting sand and debris at the bottom of the well. First thought was that he was dead and buried and the funeral over, but some one heard a tapping on the pipe and sure enough by this means communication was established and the work of rescue begun by digging a well a few feet away from the first one. At settling in the old well took place and the tapping ceased for a time. Hearts grew sick and men shed tears and left with their tools, but by accident the tapping was again heard. Work begun again, thousands gathered, and at last his level was reached, a tunnel bored towards him, and human hands ministered comfort. He was now wedged in and almost gone. Most gently brick by brick was removed, for there was danger of more settling, till at last all was clear but one foot and for nearly 24 hours more the rescuers and the prisoner worked at this. The new well was deepened, a second tunnel made and the foot extricated from below and in a few minutes he was out and up the shaft to the light of the sun, and the bells and whistles of Paris spoke out the joy all felt. He is being carefully nursed and may be none the worse for his remarkable entombment. The skill and humanity displayed by his rescuers, who risked their own lives, is beyond praise, and in all the Paris churches on Sunday reference was made to it. The Royal Humane society have taken steps to honor and reward the heroes.

"LEST WE FORGET."

Edward VII, by the Grace of God, King, Defender of the Faith, etc., has by the Grace of God, and human skill been tied over a great crisis and at present writing seems to be assured of recovery. The vast and world-wide disappointment over the upsetting of coronation plans soon gave way, and instead of shading our eyes to look upon the King in his glory seated on a throne, we have softened our hearts to gaze upon a man stretched on a bed of pain. "Lest we Forget." Who shall say there is not a Divine guidance in it all? The nation made ready for Queen Victoria's jubilee in 1897, for her Diamond Jubilee in 1897 and was not disappointed. Preparations were made, empire-wide, to receive the Duke and Duchess of York in 1901, and expectancy fruited into certainty. But now we are taught how uncertain are the joys that depend on any one human life, and the lesson will be learned. What the King has lost in glory and gewgaws, he has gained in the love and sympathy of his people, and the crown of Great and Greater Britain fits safer on his head today than if it had been placed there amid fanfare of trumpets, by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The spirit he has shown throughout will enable us to sing "Long live our noble King" better than we have yet done, and we will all rejoice that our "gracious Queen" is spared yet awhile the weeds of widowhood.
