ID IT. Almost Over-

- The Herald Simpson's raisy for missions. Orpheus of the Simpson never ne convincing he not only yes of his auds so overcome oice failed him s sermon, and ly audible.

nown throughr woman, who to contribute et the moment ed his prayer, ed to him $15. has given anrears. Other sums much ited more enicle. The largthe Nyack and there r amounts of rphans in In-$15 being each. One man piedged fifty orphans will never

d Mr. Simp-

against the

the Gospel

is guilty of

arsed by cur

of gain soils

church. Four lized wealth

ery year to nd only one-

per cent. for

The Saviour

rse of Judas'

keep, while nickel. How ale of life

gaiety, with before us

preached in

ld. God save

ding in the

Conten ed

lirector of

Farmshas

tour of in-experiment-

era country

about Sas-

ad to Bat-

ord itself.

s were met

who came to home-

ken up land

ent. The themselves over the

up home-

aces where

ment. All

ad the op-

med satis-

d most of their land

inties next in obtain-

ts of the

is used

has been

Columbia

oon, while down the

EEDS.

nt.

ducation.

London-

ord Prestcession to is under-ill retain and his

make lit-

his postrry Is the line to

Charles

Suffers

Parisian

teyn, of ites, and wife and modest

ex-Pres of the s hands.

ite rest,

has had

for an even his se with s at a nervous rated his

a small

Further

nnection

a church

occur-

ancasia.

posses-

re and charged persons

States

French

nsports eilles to

Skinner.

latte.

g Mene-

m Office

cility to merican

horates

English

an op-

it Sault

ie war.

art, K.G., in barges

w building

neglect is

"Go on. Give your account what followed. Did you hear more?" "Yes, but not so distinctly; they spoke in lower voices. Miss Delaine was agitated; Captain Sherwin, I think, threatened her." "Do not tell us what you think, speak only of what you are sure."

bery. I heard every word."

quis and promise to marry him."

What passed?"

"And she refused?"

"I am sure he threatened her. She stemed desperate and hard-driven, and in the midst of the words I saw her raise her arm and something flash in her hand. The captain cried out'-the voice, almost monotonous, grew hoarse suddenly-"and I saw him fall backward over the rail of the bridge!"

The crowd could not restrain its in it. I didn't want to send a fellow pent-up excitement longer, and a woman to death." then horror, rose and filled the Delaine?" court-house. That beautiful, sweetlooking girl-Elaine, the major's daughter, had committed the crime! Gerald Locke sprang to his feet, with excitement, rose from the group shriek of laches by the bench, the usher yelied for silence, the policemen roughly pushed and elbowed the seething people swaying to and fro; for a full minute, under the shock the small, white-faced woman, every You-" the inspiration came in a flash And yet not every one. One man alone stood calm and watchful, and it was the prisoner. As if he had been expecting this statement, he stood, his eyes Tixed upon Fanny Inchley's wax-like face, his hands clinching the dock rail. He beckoned to Gerald sternly, and as Gerald pushed his way toward him, leaned over the front of the dock. "She lies!" he said, in a voice! audible to those near him. "Watch watch! Be careful! Look at her!

She is lying! "Silence!" shouted the usher. The judge held up his hand, his thin, cadaverous face as stern as it had ever been in the moment of passing sentence, and at the uplifted hand and before the terrible face the tumuit died away. The sergeant bent down and whispered to Saunders, then raised himself, and eyed the white, set face with grim intensity.

" You saw Miss Delaine stab Captain Sherwin?" "I did," came the reply, slowly, unflinchingly. she stand-before or Where did behind him? Behind him-at the side."

"He fell at once?" "At once." "You heard him cry out twice?"

"No! Once! Once only! I said once!" The sergeant nodded.

"Yes, you said once. What did you do? Hush!" for a movement was ingly. heard near the entrance. "My lord, I must ask your lordship

He stopped, for he saw that the movement among the crowd was caused by the entrance of Elaine and May and the major. He stopped and looked at the pale, sorrow-stricken face of the girl who had just been accused of the hideous crime, and faltered. In all his experience-and how marvelous and varied it had been !-he had never known of a case to equal this. Fanny luchley's eyes wandered from the wall at which she had been staring, and followed Elaine as she went to her seat at the solicitors' table: followed her with an expression of hate and malevolence which, from the white lips of Luigi Zanti. though it was as fleeting as a passing shadow, was seen and noted by stab the deceased, what did you do ?" A cry, a faint cry of horror, broke in upon the question. It came from Elaine; and she looked round, and then at Fanny Inchiey, as if she doubted the evidence of her own

Fanny Inchley fixed her eyes on the old spot on the wall. "I ran away."

