Strike Industry e Now.

ikers adds a dangerous fac-

on Workers Go Out. orning the Bridge Structural hitectural Iron Workers go & Mclatyre. The agreement fects, are "School of Practince," Post-office, and apartuse on Queen's avenue.

Building Trades. ngs of the carpenters and ers' laborers were held in dent and Victoria Halls yesbut nothing of really mamportance transpired. The their guns, and not reat to work yesterday on perthe wage demanded. The s of the Building Exchange ping quiet, and there does ear to be much change in ation.

ontractors' Resolution.

aving contractors have sent at a recent meeting to the but if the city decided to paviors an increase in t will tend to increase the work in the future, and they eet the Council to make an e on contracts not yet com-

lders are Leaving Town. no negotiations are pending into branch of the National men's Association is in com--moulders' Union in an efsettle the shorter work-day is for this purpose. From alone across the border, but distant, has come an appliis now being considered. Teamsters' Union, igh the trouble between the rs on the transport company no means over, there has temporary truce declared.

or sixty moulders. This apert of patched up settlement n arrived at. mployers' offer of $42 a. eas accepted temporarily, but stion of overtime was not th by the bosses. The men, h working yesterday, were a trusted bookkeeper of the lional Erotherhood of Paper whose offices are located s disappeared, and with him vas entrusted to him to det warrant for his arrest has in Robes and Sandals ned in Police Court.

May 11.—The prosecution of en monks belonging to the Monastery here led to 8 anifestation in the Correcblice Court to-day, when the vere charged under the Asso-Law with refusing to disnder of the Leper Home in a, and who was staying at astery.

lying to the charge, the Faperior read a long defence, nd not separated. He declared mey would never separate, om loughy applauded. The up by all of them, and the the manifestation. The ponot laterere firther, and wd district donor no the

There are several ways of adulterating teas-an inferior brand mixed in is the usual way.

Blue Ribbon Ceylon Tea

is a uniform tea of a special age growth. We value your continued orders too much to adulterate in any way.

> Black. Mixed. Ceylon Green. Ask for Red Label. FORTY CENTS-SHOULD BE FIFTY

The Rose and Lily Dagger

A TALE OF WOMAN'S LOVE AND WOMAN'S PERFIDY & st st

offers the same remark;

have the wet presently." Then he laughs, shakes his head, as if in appreciation of a capital joke, and passes on.

A few minutes afterward the Bannisters make their appearance. The baronet is tall and thin, with a square, wooden face, and a lacklustre eye; he was in Parliament for a few years, and is supposed by the Barefieldians-to be a great statesman, and certain of the premlership, if he cared for it; and the baronet, who is quite convinced they are right, carries himself like a man weighed down by State secrets. He doesn't shake hands with anyone unless he is obliged, and even now to most persons he vouchsafes only a couple of fingers.

Lady Bannister is a small woman with a hook nose which has never been seen in public without a huge pair of pince-nez, through which she surveys the world at large as if it were a museum of curiosities into which she had wandered by accident, and very much to her surprise. There is a son-the future baronet, a tall, not to say lanky, youth, who seems to have outgrown his brains. He is near-sighted like his mother, and wears an eyeglass, which bothers him a great deal, but without which he is utterly and hopeiessly helpless. As he is the heir and the only son, he is supposed to be a great match, and his appearance causes a flutter in the bosom of some of the young ladies. There are also two girls, alas! not pretty; thin, scraggy girls with sharp shoulders and faces only a little less wooden than the baronet's. Under any circumstances the entrance of these notabilities would create a stir of excitement, but to-night the excitement is increased by the addition to their party of two young men from Log- "I've never seen her," says Lady dog; two young men in dress clothes Blanche, with an indifference which of the newest cut, with gloves whose finely draws the line just this side faultless fit causes the Barefield of contempt. "Sne is rather a pretty youths to glance distrustfully at girl, isn't she'r' their own gloves which seemed all "Y-as, I suppose so," assents the right until these exquisites enter- youth, reluctantly. If he has learned ed: with patent-leather pumps of little else he has somehow picked the minutest description, and with up the knowledge that it is unwise crush hats which strike despair to to praise one woman to another. the hearts of the provincials. But "Y-as, I believe. Will you dance the excitement and curiosity reach this next with me?" a young lady is leaning on the arm and he is writing his name in th kind of usher on these occasions, calls town cierk calls out:

out with due solemnity : "Lady Blanche Delaine!" At the sound of the name there is a little buzz of surprise and curi- light step and sprightly juvenile air; a few love her-but who is this? Lady Blanche is tall and fair; she will be the most beautiful woman in the room-if anything should happen to prevent Elaine coming-and she is dressed-well, the ladies of Barefield, though they are instantly smitten with envy cannot realize or understand how well she is dressed, for M. Worth's ball costumes are not often seen at Barefield, and it is one of that artist's masterpieces which Lady Blanche wears with such perfect grace and apparent uncon-

