He immediately telephoned to Whitby for medical attendance, and in less than half an hour five physicians and a corps of willing helpers were at the scene of the wreck. Heroic Self Denial.

Dr. McGillivray, of Whitby, who was one of the first to reach the Junction Hotel where the injured were being brought in, related last evening an interesting incident which is but illustrative of the self-denial and the heroism displayed by many of the wounded. The doctor had been working for fully two hours, bandaging cuts, setting fractured bones, and making the unfortunate as comfortable as he could, when a lady, of slight build, who had been sitting hand cut, ear scraped. Wounds in the room all morning, called him. "Doctor," said she, "when you have DAVID L. CARVER, Bangor, Maine; ! finished with all the others, I wish you would examine me; my leg is hurt." She added that there were L. E. DUNLOP, Westford, Vt.; in- so many who were more badly hurt jured shoulder, cuts on head. At the than she was, that she did not mention the matter until they were attended to. The doctor immediately made an examination, and discovered that the lady, whose name was Mrs. Bessie aLngill, was suffering from a bad fracture of the hip. She must have been in great pain, but she forgot herself entirely in her solicitude for others.

The doctor told also of a young Englishman, whose name he could not learn, who had sustained a very serious cut on the back of his hand Although urged to have it dressed he absolutely refused, saying, "I MISS ELLEN DANFORTH, teacher, won't allow you to look at it until you have attended to all these poor devils here." Owing to his persistence, the wound was not dressed until he was on the train which brought the first batch of wounded to Toronto.

The most of the wounds which came under Dr. McGillivray's notice were cuts caused by broken glass. Several of these were of a very dangerous character, particularly that of Mr. A. H. Allan, of Lowell, Mass., from whose leg a very large piece of galss was extracted. The most serious case of all is that of George Lappage, the baggageman, whose head was injured, The man was able to walk about, but his mental faculties were impaired, and be was continually screaming and calling out, "My ear is off." Upon examination, Dr. MciGillivray found that his ear was all right, but that he had a fracture of the skull just behind the ear, and that he had lost a good deal of blood from cuts about the Mr. J.
