ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual meeting of the Presbyterian Church was held on Monday 22nd inst. There was a large attendance (more than usual), a larger balance than usual, and harmony and good feeling prevailed throughout. The retiring managers, Messrs T. McGirr, R. McFarlane and D. Edze, were re-elected. Steps have been taken with a view to build a manse, since the extinction of the improvement debt is practically in sight. A very noteworthy incident was the gift of $25 towards a manse, given by Mr. W. E. Edze, of Orange, son-in-law of the late Dr. Gunn, a mark of the respect and affection he bears to the memory of his deceased relative, for a long period one of the fruct workers for Durham church. "He being dead yet speaketh."

Messrs Jno. Weir, Wm. Smith and Jas. Calvert, were elected Trustees for the next five years. The various societies had all optimistic reports. The Ladies' Aid during the year completed their undertaking of seating the church, (about $400) and have a balance on hand.

Steps are to be taken in conjunction with the town to have the old cemetery plot closed up after due warning. At present it is in a disreputable state, an eyesore and an injury to adjoining property.

The congestion arising from the number of families unable to be allotted seats, has forced the congregation to declare all seats free to all; this was practically the practice prevailing, but it has now been so declared.

From the report of the Session we extract the following paragraphs, which have a bearing wider than Presbyterianism:

"There is no truer index of religious life than the spirit in which the daily duties are discharged. If the spirit of piety dies in the home, the glory is departed, if on the other hand the hearth be maintained in all its purity and power, the church will neither be barren nor unfruitful. To-day the home is the storm centre, where wrestles all the winds of modern society. The strain of business takes the men away early and keeps them out late, the toils of the household, the racking demands of society together with the claims of religious and philanthropic work, rob the women of the quiet hours so valuable in the home life, while the children as is natural follow in their parents' footsteps in a constant whirl of excitement. Under such circumstances, family religion can only be maintained by earnest and persistent effort, but whatever the struggle, even a partial success will prove an abundant recompense for all the toil.

With much to encourage there are still many hindrances in the way of the advancement of the cause of Christ. The drink evil is still with us, and few temptations come with such intensity, or so absolutely enslave the will, as the passion for strong drink. Not only does no drunkard enter the kingdom, but no man can even tittle without impairing his spiritual power. The Session, while noting with gratitude the large vote in favour of the restrictive elements in the Ontario Liquor Act, recognizes that there will be no enactment of the law for the present, and would therefore urge on all the need, not only of the practice of personal sobriety and temperance, but also of doing what is possible to discourage social customs that spread and perpetuate drinking habits.

In every town and village may be had, the Mica Axle Grease that makes your horses glad.

The industrial progress of our town has brought to our door the problem of how to preserve the sacredness of the Lord's Day. That some work, in almost every large industry is necessary on all the days of the week makes the solution of the difficulty the harder. Were employers to exercise due care to exact only necessary labor, and could the community rely on them for the discharge of that sacred trust, the matter would be solved, but so long as there are those who have more care for dollars than for men, so long will there be need of watchfulness lest the workman be enslaved and the Lord's day desecrated. With toilers here or elsewhere, who in the discharge of necessary duties are deprived of Sabbath privileges, the session heartily sympathizes. The doing what can be done to alleviate such burdens is truly a Christian duty. By the attitude of the Christian community will be determined whether or not the sacredness of the day is to be preserved. A correspondent writes "The Christian business men of any town would be manifest if they would unite and act." What is needed is a truer love for the spiritual privileges of the day, a deeper interest in the welfare of the toiler, and a more intelligent knowledge of what labor in particular industries is necessary, so that in the crisis through which the country is passing the course we take will be for man's welfare and the Glory of God."

DURHAM PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Shall We Accept Carnegie's Standing Offer.

At the annual Meeting of the Public Library last week, a committee was appointed to communicate with Carnegie or his agents to ascertain the terms on which a grant could be obtained from him for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a Library here. A committee has also been appointed to wait on the Town Council to interest them in a movement begun last year and never completed, to have the Reading Room moved to some suitable location down town. We earnestly hope this may be successful and that the council will devise liberal things in its support.