Her face is a good oval, her complexion would warrant her in giving a testimonial to an advertising soap maker, and her features are delicately and clearly cut. If there is a fault to be found it is that the eyes of palest blue are a trifle too cold and -dare it be said ?-calculating. Even now, as she stands looking round do not smile, but seem to be, and are, taking in all the points of the scene. "Lady Blanche Delaine-Delaine?" says one of the stewards in a whis- Blanche!" per to a confrere. "Why, that must be the earl's daughter, Miss Elaine's Lady Blanche at once. "I think she air of frankness, "How pretty she cousin? Didn't know she was down is the loveliest woman I have ever is!" here. I wonder whether the major seen."

Mr. Lulwood shakes hands with and these two young lords from Lonanybody, everybody, as he makes the don, it strikes me we've got rather tour of the room, and to one and all a swell company, eh, Markley?" And the two men look round with proud "Fine evening, very fine; we shall satisfaction and complacency. "Quite a nice room," says Lady the precious words that drop from the golden youth, and he darts away to have all the windows open. "A great many people here," says gioning! Flaine--"

Blanche, looking around and fanning "not ba-ad for a country place, don- do do, dear, to make everything convert bad blood into good, rich pense. herself slowly.

"Yes," assents Lady Blanche, "and there are some I know. There is Coionel Swashley, and Captain-isn't rose, that Captain, Captain --- that tall man with the light hair?" Mr. Algernon turns his eyeglass reluctantly in the direction indicated by her fan. It is Captain Sherwin who has just entered, and is standing pulling his mustache and looking round with his shifty ner-"Ya-as, Captain Sherwin."

"I met him last year-somewhere," says Lady Blanche as they move to the upper part of the room where the great ones cluster together in proud exclusiveness, and as if for | mutual defence against the plebelang Lady Blanche is given a seat of honor next Mrs. Lulwood-who eyes her through her glasses defiautly, as if expecting and already reseating her patronage. "Anybody else you're looking for ?" asks Mr. Algernon, raising his none too musical voice above the band. Lady Blanche smiles.

"I was wondering if-gry cousin, suppose she is, I really don't quite know-is here." "Miss Elaine, the grajor's daughter," he drawls, surveying the crowd, "N-o, she's not here yes. You don't know a climax when it is observed that Lady Blanche gives him her card, of Mr. Algernon, the baronet's son, shaky ill-formed characters which and the town clerk, who acts as a the youth of Eton acquire, when the "Major and Miss Delaine." The major looks his best in evening clothes, and he comes in with his eyes on the girl on his arm. unwilling admiration, and, alas!

surpassing their own. I Lady Blanche is a woman of the world, and no detail of Elaine's face, figure, dress, escapes her; and she nisters' two days ago, and I had does justice, unwillingly though it be, a bad headache yesterday, or l to each. In an instant she knows | should have called. Is Major Delaine that her own beauty is eclipsed by quite well?" this vision of vernal loveliness, and shapely lips which is meant to be smiles admiringly, and still smiles came up at that moment. approving and ingratiating, the eyes even when Mrs. Lulwood remarks, in | Lady Blanche extended her hand a voice which she intends Lady to him with a gracious smile.

Blanche shall hear: "Yes? How pretty she is!" says tone she added, with a charming knows it? What with her ladyship Mrs. Lulwood, thus repulsed, nods.

Ramsay's paints are for beauty, protection and durability-made from the best oil, turpentine and

"She is a cousin of yours, I sup-"Oh, yes," assents Lady Blanche. "I Is the Most Miserable of Mortals—Only hope I shall be able to speak to her

She is warranted in expressing the doubt, for Elaine is already surrounded, and the proud major has the satisfaction of hearing men almost clamwhile Elaine is trying to bestow her dances impartially, May Bradley, who has been waiting and watching for her impatiently, breaks through the throng and catches her by the are! It's no use, Major Hope, I'm after meals, the hopeless despond- alty. not going to let her give all her ency. Any one of these signs points A week-end visit from King Ed- finest and costliest vintages in the dances away in a moment! Elaine, to indigestion. The one sure cure for ward, if he were on your visiting world are offered to the king. Then send them all away and let them indigestion is Dr. Williams' Pink list, would cost you just about £5,- comes the afternoon's shooting wait I' And she drew Elaine from Pills. They make new blood-that's 000, exclusive of special entertain- King Edward is one of the best shots the major's arm, up against the the whole secret. Through the blood ment. That is the regular average in Britain-and when the shooting you look! There' no one in the waken your liver and set your stom- King of England is the least costly solid tea ready for him in his rooms. room who is half so pretty or half dear." Elaine looked ruther surprised.