"You ran away? You saw the deceased stabbed-you saw him fallthere was only another woman a woman like yourself-and you ran away ?"

"I did. I-I was frightened." "Where did you go?"

"Home-to the castle, to my room." Elaine sat, both her hands tight- your seat, sir." ly clasped in May's, her eyes fixed "No, my lord," said Luigi, with prowith wild amazement and horror on found respect. "It is better that I the white face of the witness, her should retire, for I, too, shall be a breatn coming and going in pain- witness," and he let Ingram lead detective. Brown, and he quietly and those near her noticed that she

BABY'S FIRST TOOTH.

Swollen, tender gums cause a fever- you went round by the lawn?" ish, fretful condition, sometimes seriously affecting baby's health. This ! is given by Mrs. J. Peckover, New him?" Liskeard, Ont., who says: "I am the mother of six children, and I can | moment, then she said: truthfully say that Baby's Own Tablets is better than any other medieine I have ever used for the ills of little ones. I can especially recommend them for teething children, and would advise all mothers to use ly revealed, hard as she tried to

The Tablets cure all the minor ills | slip of the tongue by which she from which infants and young chil- bad mentioned the letter. dren suffer, and are guaranteed to "You must answer the question," ination. contain no opiate or harmful drug. said the judge, "unless you think "Tell us what happened after you Sold by all medicine dealers or by that it will incriminate you." mail at 25 cents a box by writing She was silent, and looked under direct to the Dr Williams' Medicine her lashes from side to side. Co. Brockvil'e, Ont.

The Rose and Lily Dagger

A TALE OF WOMAN'S LOVE AND WOMAN'S PERFIDY & A A

"I did. And heard them. I was | made his way from the court. standing near them, behind the shrub-Gerald Locke rose. "You cross-examine the witness,

She moistened her lips, but her eyes did not move, nor her voice "Yes, my lord! My client is innocent of this crime, but neither he nor "He made love to her. He want-I will accept a verdict of acquittal ed her to break off with the maron the evidence of this woman." A murmur of applause arose, which was instantly suppressed. "For a time, yes. Then he threat-"You say you saw Miss Delaine ened her, and she yielded; she constab Captain Sherwin?" sented to break with the mar-"I did. I saw her. She cannot deny it!" came from the thin lips, and the gray eyes, like a wolf's now, dropped on Elaine's face. "Attend to me, please," said Gerald, sternly. "And you went home and told no one of what you had seen?"

"No." "Why not? An innocent man was accused, wrongly accused according to your account. This that you have said in court to-day would have tended to clear him, save him. Why did you not speak out at the examination before the magistrates?"

"Ah, why?" said a voice in the crowd. Fanny Inchley's thin lips tightly.

cry of amazement, incredulity, and "You bore no grudge against Miss "I ? No."

"You and Captain Sherwin were friends?" "Yes-friends." The slight hesitation gave Gerald the clue. (

"More than friends?" She hesitated again, and her eyes hid behind the long lids. "Answer! You knew Captain Shercreated by the few quiet words of brought him to the bridge, you know. win intimately, did you not? You had

> She started, and her small hands "It's-it's not true!" she exclaimed, panting. "It's a lie, whoever says

-"you were lovers?"

"It is? Then why should Captain Sherwin come to the bridge at your bidding? You say you did not know that he was in love with Miss Delaine and had proposed to her?" The sharp gray eyes looked round the court cunningly, just as those of a fox look round at the moment the cry of the hounds breaks on his "Answer, please. But take your time." "I don't know. When I gave him the letter--" "The letter! What letter?" demanded Gerald, swiftly. She looked round again

"The letter-the letter she stabbed him to get. Elaine leaned forward as if about to rise, but May held her down. "This is the first time you have spoken of a letter," said Gerald. What was this letter?" "I-I don't know." "But you gave it to him, you say."

