ENTHUSIASM AND SUCCESS.

(Ella Wheeler Wilcox.)
It is a great thing to have enthusiasm. It is a good thing to have an idea and an aim, and to be interested in your work.

I like the people who can talk of what they love, and I do not enjoy the silent and conservative man who keeps everything to himself and expects us to consider him great because he does so.
But the enthusiast needs to cultivate discretion, and to use it occasionally.

The man with an idea and an aim should seek for balance also, and the newly-talented man should learn how to listen.
This is an age of self-analysis. Men and women are continually "digging themselves up by the roots," to see how they grow.
Introspection is excellent; yet it can be carried to an extreme. It has been worn to shreds by having a woman pull her mentality and spirituality to pieces, and explain all its intricacies to me, even while she paid me the compliment of saying I had helped her to understand her own mechanism.

I would rather she had kept it whole and busy with weaving a restful and serene character.
For beyond enthusiasm, ambition or aspiration is severity.

I have heard a man talk of his struggles, adventures, efforts and his achievements until my head whirled.
I was moved with interest, sympathy, admiration, yet, alas, with fatigue as well as with regret that he had not attained discretion and tact, as well as success in life.
It is a great art to learn to be neither too reserved nor too communicative.

The man of spontaneous self-concept is often oppressively silent. The deeper his silence the more conscious you are of his self-appreciation.
Yet that fact does not lessen the value and importance of silence.
In the most profound ocean of silence an occasional island of silence is a welcome haven.

Learn to talk just enough about yourself, your ideas, your experiences, your beliefs, to interest your listeners. Then learn how to avoid boring, tiring, or over-talking them.
It is a great art, and a difficult one.

Subjects of Thought.
One can go through his work well or slunk it. One can consider his neighbor or neglect him. One can repress the fever-fit of impatience or give it wild sway. And the perpetual presence of such a choice leaves no hour without guidance.
No man can safely govern that would not cheerfully become a subject; no man can safely command that has not truly learned to obey; and no man can safely rebuke but him that has the testimony of a good conscience.

Benevolence should never be exercised at random, nor upon irrational impulse, but should be the outcome of an expression of a disposition trained and nourished in the atmosphere of human friendship.
From a mere sense of consistency, a persecutor is bound to show that the fallen man is a villain; otherwise he, the persecutor, is a wretch himself.

Doing good is, perhaps, the only enterprise in which there is positively no element of risk.
Men are seldom more innocently employed than when they are honestly making money.
Great names debate, instead of raising, those who know not how to use them.

We prepare ourselves for eternity by doing our day's work while it is day.
Flowers that come from a good hand should be more prized than diamonds.
You cannot make a man think if he has not the apparatus to think with.

What you dislike in another take care to correct in yourself.
Something of More Importance.
Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Yes, I explained the whole theory of the new discovery to my wife."
"And what did she say?"
"She said, 'George, can you remember who the Southfield girl married?'"
"Yes, she was trying all day to think of his name."

A WOMAN ON MEN SMOKERS

According to a man's manner of smoking, you shall know him, is the opinion of a keen observer of habits and characteristics.
Let him gnaw at the end of his cigar and roll it between his lips and you may depend he is cynical, likely to look always on the wrong side of human nature and not to trust any one completely.

The man who smokes with his cigarette upwards has the traits that make for success, is brisk, aggressive, and likely to triumph over interference with his wishes.
The smoker who guards his cigar jealously and will smoke it almost up to the point of charring his mouth or burning his nose, is a tactician, scheming, self-seeking, and with an intense desire for power.

The cigar tilted toward the chin denotes the day dreamer, the person who may have ideas and ambitions but seldom the practicality to carry them out.
The cigar held steadily and horizontally indicates a calm, calculating nature, strong traits, but poor principles, the sort of man who could be brutal with indifference.

Men who tilt their cigar go out, and then try to relight it: also those who, after smoking for a while, throw the cigar away, and then throw it away, are likely to be irrational and without the capacity to put their powers to use.

Men of quick, vivacious temper hardly touch the tip of their cigar with their teeth, and after taking two or three whiffs will go out, and hold it in their hand in absent-minded fashion. They are men who change their opinions and ambitions often and require the spur of novelty or necessity to make them exert their best powers.

The man who, after lighting his cigar, holds it not only between his teeth and lips, but with two, three or four fingers of his left hand, is fastidious and possesses of much personal pride. Such a smoker will often remove the cigar and examine the lighted end to see if it is burning evenly and steadily. Such actions indicate carefulness, sagacity, and a character worthy of confidence and esteem.

The smoker who sends forth smoke from both corners of the mouth in two different puffs is crochety and hard to get along with, though he may have good mental faculties.
The spendthrift, sometimes the adventurer, is declared by the act of biting off the end of a cigar. Lack of judgment, dislike to pay debts and not over-neglect of habits are declared by this practice.