"My coasin? Yes, I think there seen her. And is she here?"

She is staying with the Bannisters. | medicines fail." thought aer just perfect until you diseases, and Dr. Williams' Pink way and that his host's banking ac-Isn't she tremendously dressed? I came in, but now! What is it you Pills will cure them all, because they count will not be hurt by the excherknow. Going to be jolly hot, I you wear look as if it grew on red blood, without which there can vocat. Some of these windows-" you? Oh, do go away for a min- be neither health nor strength. Don't Certainly - certainly, Mr. Ban- ute, Mr. Markley!" she broke off be persuaded to try something elser," says a steward who has in despair to a young fellow who take nothing but the genuine Dr. been standing near enough to catch came upon them hoping to steal a Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all another chance to say a word to her, perhaps, and there's a dance just be- by addressing the Dr. Williams Medi-

"Well, has he come?" said Elaine, with a smile.

have to be awfully artful, for the no sign of recognition, griffin"-she glanced across at Mrs. Bradley, a severe old lady in an elabsomething, I do indeed--"

"My dance, I think and hope, Miss | come !" Delaine," said the man who had been pout. "What is it, a quadrille? Oh, perhaps I can be vis-a-vis! I'll see! glare of Mrs. Bradley beneath her fellow almost fiercely. "I'd rather dance with her than with any man | May imploringly. in the room."

May was unsuccessful in her effort to be placed vis-a-vis, and the persons who took their positions opposite Elaine and her partner were Lady Blanche and Mr. Bannister.

Lady Blanche looked across at Elaine with a smile that meant to be sweet, and, as they approached near enough to speak, she said: "How do you do, Elaine? I am glad to meet you!" Elaine blushed slightly, and smiled a response, but said nothing, and the dance proceeded. At its finish Lady Blanche, on her part- she said to the young fellow, who ner's arm, came toward her and came up with a half defiant, half shy held out a hand.

"I am so glad to meet you," she said. "We only came to the Ban-

BABY'S BEST FRIEND.

The best friend baby can have is a simple medicine that will relieve and cure the minor ailments that make his little life often very miserable. Such a friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They cure indigestion, sour stomach, constipation, simple fevers, diarrhoea, and allay the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth. osity. Everybody in the room but Lady Blanche, bestowing only All mothers who have used these knows Miss Elaine Delaine, and not a glance at him, fixes her cold blue Tablets praise them. Mrs. F. L. Bourgeois, Eastern Harbor, N. S., "No; only a sentinel," laughed Ela- King breakfasts by himself, and most It is Elaine in her simple dress of says; "I have used Paby's Own Tab- ine. It is Elaine in her simple dress of lets and look upon them as baby's They passed through the open state business. When that is finished nun's veiling, with no jewels, no or- lets and look upon them as baby's Brockville, Ont.

"Here is papa to answer for himthough the knowledge stabs her she self," said Elaine, as the major "I was just saying to Elaine how "Here comes our belle, Lady strange it is we have never met, major," she said; and in an under-

> The major bowed and smiled and puffed out his spotless shirt front. "Delighted to see you here, my dear Blanche. The Earl is well, I with your tees .- From "Vest Pocket hope? You are staying with the Confidences," in Four-Track News for Bannisters? We shall be very glad | May. to see you when you can find time to look us up? Capital ball, isn't it? Great success-always is!" "Indeed, yes," said Lady Blanche, "and you ought, as a steward and the father of the belle, to be especially proud." steward's badge complacently. "Very kind of you, very kind, indeed, to admire my dear girl!" he "You'll be able to find our modest cottage? Anybody will rect you to it. Eh?" as some one touched him on the shoulder. "Excuse me! Steward, you know; must attend to duty!' And away he

of the crowd, and they stood against the visiting bishop, delivered the all sorts of bodily derangements. the walk looking on at the line of message at the former's house. The Aching head, dizzy spells, Indiges the kidneys and regulate the bowels, dressed very quistly, but very ef- burg News.