"I-I did not!" "Yes! You did. What letter was it? Come ?" The marquis leaned forward, his

"Ask her!" broke from him sternhaggard face set hard and stern. "Silence!" cried the usher warn-

"Come!" repeated Gerald. She glanced down at him. "I don't know. I-I made a mis

"I have no doubt you did. But I let it pass, for the present. You ran away when you saw Miss Delaine-as you say-stab Captain Sherwin? Which way did you go ?" "Which way ?"

endeavoring to remember. lawn."

"It is a lie!" said a voice. Gerald Locke moved his head in the direction whence the voice had come, and saw that the denial had sprung The blind man had not uttered a single word, had scarcely moved since he had entered, but had sat, "After you had seen Miss Delaine his head leaning on his hand, his sightless eyes turned to the person who might be speaking, listening intently, breathlessly.

"Who uttered that improper exclamation?" said the judge, sternly. The blind man rose, pale, but singularly composed. "It was i, my sord," he said, respectfully. "I beg pardon. The words were wrung from me." "Leave the court," said the judge. Luigi fumbled for his stick, and the marquis bent down and touched his shoulder pityingly, tenderly.

"The poor gentleman - a great friend of the prisoner's- blind, my lord," whispered the clerk. "Stay," said the judge. "Resume him from the court. The sergeant sat down. As he did | Fanny Inchley had watched this so. Saunders whispered to his fellow | incident under her half-lowered lids. strained fashion, but she turned at once to Gerald as he resumed:

baby suffers while cutting teeth. the Castle. Do you still say that said the sergeant. "You saw by it, in "I do." "Now, then, for the letter. What

"You cannot have forgotten the can be overcome, and the teething letter was it that you gave Captain process made easy by the use of Sherwin, and for the possession of speak, but Gerald Locke held up his Baby's Own Tablets. Proof of this which, you say, Miss Delaine asked hand. Fanny Inchley was silent for a

> "I refuse to answer." The judge looked up. "I refuse to answer," she peated, and in her face was clearmask it, her inward fury at the the letter from Captain Sherwin? "Yes," sullenly. "Very good," said Gerald. "Now, Miss Inchiey, one question and I have done. Had Captain Sherwin promised to marry you? Be careful. Take your time." all that pride and caution were battling together in her bosom. At last she raised her white face, and flashed her gray eyes round the

"He had!" she said, "He would have married me, but-" she stopped, but her glance at Elaine finished the sentence as plainly as if Mr. Locke?" said the judge gravely. | Gerald motioned that he had done with her, and she turned and left the soothes the Lecves, loosens the mushox. The people were massed close up | cles and banishes rheumatism from > ill-faint." And they made way for her.

The sergeant rose. tinue her evidence--" Gerald sprang to his feet.

surprise as it has my learned friend, six months ago, and I have not had their stock elsewhere or lose heav- was only by exercising the most de-

Elaine drew her hands away from tion, Leadaches, backaches, kidney May, and stepped to the place in troubles, and the ailments that make which she had stood when she was the lives of so many women a source giving her evidence, and though her of almost constant misery. Imita- | year-olds for prices in the neighborface was still pale, there was a tions and substitutes are sometimes light in her eyes which made the offered, and the buyer should see buy stockers this fall at anything poor old major's aching heart throb that the full name, "Dr. Williams' like the prices prevailing for the last

"I wish to tell all I know, please," she said, in a low, distinct voice. If in doubt send direct to the Dr. usual on the ranches thi sfall; and his hands with an air of resigna- Ont., and the pills will be mailed at | tlemen that usually purchase a numtion. There had been so much in- 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. ber of stockers at this season of the erable quantity. Dinner at 6 consistpresumed he thought that to insist upon strict legal form now would be inconsistent. The sergeant shrugged his shoul-

"When interrupted by the indisposition which we all regret, Miss Delaine, I was asking you what it was that Captain Sherwin had told you which induced you to consent to his proposal that you should break off your engagement with the prisoner. I repeat that ques-

Elaine looked steadily at him. "It was a letter which Captain Sherwin gave me," she said, "Then there was a letter!" murmured the crowd.

"A letter. Can you tell me the contents? Perhaps you have preserved it ?" "I have."

