The principal points in its favor are: - (1) its quick growth, (2) its wide range, as it grows well on almost any kind of land (3) its long season, as it may be sown as late as September and still do fairly well, (4) its evident palatability, as the pigs eat it greedily, and (5) its good effect upon the quality of the bacon, producing as its does, almost a good firm carcass. Rape may be ex pected to be fit for pasturage from 6 to 8 weeks from date of sowing. It should be sown in rows about 24 in. apart, since when so grown it gives the greatest return per acre, and is best adapted for pasturing. It should be sown fairly thick in the rows, say, three lbs. of seed per acre. An acre may be expected to carry from 20 to 40 pig through the season, depending on the season and the condition of the crop