THE POOR DYSPEPTIC

Similar Sufferers Can Understand His Hours of Agony.

There is no mortal more miserable than the poor dyspeptic. He is never healthy, never happy-always ailing, oring for a dance; but presently always out of sorts. Every mouthful of food brings hours of distressevery moment of the day is spoiled and soured.

If you are a dyspeptic, you know the signs; the coated tongue, the dull headaches, the heartburn, the mind the enormous cost which has arranged to go and see it. "You wicked girl! How late you | billousness, the persistent torment | to be borne by entertainers of roywall. "Oh, my dear, how beautiful they will brace up your strength, cost of a three-days' visit, and the party returns there must be a good ness. Everything I ate tortured me. Lonsdale, lasting a week, cost some- will cost a clear £6 a head. "Who? Why, Lady Blanche, Lord I doctored almost continuously, and thing like £35,000. Delaine's daughter, your cousin, used almost everything recommended To begin with, you must not invite King smokes his fourth cigar of the for this trouble, but never got more the King. He is supposed in theory day, leaving one for the last thing than temperary relief until I began to be able to take or leave whatever at night. When the party moves for the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. he chooses. All that even the most the drawing room there will be some is a Lady Blanche, but I have never Words cannot express the good these powerful and friendly peer can do is music, which settles down into cards pills have done me. I am in better to hint at the delight he would have until bedtime. In most games the "Yes-there, look now! That fair health than I have enjoyed in years in entertaining his sovereign, and girl in the low-the very low dress. before, and I have proved that Dr. later the King announces his inten- "bridge" is played this is reduced

Bad blood is the mother of fifty unless certain he is welcome in every game. 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50, fectively, in black lace, which re-May signed and shook her head, but lieved while it accentuated her pale face and red hair. Captain Sher- often the whole house is redecorated, "No--not yet. But he may; and- | win just granced at Elaine as | le | oh, Elaine, dear, don't forget! You'll passed, but to her relief he made

Elaine looked round, and saw a from £50 to £100 a week. Usually the lacky enough to secure Elaine for her | young fellow with a frank, hand- chief carriage that meets the King some face entering the room, and has to be a new one, and costs £200 "There!" exclaimed May, with a recognized May's lover, Gerald Locke, at least. At the same time she met the stony I envy you!" she said to the young | headdress of bird of paradise plumes. "Oh, help me, dear!" whispered Elaine put out her hand and caught May's trembling one. "You silly girl!" she murmured, encouragingly. "One would think Mrs. Bradley could order him to instant be in instant touch with any im-execution !" "She can do worse than that!" pouted May. "Oh, I hope she won't see him. Elaine, we both count upon you to aid in getting a few minutes' his condolence at once. private conversation. Our lives are in your hands!"

Elaine Laughed "It's dreactully wicked," she said ; "but-- How do you do, Mr. Locke?" air, looking beyond her, as he bent over her hand, to May, who tried to hide herself behind Elaine.

"I suppose it's no use to ask for a dance, Miss Delaine?" he said. Elaine shook her head, regarding him with an amused, protecting smile.

and May--" He looked at her, and beyond her to May, eagerly, and offered his arm. "Come, May?" whispered Elaine behind her fan, angel !" murmured the young fel- allowed bread, but, to keep his weight naments save the Marechal Niel bud best friend. I have found them an window, and Elaine discreetly drew His Majesty joins the house party. in her dark hair; but it is Elaine excellent remedy for colic, and they back behind the curtains, and left A list of the other guests, by the in all the sweet freshness of her have done our baby much good in the two young lovers together. way, has to be submitted to the King youthful loveliness; with a faint | many ways." Little ones take these The room was hot, and the rest | before he comes, for his approvalcolor in her usually colorless face, Tablets as readily as candy, and the coolness of the midsummer in fact, he suggests himself the numwith a soft, joyous light in her dark mother has a guarantee that they night air were not unwelcome. She ber that shall be asked, and some teautiful eyes, and as Lady Blanche | contain no opiate or other harmful | leaned against the framework of the of the names. If you are asked to looks there come to her that sudden drug. Once used always used where window and fanned herself slowly, a house party that includes the King hot flush and cold chill of surprised, there are little ones in the home. watching the dancers as they which it is equal to an announcement that Sold by druggists or sent by mail at | ed past her. Once, twice her beau- | the King wants to see you, and it 25 cents a box by writing direct to tiful cousin, Lady Blanche, passed is just as urgent that you should go fer at sight of a beauty and a grace the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., her. on the arm of the colonel of as it would be if you were comtain Sherwin passed by again with Fanny Inchley.