The pipe smoker who grips his pipe so firmly between his teeth that marks are left on the mouthpiece is mettlesome, of quick nervous energy, and likes to be tenacious of his opinions, one way or another.

The pipe held so that it hangs somewhat toward the chin indicates the restless, ambitious person, who might stand up to such responsibilities as come to him, but would never seek them or strive for high place.

The man who fills his pipe loosely, haphazard fashion, and emits irregular puffs of smoke, is of incautious, generous impulses, the sort of man who is a good comrade and has powers of entertaining, but whose friendship is not likely to be lasting nor to warrant implicit confidence.

The man who fills his pipe slowly and methodically, and smokes mechanically and regularly, is likely to be reserved, prudent and a good, dependable friend, while not of showy exterior.

Many smokers, no matter how many cigar cases they have, carry their cigars in the upper left-hand waistcoat pocket. This habit indicates a love of self-indulgence and disinclination to make the slightest exertion other than absolutely necessary.

These observations, it should be remembered, are those of a woman who has been observing men who smoke.

On Going to Church.
"It was the custom of Christ to attend the synagogues, to join in the songs of praise and thanksgiving, to listen to the reading of the old testament and to its lessons as enforced and illustrated by the appointed leader. From His earliest boyhood to the entering upon His Ministry He had been a regular attendant upon the House of God and, when proclaiming His Messiahship, still both as a hearer and preacher, He was thus keeping holy the Sabbath day. Christ Himself set the example of going to church. The Christian's religious needs demand the house of prayer and the assembling of God's people regularly within its walls. The disciple is not above his Lord."—Bishop Fallows.

The Great South American Rheumatism Cure; the kind that cures in a few days the most obstinate and painful cases.
If you have a friend suffering from that horror, or from lumbago or neuralgia, or from influenza, at least to offer it to him. It will relieve, with the first dose. You too.
William Marshall, of Varney Post Office, County of Gray, Ontario, writes:
"For the last year I was continually in bed. I spent hundreds of dollars in doctors and medicine which proved of little relief. The first dose of South American Rheumatism Cure gave me instant relief. I am completely cured."
THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVE TONIC builds up into vigor and health the most shattered systems. It is unequalled in female complaints, or general debility in either sex.

Tabby Wins the Clock.
Did you ever hear of a cat that wins a clock? There is one in North Dakota. Her name is Tabby, and she never has to be told when it is the time draws near, and when the hands are at the right place she climbs up and attends to the matter. Of course she doesn't have a key. It is that kind of clock. There are few women that Tabby wins the weight down that has gone up during twenty-four hours. That keeps the clock going for twenty-four hours again.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
by local applications as they cannot reach the disease portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

A SIMPLE SHEAF OR BUNDLE CARRIER is one of the many good features of the MASSEY-HARRIS Binder.
You can see by the cut how very simple and light it is.

It has great capacity, nevertheless, and is strong and well-made. It drops back from under the sheaves when dumping, without damaging the heads of grain.

FOLDING DIVIDERS—Simplest of all. A child can unlatch them and turn them in. Many other manufacturers are trying to copy this folding device—because it is so good. But MASSEY-HARRIS patents prevent them duplicating it.

His Complaint.
I am a baby, eleven months' old, and nearly worn out already. Please let me alone!
I am not a prodigy, except to the extent that, not having anything to say, I don't talk. Two big persons claim to be my parents—why can't they let it go at that? I have never denied the charge. I haven't much data to go by, but I don't think I am either a magician, a learned big, or a virtuoso. I don't hanker for applause, so, it will be an appreciated favor if you won't put me through any parlor tricks.
If I have my wealthy old Ezra's nose congratulate Uncle Ezra, but don't blame me. I may be a kleptomaniac, for all I know, but I can't help it.

Don't rattle rattles at me—they rattle me. Don't go-goo and outside-koots at me. I can't understand it any better than I can the English language.
The pain I have is not in my stomach, but in my neck. I don't want to be entertained or mystified or medicated or applauded. And, if you don't want me to grow up to be a hypochondriac, a stamp-collector, an awful example, a ping-pong enthusiast, or a misanthrope, you just lemme be!—My Smart Set.

The Woman and Her Mirror.
How much time does a woman spend before her looking-glass? A German, with true Teutonic patience, has set himself to answer this trivial question with scientific accuracy. He estimates that a girl of 6 to 10 spends an average of seven minutes a day before the mirror; from 10 to 15, a quarter of an hour is consumed daily, and from 15 to 20, twenty-two minutes. Ladies from 20 to 25 occupy twenty-five minutes; from that age to 30 they are at least half an hour at their toilette. Thence, he alleges, there is a decline.