She put her hand in the bosom of her dress, and took out the letter and handed it to him. As she did so the marquis bent forward eagerly and saw it; and as he recognized it an exclamation I found it behind the settee in the broke from him which electrified the hall. Signor Luigi will remember-I whole court. "My God!" he exclaimed. "I see it all!" CHAPTER XXXVII. All eyes were turned from the lettor which the sergeant held in his hand to the marquis as he uttered the significant words, "I see it all!"

said; soner, but it is anything but plain | laine," he said, gravely. to me and the jury !" "I will read the letter," said the sergeant, gravely. arrived here quite safely, but very own purposes?" tired. I quite agree with you that She looked down, and seemed to be for the present our secret should remain a secret still, but I tell you "Round by the long walk by the fankly that I am getting tired of didn't bargain for all this dullness and-and-" her voice broke into a and dreariness, and I don't think you sob, "he admitted it all!" can expect me to endure it much money-I know you will wonder what | "Elaine: Look at me--' I've done with that you gave me, but money and I are soon parted; besides, it was a bargain that I should have as much as I (wanted; and I mean to keep you to that part of the contract, anyway. My cough is just the louched Gerald. same as ever. I don't tancy I shall I'd rather have gone to Paris, where gone, his manner now agitated and unique distinction among English approach of an enemy, an object naoneself. I hate being bored, as you of the letter?" know. You'd better send me a cheque for two hundred pounds while you are about it. Did you buy me that letter, Miss Delaine?" pearl ring I fancied? There was a necklace went with it, I think; if so, you might get that at the same time. And don't forget the shawl I saw at the Oriental place in Regent street. was too astounded to speak for a Your affectionate wife, Pauline." A profound silence followed the ser- for the letter to be handed to him. geant's reading of the letter. It was a day of surprises, and the amazement of the audience was too great to admit of utterance.

The marquis, with pale face and now flashing eyes, bent forward and seemed about to speak, to address Elaine, who stood with tightly-clasped hands and downcast eyes; but the marquis closed his lips. "And it was this letter, which Captain Sherwin gave you, that decided short that he was-already mar-"Yes," said Elaine, almost inaudibly. The marquis seemed again about to "Let the jury see the letter," said the judge. The letter was passed to the jury. and then to the judge, who handed it to Gerald. Gerald examined it. his brain feeling not and bewildered. The marquis already married! It could not be true, the letter must be a clumsy

The sergeant continued his exam-

A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Even the Most Stubborn Cases of this Painful Malady Can be Cured. Rheumatism is caused by acid in the blood. That is an undisputed She hesitated. It was evident to medical truth. Liniments, outward applications, and alleged electric treatment can never cure what is rooted in the blood. A blood disease like rheumatism must be cured through the blood. That is why rkeumatism always yields like magic to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills-they actaully make new, rich, red blood This new blood conquers the painful poison, sweeps out the aching acid, to it, but she forced her way through the system. Proof of this is found in the case of Mr. Charles Leatherdale, "Let me pass," she panted, "I am a popular young druggist's assistant, of Tilbury, Ont. He says: "I know from personal experience that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheuma-"That is my case, my lord," he tism, because they cured me of a sesaid. "After the evidence of the last | vere attack that for months caused witness I should not be justified in | me many sleepless nights and painful calling upon Miss Delaine to con- days. I had tried a number of other "My lord, without exchanging one the pains began to leave me, and by is willing—yes, and anxious, to con- my belief that a fair course of Dr. There are several reasons for this in overcoming the painful exhaustion

Pink Pills for Pale People," is printed | two or three years. on the wrapper around every box. Again, winter feed is scarcer than think I fainted in the shrubbery. It was dark, and I lost my way. I remember that the thorns cut my hand--" The marquis started.

"And then I must have fainted and fallen. "How long did you lie in a faint?" asked the sergeant.

She shook her head "I do not know." "Did you hear anything, any cry such as was spoken of by the other witnesses ?"

"No!" "You knew nothing of the death of Captain Sherwin?" "Not until I read it in the paper at Lucerne, before my illness. I wish to speak of the-dagger," she added, in a low voice."

"The dagger?" said the sergeant. "Had you seen it before or after the murder?" "Before. On my first visit to the castle; and on the day of the murder showed it to him.' The court listened breathlessly. Was she going to convict herself? "What did you do with it?" asked the sergeant.

