After the tables were served the young people enjoyed themselves with music and games until far into the night. The bride received a fine display of both useful and ornamental presents. The groom was presented with a handsome Morris chair by the J. O. F. The happy couple left the following day on their wedding tour to Owen Sound, Collingwood and other places. On returning, they will lay up their residence in Mr. J. Egan's house near the station, Durham.

THE HOUSE OF REFUGE.

Warden Preston Lays the Corner Stone

We are indebted to the Markdale Standard for an early "proof" of the proceedings at the important function of laying the corner Stone of the new County Building at Markdale. Following are extracts and condensations from the write up which we regret not being able to give in full:

"On Thursday last, June 18th, the auspicious event of laying the Corner Stone of the House of Refuge at Markdale, was successfully accomplished by D. K. Preston, Warden of the County, in the presence of a very large gathering. Notwithstanding the short notice given—as it was only decided on Tuesday that it should be laid last week—there was a large crowd was present from various other parts of the county, from Meaford, Flesherton, Durham and intermediate places. The weather was all that could have been desired."

At two o'clock the County Council assembled at the Markdale House corner, and headed by Markdale Silver Band and also by the inspiring strains of the "great Highland Pipes" under the control of a splendid sample of the genus homo from the thriving village of Price, were in the person of Mr. Peter F. McArthur—son of John McArthur, county councillor of No. 5 Division—and followed also by the scholars of Markdale Public School in charge of Principal Lowe, a quite large procession was formed and a start was made for the site of the House of Refuge. A platform had been erected at the north-east corner of the building where the stone was laid, and upon the platform the members of the County Council were seated, together with several other prominent gentlemen: Dr. Hamill, Mayor of Meaford; C. R. Sing; Matthew Richardson, M. P. for South Grey; W. Irvine, of the Durham Chronicle; C. W. Rutledge, of the Markdale Standard; W. H. Thurston, of the Flesherton Advance; Rev. Mr. Hunter, Presbyterian minister of Markdale; Rev. Mr. Chantler, one of the Methodist ministers of Markdale; Thos. Kells, an old County Councillor; W. J. Shortill, Reeve of Markdale; James Howes, Esq., of St. Vincent, and others."

John McArthur opened the proceedings by moving with felicitous remarks that Chas. Gordon, ex-warden, take the chair and Mr. Gordon got a very warm reception. After thanking the mover and the audience, and making some complimentary allusions to prosperous Markdale, he made pleasing reference to the approaching completion of the building, which he had at one time opposed, and was glad to find others among the older members who had changed sides also. He then called on Rev. Mr. Hunter who stepped forward and offered up an earnest prayer for the success of the undertaking.

Mr. M. Richardson, M. P., and an ex-warden of the County, was next called upon and was received with applause. He spoke of the pleasure given him to be present, of the beautiful weather, and was glad to meet so many old County Council Associates, particularly Messrs. Schrenk and McColman, friends of 30 years' standing. He also consented to conversion in favor of the institution they now saw under way. He congratulated the Council on the site chosen, they had made no mistake, and he rejoiced that soon the disgrace of sending our old people to gaol would be wiped out. We were coming more and more to recognize the "Brotherhood of Man" and in doing so we were honoring the "Fatherhood of God." He closed in an eloquent optimistic strain, and sat down amid applause.

Warden Preston recognized that institutions of this kind marked the difference between heathen and Christian lands. His closing words of an appropriate speech were: "In this home the old and infirm will be received and cared for. For lack of information he had opposed the erection of a House of Refuge, but on further information, he had changed his mind, and was now pleased that a structure so creditable was being erected, and he believed when it was completed we would all be proud of the structure."

Mr. McColman was glad their effort to have a House of Refuge for aged and infirm was being brought to a successful issue. Mr. Shortill, reeve of Markdale, was proud the Council had chosen Markdale, and was sure his people would show sympathy and good will to the old people who would use the building. Dr. Ego spoke briefly and eloquently, and felt honored at the choice of site, and was sure the building would honor the County Council. Rev. Mr. Hunter and Rev. Mr. Chantler spoke in similar strains and the business of the day was reached.

The Warden then with trowel and mortar prepared the bed for the stone, which was lowered and declared "well and truly laid in the name of the Father (the Son and the Holy Ghost)," and the laying of the corner stone was accomplished.

"In the cavity in the corner stone was placed a copper box, in which were placed a large number of copies of the minutes of County Council, dating from 1854 (the first year in which the county had a separate autonomy) and coming down to the present date. There was also a recent copy of each of the newspapers published in the county; one each of the silver coins of the Dominion issued in the reign of Queen Victoria, and of the silver coins issued since the beginning of the reign of Edward VII; list of the names of the present members of County Council, the County and Government officials of the county, names of members of the House of Commons and of the Local Assembly of Ontario.

Under the contract, the building is to be completed in the month of October next, and the work as far as done has the appearance of being very satisfactory and creditable to the builder."

The pupils of the Public School sang some patriotic pieces and Mr. Peter McArthur played a selection on the pipes, at intervals of the speaking.

SUMMER

Summer! Thou ideal season of the year! Compared with the low ill the rest appear Thy charms are noticed in the morning light. When the sun dispels the dusky brow of night. And through the day till twilight's hazy glow lights up the west with such a gorgeous show. And in the peaceful night when all is still! And moon beds each valley, rock and hill: Nature, how blest and happy man would be If hand in hand he daily walked with Thee. In summer thou dost beautify the land. Thy gorgeous splendor shines on every hand. The flowers, trees, the murmuring streams we hear. The limpid brooks, the foliage, sky so clear. All grouped together in one grand array. Should on the inward eye an image ray. So Summer! King's season, child of light. While present with us may we take delight In nature's beauty, aspirations high, For every day we live, a day we die.
