

Syrup should... The gums, cure... Diarrhoea.

PLEASE—ANY QUAN... suitable for brick... state cash price...

MAIL, Professing... for handsomely... Correspondence Dept...

PL SYRUP. From Ocean to... of satisfactory... Agents, Montreal.

BACON HOGS... YORKSHIRES.

TRY... Butter, ... selected, will pay...

Interested in the... of young ladies... and nervousness...

WATCH with dura... and heavy metal...

FOR CHRISTMAS GIVERS... For Mother.

FREE... If you want to... Gold Watch...

Present a FOUR STAR... you save manufacturer.

LIMITED... risk nothing, as we do not ask one cent of your money.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion. We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

FOR CHRISTMAS GIVERS... For Mother.

- Obedient children, with sunny faces and happy smiles.
- A set of embroidered dollies for her polished table.
- One of the new collars so prettily embroidered, and which may be made by daughter.
- A handsome lace with which her new gown may be trimmed.
- A handsome front for a gown.
- A handsome hatpin or a pretty butterfly with which her veil may be held.
- A handsome fan or pair of opera glasses in a pretty suede bag.
- Some gloves or pretty handkerchiefs (but be sure these are linen).
- Material for a new dress or for a pretty new waist.
- A handsome centrepiece for her table.
- A box of fine candles or a jar of marmalade, or some other sweets of which she is especially fond.
- A set of her favorite books or a scrapbook for her newspaper clippings.
- A set of scissors in a leather case or a set of silver sewing implements.
- A bottle of her favorite perfume or an especially fine box of soap.
- Some bits of silver that she especially longs for finished in the pretty French gray that is now so fashionable and attractive.
- A piece of statuary in marble or bronze and a pedestal of it.
- A handsome set of curtains for her parlour windows if she wants them.
- A handsome new brooch or a new belt clasp or a watch if one is needed.
- A set of furs with a great big, soft muff such as great-grandmother carried.
- A lace tie, a jeweled pin or a pair of bracelets will surely please mother.

But above all there is nothing that will so please mother as good children.
For Father.
A pretty scarf pin.
A set of books by his favorite author.
Some silk handkerchiefs with embroidered initials.
A student's lamp for his own particular use.
A bottle of bay rum and witch hazel for shaving.
A pair of high slippers to keep his feet warm and protect his ankles from draughts.
A wafery fork or a pretty charm.
A book rest, in which he can keep the book he is busily reading.
A chamois case for his glasses, which may be made by little fingers.
A string ball, which is always ready for instant use and which can be made by little fingers.
A purse which has a place for notes as well as for change.
A whisk with a silver handle and an engraved monogram.
Some handsome neckties and gloves.
A leather-covered couch with pillows galore for his den.
A letter file or rack or a large blotter for his desk.
A pair of warm woollen gloves or a warm muffler, or, if he is a society man, a black satin shield to wear with his dress suit.
An umbrella with handsomely studded handle, or a cane with silver handle.
A case for exchange tickets, which his little daughter may make.
Pictures of his loved ones prettily framed.
If a lover of skating, get him a fine pair of skates.
A warm sweater will also add to his comfort when skating.
A table for his den.

London Statistics.
In London a child is born every three minutes and a death is registered every five minutes. The city contains 700 railway stations, 5,000 omnibuses, 7,000 hansoms, 11,000 cabs and 7,000 tram cars. Daily 1,000,000 persons travel on underground railways. Eleven railway bridges span the Thames. Four thousand postmen deliver 10,000,000 letters weekly, walking a distance equal to twice the circumference of the globe. There are 10,000 miles of overhead telegraph wires, and the number of telegraph messages received in London last year was over 6,000,000. Ninety million gallons of water are consumed daily.

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
"Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me. Six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick women as your Vegetable Compound, and I advocate it to my lady friends in need of medical help."—Mrs. B. A. BRANSHAN, 422 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn.—$5000 genuineness certificate if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.
When women are troubled with menstrual irregularities, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ONE YEAR'S SUPPLY OF HAVANA CIGARS FREE...
All the tobacco that I use is grown in Cuba, therefore nothing but Havana tobacco ever goes into any part of any of my cigars. I employ Cuban workmen only. No wholesalers, retailers, commission salesmen nor bad accounts—that's all in the cigars. CIGARS DIRECT from MAKEE to SMOKER. No dealers need apply. $81.000 sold in the last year. ONE BOX AND YOU ARE A REGULAR CUSTOMER. REFERENCES—ANY CIGAR IN TORONTO.
I supply you, THE NEW WAY, TWO YEARS for the same money you pay the old way one year. These Cigars are superior to imported 15-cent Havanas. The name of my cigar is No. 72. Price $2.50 FOR A BOX OF 50 being equal to five cents each. I prepay all express or postage (registered) and thus deliver to you free all over Canada. Send money with order, one or more boxes, and you shall be a customer of mine. Some have ordered the fiftieth time. Say whether mild, medium or strong.
R. K. FERRIS 87 King St. East Toronto, Canada

THE SERVIAN'S CHRISTMAS PIG.

