British Trades Delegates Meet to Discuss Methods.

GREAT CONFIDENCE IN COUNTRY

Montreal report: A private meetand of the British delegates to the copies of which have been received Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire was held here today, the object being to discuss how erally accepted principles which form the interests of Canadian industries the broad basis of success in the could best be promoted in Great Britain, and what they considered, as a result of their observations in this country, would be the best outlet for English money. There is a strong feeling manifested by the delegates that more English money should be diverted to Canada than has been the case, and that less should find its way into United States chanhels. The general feeling is that a great future is in store for Canada, and that it is on the eve of season of brilliant prosperity.

What is wanted immediately is money, and the delegates gener ally have made up their minds to influence its investment here. delegates would not state the result of the meeting. Mr. Kenneth B Murray pointed out that they were simply delegates, and as such could not pledge themselves to any course of action until ther had seen their own Chambers of Commerce. However, he had hopes that this congress would be of great benefit to Canadian industries.

The entire collection of pictures gathered by the staff of the Depart-Atroughout the wheat fields and mining districts of the west, was placed at the disposal of the delegates in the directors' room of the Boston.