(To be Costinued.)

Dress in lawn, but do not sit on it. Beware the lynx on the links. Tip the porter, but not the highball. Only a potato has any license to make goo-goo eyes. It does not require a highwayman to hold up a train. Eat clams, but do not be one. Be careful not to mix your teas

One on the Bishop.

Bishop McCabe, who presided over the New York Conference of the M. E. Church at Poughkeepsie week be- feelings which come with spring are use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The major bridled and patted his fore last, was visiting. in Fort the outward indication of the weak-Worth, Texas, not long ago. A New York paper wired him thus: "C. C. McCabe, Fort Worth, Texas: What ery the waste of the human body is the body to over-exertion, but by is your opinion on the Anglo-Amt more rapid than the process of re- enriching the blood, instills new, erican Alliance? Please wire us an- construction. Gradually the action vigor into the nerves and builds up swer." Now, it happens that there of the heart grows weaker and the whole system. By noting your resides in Fort. Worth a well- weaker, the lungs do not work to increase in weight while using this known citizen of the name of C. their full capacity, the stomach and great food cure you can prove that C. McCabe. The telegraph company other digestive organs fail to per- new, firm flesh and tissue is being Elaine's partner had led her out knowing C. C. McCabe better than form their duties, and the result is added to the body. recipient was considerably surpris- tion, feelings of weakness and de- use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Presently Captain Sherwin pass- ed, but he promptly wired this re- spondency, lack of energy to per- All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & ed with a girl whom Elaine did not | ply, "It is a -- good thing." Just form the duties of the day, loss of Co., Toronto. To protect you recognize for a moment; then as what the New York editor thought appetite, failing memory and power against imitations the portrait and she looked after them she saw that on receiving the return message of concentrating the mind, irritabli- signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the

When the King is Guest

Those Entertaining Royalty Must Have Big Bank Rolls-Nothing But the Best in the Land Should be Set Before Him

(London Answers.) The unfortunate diness of the King, sure to be a day's shooting, and if which caused the visit to Chats- there is anything interesting in the worth to be postponed, brings to neighborhood an excursion must be

And you didn't know she was here? Williams' Pink Pills cure when other tion of staying with his subject for to half crown points, which of a day or two-which he never does | course comes out very high in each;

Preparations for the Advent. The first necessity of the host is to practically refurnish the rooms the King will use, for it is an unwritten came upon them hoping to steal a Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all law that what the King uses shall medicine dealers or sent post paid at be new. Every inch of wall paper and paint and gilding must be aftered and renewed and an order given to a big firm of furnishers-generally Messrs. Warings, of London-to refurnish at once in their very best style. This will cost from £2,000 to £3,000, Very too, but in any case the royal suite must be. Then the whole staff of servants, from chief butler to kitchen She had forgotten him before the maids and stable boys, have to have music of the next dance had com- new liveries, which are not to be orate head-dress which seemed com- menced, and her new partner was worn till the time of the King's arposed of bird of paradise feathers and approaching to claim her when rival, and this means anything from cabbage leaves-"is dreadfully sharp May Bradley came behind her, and, £200 to £500. Only a famous chef can and wideawake. I believe she suspects | plucking at her dress, whispered. | be given charge of the kitchen, and "He has come, Elaine! He has the usual cook gives place to a French "artist," whose salary is > Generally the country house is some way from a telegraph office, and it is an absolute rule that a special telegraph wire must be laid at once from the nearest one, and in the house an instrument is fitted up. This usually costs from £100 to £200, and cannot be dispensed with, to £38,000. When the time comes as it is important that the King may for the King to leave the tips he portant event, such as the death of a foreign monarch or any big affair, for a royal slight in such a case is very grave, and the King sends Brings His Own Servants. He takes with him everywhere his er, staying at a country-house in private telegraphist, who has charge the shooting season, gets off with of the special wire. Then, as to the from £5 to £10, but when the King fare of the house, you cannot give comes even the stable-boys get "pathe King what you like, however per" in the distribution. costly and excellent it is. Lord When one sovereign visits another Knollys, King Edward's private sec- the tips are bigger still and when retary, writes to the host, giving the Kaiser finished his stay at Windthe smallest details of everything sor and Osborne at the time of the required, and all the King's likes and late Queen's funeral he left £5,000 dislikes. His Majesty takes his own between the two staffs. When King cigars with him; he is only allowed Edward was staying with his sisfive a day by his doctor. He must ter, the Empress Frederick, he left beg off, and if you would care to profess the China bind Too by the 25,000 as a tip for her servants. come on the balcony and talk to me prefers the China kind. Tea, by the day, and the host is instructed to have a service of it taken to the King's bedchamber at 8 a.m. Breakfast must be ready to the