In Servia they keep Christmas Eve in a somewhat peculiar way. The father of the family goes into the wood and cuts down a straight young oak, choosing the most perfect that he can find. He brings it in, saying: "Good evening, and a happy Christmas," to which those present reply: "May God grant both to thee, and mayest thou have riches and honor!" Then they throw over him grains of corn. Presently the young tree is planted upon the coals, where it remains until Christmas morning, when they salute by repeated firings of a pistol.
The national dish in Servia is pork. The poorest family in Servia will pinch themselves all through the year so as to have money enough to buy a pig at Christmas. Skewered to a long piece of wood, the pig is turned over a blazing fire until cooked, and the guests watching the process with increasing interest. After dinner stories are told and songs sung. Santa Claus, who in the person of an honored guest is present to receive instead of gifts presents, departs after the feast, decorated with a long ring of cakes around his neck, and laden with such gifts as his friends can bestow.

PART OF THE GAME

When Lord Methuen Destroyed Gen Delarey's House.
(Public Opinion.)
Little has been heard of Lord Methuen since his return from South Africa. Hence the more interest attaches to the public luncheon given in his honor at Devoles. Lord Methuen's services during the war were considerable, and he left South Africa with a record second to none for persistence, endurance and chivalry. He well earned the G. C. B., just conferred on him. Whatever he had, as Lord Lansdowne said on Friday, terribly hard luck at the eleventh hour. But his bad fortune was qualified by the fact that he fell into the hands of Gen. Delarey. Lord Methuen and Gen. Delarey seem to have illustrated in a quite unique manner the old phrase, "our friends the enemy." So remarkable was Lord Methuen's tribute to the qualities of humanity in his opponent that we almost wonder Gen. Delarey was not asked to participate in the Devoles function. Seldom in warfare, we should say, has a man in the Boer general's position ordered that a shed full of clothing for British soldiers should not be touched, because "the things inside are for Tommy Atkins." It must have cost Lord Methuen a pang to order the destruction of Gen. Delarey's house. It was, however, a military necessity, and Gen. Delarey would probably be the first to recognize that it was strictly in accord with the rules of the game.
Mother—Well, dear, what is it?
Gertrude—Do you think, mamma, you will ever learn to love me as much as you do Fido?—Puck.

Sunday School.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON NO. XII

DECEMBER 21, 1902.

Christmas Lesson—Luke 2:30.
Commentary.—Explanatory. Just before the birth of Christ the Roman Emperor, Caesar Augustus, made a decree that the people throughout the world should be enrolled with a view to being taxed. The Roman custom was to enroll persons at the place of residence, but the Jewish custom required the enrollment to take place in the native city. Because of this it became necessary for Joseph and Mary to go to Bethlehem. The city was full and there was no room for them in the inn, and they were obliged to lodge in a stable. While they were here Jesus was born in a manger.
8. Same country—Nearby, probably not a mile from Bethlehem. Shepherds—the employment of tending sheep had been honored in the earlier times of the Jewish people. Jacob, Moses and David were shepherds. But now it was a calling that was looked upon by the Jews with contempt.
9. In the field—The shepherds undoubtedly had tents or booths under which they dwelt.—Clarke. Keeping watch—by night.—"Keeping night-watches"—B. M. They were watched by turts against wild beasts and robbers.
10. Angel—Divine messenger. Angels have always taken a lively interest in the things of this world. We frequently read of them in the Old Testament. It was an angel that appeared unto Zacharias announcing the birth of John, and to Mary with a similar mission regarding the birth of Christ. They were watched to Jesus in the garden, and to the disciples at the sepulcher and at the ascension. Came upon them—Stood over them. Glory of the Lord—That extreme light which is divinely represented as appearing to men, and sometimes called the Shechinah—an appearance frequently attended, as in this case, by a company of angels.
11. Good tidings—"The literal meaning of Gospel." I am come to declare the loving kindness of the Lord. My message will cause great joy. It is a message to you (Jews) first, and it also reaches to "all the people."
12. Sign—The very thing that would have caused them to doubt Jesus as the Messiah. "My fear as to whether they may preach the new-born King and offer Him their homage is dispelled by the intimation of His lowly condition, while His earnest views of the nature of His kingdom are hereby contrasted."—Lange.
13. A multitude—They descended to honor the Prince of Peace. Heavenly light—The army of angels which represented the clearer manifestation and greater blessing of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart. Men hated God, and so hated each other. They had destroyed each other because they had striven to dethrone the Almighty. There must of necessity be peace from, and with heaven, before there could be peace on earth; and its provisions must come from Him against whom there had been rebellion.
Good will toward men. The deepest inquiry of the human soul is here answered. How God feel to us in a question of supreme moment, and this momentous question can be answered only by revelation. Human vision is too limited, and human understanding too feeble to discern the clearer revelations and greater blessings of redeeming grace. "I do not this for your sakes, but for mine hoary man's sake." The song of the heralding angels suggests that in the provisions of redemption God's glory receives its brightest and fullest manifestation. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork."
On earth peace. The world had warred first with heaven and then with itself. Rebellion against the skies had begotten antagonism with its own heart.