Pioneer Days.

David Kennedy, senior, has told his experiences in a book with the above title. He was born in Scotland, and came to Canada with his parents in 1829, when one year old, lived near Guelph from 1830 to 1851, and then started to spy out the land and found a new home near the mouth of the Saugeen River, in Bruce County. The journey to Owen Sound and thence through the woods to Southampton is vividly described, and the method of selecting land, building houses, clearing, hunting, cooking, etc., is made plain. "We managed to roo! our shanty with elm bark, and we chinked the cracks up with pieces of split basswood and moss, and we made a fireplace with stones from the river, and a chimney place of bent sticks plastered with mud, and a floor of basswood slabs, split and hewn with an adze. There were a good many people looking for land, and seldom a day or night passed without having some to entertain." The township in which the brothers settled was surveyed by Senator Vidal, and Alexander McNab was the land agent. Mr. Kennedy left his brother in Bruce after a time and became owner of his father's farm near Guelph, but communication was kept up between the two branches of the family. The story of pioneer life and its difficulties is very well told in this little book, of which copies can be obtained from the author, David Kennedy, senior, Bronte post-office.

He was educated at King's College, Charterhouse, and Trinity College, Cambridge, at which university he graduated as 35th Wrangler, and with a third class in the Classical Tripos. He spent just ten years as a stuff gowns man, and took silk in 1878. He was then only 38, and was perhaps the yourgest K. C. of the nineteenth century. At any rate, his career as a junior was the shortest on record. A further unique honor was to be his, for in 1885 he was appointed Attorney-General, though he had no seat in the House.
