The first husband I ever met who was not appreciated had married his landlady's daughter. The last-let me see-what was the trouble with the last? Ah, yes, his wife did not like the shape of his nose and wanted him to wear his hair pompadour instead of slicking it down flat.

The landlady's daughter had been a heavy burden for the first. There had been something queer with her grammar. Or possibly she had not appreciated his I cannot now quite recall which it was.

But really the worse sufferer of the two was the man with the nose who felt that his wife did not appreclate his good points and who was looking about for some philanthropic lady who would.

I've often wondered, sir, what you would say if you could actually look into the neart and read the mind of the woman to whom you turn for consolation when you feel you are not appreciated at home.

Doesn't it ever occur to you that that woman is studying you very much as a naturalist studies an insect? "Here's another one," she is saying: "How like the last one he is. Why, he has got the very same forlorn droop of the mouth-pathetic, he thinks it is-yes, he sighs just like the other. He says precisely what that last misunderstood husband said. Same genus-was hoping I had found something rare, but it's the same old specimen after all."

your vanity? I suppose not. Your why the milkman did not come, she egotism is so supreme; you fancy said soberly: you have but to pour out your complaints of your wife's coldness, her lack of appreciation, her failure to! "understand" your wonderfully complex and profound nature, and the woman who listens will console you without any question; indeed, with thanks for the distinction.

Now, let me tell you something. A sensible, square, honest woman has not a particle of respect for the man may listen-yes, a woman sometimes enjoys seeing a man make a fool of himself. But in her heart she despises

I'll tell you the sort of unhappy married man a fine woman admires and pities-the man who is married to a fool but who is too proud to bravely and uncomplainingly. He ber if it were not a matter of daily treats his silly little wife with respect and speaks always with deference of her He is not deceiving the matches are none too good to beworld one little bit, and in his heart he knows he is not.

It is dangerous business-this assumption of the role of consoler extraordinary to misunderstood husbands. I knew a girl once who went in for that sort of thing. She always was interested in some "poor, dear, unhappy" man who had such a tiresome, quarrelsome, jealous, unappreciative wife. It was a terrible tragedy for such a brilliant, brainy fellow to be chained to such a stupid drag. The whole world might know everything he ever said to her. Oh, dear, yes; she simply sympathized with him and understood him and went to luncheon with him. Only very evil-minded people could see the slightest harm you were going to love through all eternity, Ah. well, eternity is a long time, as you soon discovered. Your girl was an angel; your wife is only a woman. You understood your angel-she was always to drift on rose-colored clouds through golden sunshine to the continual crying of cherubim and seraphim. But golden sunshine and roseate clouds do not harmonize with bread and butter. Life is too hard and prosaic for angels and eternal love. And the yelling of babies is not so poetic as the songs of seraphim.

When did your angel become a woman and cease to understand you? When did you cease to understand your angel?

Did these two calamities happen about the time you sat up and took notice that other men have wives; wives to study and understand and perchance to appreciate and console

I shouldn't wonder. Edith Sessions Tupper.

THINGS YOU CAN'T DO.

Seemingly Simple Feats That One Finds it Impossible to Accomplish.

There are many physical feats apparently exceedingly simple that the ordinary person finds it difficult or impossible to perform. For instance, a man cannot rise from a chair without bending forward or putting his feet under the chair or outside of it. Many a man will back himself to give another a start of fifty yards in a race of 100, provided the man having the start hops all the way. But no runner, however swift, can give that amount of start to an ordinary man. For the first five yards they go at practically the same pace. Therefore the runner, to go ninetyfive yards while the "hopper" goes forty-five, would have to run more than twice as fast, and it would be a weak man who could not hop fortyfive yards at a pace equal to twenty seconds for 100 yards, and that would mean that the runner, in order to win, would have to beat all previous records.

If a man boasts that his penknife is particularly sharp ask him to cut with one stroke of the blade one of those yellow ribbons, mostly silk, which are round bundles of cigars. In 999 cases out of 1,000 the knife is not sharp enough to do this. It will cut through all the ribbon except the last strand, and that will pull out long, and the more he tries to cut it
