Sunday Labor.

Made by IMPERIAL OIL CO.

Our attention has again been called to the question of Sunday Labor at the Cement Works, it being alleged that a great deal of unnecessary work is being done. In common with hundreds more we regret the smoke-laden atmosphere and the hum of machinery on our usually calm and quiet Sabbath Day, but this regret would be tempered were it known that nothing but the most exacting requirements induced the Company to violate the day in any particulars. We may be wrong, but eur conviction is that the vast rotaries cannot be stopped and started again. even once a week without entailing such a commercial loss as to make their operation out of the question If it can ton, spent the New Year holidays with be done, we hope to see it done, and meanwhile the company would be doing itself credit, if not a man was employed more than absolutely necessary, and not an hour's work done, avoidable, on the Lord's Day, protected as it is by our laws and by the best sentiment.

There is a probability that the meetings will be continued another week.