"Mind! only ten | minute at 9 and served in the King's private room. Lord Knollys instructs "Miss Delaine, you-you are an the host that King Edward is not down, must eat rasks instead. The of the morning is taken up with him to write. Esau, indeed, had his

> Amusement Must be Provided. Besides this the host must send | wreck. the king a list of the amusements! Hunter-Gee whiz! Is that what

************** At this time of the year there is

Lunch, at 2 o'clock, costs, with, wines, about £ per head. Only the ach right. If you ask your neigh- -though the most difficult-of all Dinner is at 8 o'clock. It is esas well dressed! No, not even the bors you will find proof of this right royal visitors to entertain. This is pecially laid down before the visit great Lady Planche-look there, at your own home. Mr. Charles because of his personal tact and con- that dinner must not last longer dear; there, next the Lulwoods. Wood, Mars, Ont., one of the thou- sideration, for he does not care to than an hour, for King Edward dis-Did you know she was coming?" sands of dyspeptics cured by the use put a friend and subject to too great likes dawdling for a long time over "Who?" said Elaine, half laught of these pills, says: "For upwards expense. Foreign sovereigns are dessert and wine, as the Georgian ing. "I don't know whom you mean. of twelve years I was a great suf- much more expensive, and the recent habit was. He drinks little, but of I can't see-there are so many ferer from indigestion and nervous- visit that the Kaiser paid to Lord the finest quality, and the dinner When the ladies have gone the King stakes £5 units, but when

It is altogether forbidden, by the way, for anybody to withdraw for the evening until the King gives the sign and breaks up the party by rising himself. When he goes upstairs King Edward has supper in his private room, becoming host himself, and invites his entertainer and one or two of the men to join him. "Putting up" the king's servants costs about £10 a day. Besides his equerries King Edward always takes two valets, two royal footmen and a page, as well as his confidential telegraph operator. On Sunday the King goes to the local church, unless the host has a private chapel of his own on the estate, and requests all the other guests to go with him. All this sounds as though the visit must be a constant anxiety and restriction on the host and the other guests, whereas, in reality, the King is the most popular and cheery of all country-house visitors and puts everybody at ease. His visit gives much less anxiety than that of other persons not quite so exalted, because, as he arranges and "subedits" everything on the programme, down to the menus for the dinners, which are submitted to him before he comes, he is reasonably sure to be pleased. As a rule King Edward discourages anything like special extravagance, though some time ago Lady William Beresford entertained him for four days at Deepdene and the bills came bestows something prodigious. His usual tip for a week-end visit is less they are a very big staff, when It sometimes reaches £300 or more. The average guest, peer or common-

A Gifted Monkey. A gifted monkey in a London menagerie died recently. He answered to the name of Esau and was four and a half years old. His life was insured for a large sum and the manthe signature for his life policy bore Esau's own autograph, which his trainer, Capt. Delascier, had taught being credited in his own name. Cheques drawn against this sum were signed by Esau. Not a Financial Failure.

Philadelphia Ledger. McQueery-You're not so attentive to Miss Roxley as I thought you

Hunter-No. You see-er-she told me she didn't go in for social pleasures since her father had failed. McQueery-Poor old man! He le failing dreadfully. Quite a physical

he is preparing for him beforehand she meant? Here are just a few hints for the summer girls of 1903: Eat lobsters, but do not flirt with them. Blood SWatery in the Spring

It is Lacking the Essential Life-Civing Principle which is Best Obtained by the Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

The tired, languid and depressed you, and all can be avoided by the low state of vitality.

it was Fanny Inchiey. Fanny was is not a matter of record .- New- ity, nervousness and sleeplessness are famous recipe book author, are among the symptoms which distress every box of his remedies.

There is no preparation to be comened condition of the blood and the pared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a spring restorative. It does not When the blood gets thin and wat- stimulate and so whip the organs of To awaken the liver, invigorate pigments. The price is just right and all good dealers have them. You can't get better paintsmany get worse. Write us, mentioning this paper, and we'll send a booklet showing how some beautiful homes are painted A. RAMSAY & SON, Paint makers, . . MONTREAL.