"I laid it on the top of the glass case in the hall," answered Elaine. "And I have not seen it since-until now," and she glanced with a shudder and the judge looked across at him at the horrible thing, as the sergeant keenly and with a grim smile as he held it out to her to identify. The sergeant paused. "I have no "It may be all plain to the pri- more questions to ask you, Miss De- a gift. It is safe to predict that in der town which has occupied many Gerald rose, the letter in his hand. "Will you tell us why you believed this letter to be genuine, Miss De- Publication Clerk. 'My Dear Ernest'-the prisoner's laine? Did it not occur to you that name is Ernest, gentlemen of the jury, it might have been a forgery con-Ernest Edwynd-'My dear Ernest, I cocted by Captain Sherwin for his FEATS OF NOTED WALKERS

"It did. But-" she hid her face in her hands for a second-"the marquis admitted that it was genuine. "You saw him, then, that evening?" this mystery and concealment. I bly. "I saw him in the drawing-room, "Yes," she replied, almost inaudi-

"Never!" burst from the marquis longer. Please send me some more in passionate denial and entreaty. "Silence!" cried the usher,

The crowd swayed to and fro. Elaine raised her eyes to his with sad reproach in them. The marquis leaned forward and "There is a hideous mistake!" he like this place; it seems a dull hole. whispe ed hoarsely, all his calm > Gerald handed it to Elaine. "Will you read me the date of the "July the 17in, 1888," she read. The marquis raised his hand. "No!" he exclaimed. "It is 1885."

> No one cried silence; every one moment. Then the judge motioned

(To be Continued.)

A Sultana's English.

The ladies of the Levant, it would seem, are not afflicted with the "cacoethes scribendi." They do not was breathing quickly, and in a con- usher sternly called silence, and the worry the book reviewer. They seldom write a letter, and when they Every mother knows how much way you went from the bridge to you to break off with the prisoner?" technique almost a matter of private enterprise. Here, for exam--My Noble Friend: Here are the featherses sent. My soul, my nothese featherses? And these feath- liver out of difficulty. "Tell us what happened after you want featherses of every desolation on liver, kidneys and bowels Toronto. To protect you against ensure a thorough cleansing of the imitations, the portrait and signated the lady is cautions, and only signs | system. "I left the bridge then, left Cap- herself, "You Know Who."-Lon- There is probably no one organ re- receipt book author, are on every, "You say that Miss Delaine got tain Sherwin. I-I was ill, and-I don Daily Chronicle.

No Demand for Stockers Ou There at Present.

REASONS FOR THIS

Mr. F. W. Hodson, Dominion Live present the trade in stockers between the older provinces and the consecutive hours, a mile in every Northwest Territories is in a very hour, such a performance being then unsatisfactory condition, and many of those who have been shipping Newmarket heath on June 1, 1809. young cattle to the Northwest this lasting until July 12, or nearly fortyseason have been very much disappointed in the prices realized.

Under date of September 22nd, Mr. Chas. W. Peterson, Secretary of the medicines, but they failed. Then I Territorial Live Stock Association, "No," said the judge, gravely, but decided to give the pills a trial. Be- writes: "Within the past week from tion. As nearly every one knows fore I had finished the second box four hundred to six hundred stockword with Miss Delaine, and not- the time I had taken two more boxes ers have reached Calgary alone, withstanding that Fanny Inchley's a twinge of rheumatism since. It is and the demand here is absolutely statement has taken me as much by like a new man. That is more than nil. These people must either take Williams'Pink Pills will drive the condition of affairs. Finished cat- resultant from the loss of regular Elaine rose. The marquis, after a most stubborn case of rheumatism tie have been selling at unprecedent- sleep for such a lengthy period. His look of doubt and terrible distress, out of the system, and as a result of edly low prices. It is stated on good weight at start was substantial, raised his head and looked at her. my own experience I cheerfully re- authority that the entire output of being 13 stone 4 pounds, while at "The decision lies with Miss De- The pills cure all blood and nerve Southern Alberta was sold at $32.50 nourishment and sleeping almost conwill expect her to say one word ica, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' year-old cattle. Naturally, therefore, men that paid $22.00 per head The pedestrian's bill-of-fare during for yearlings two years ago and have sold them this season as threehood of $32.00, are not anxious to

The judge sank back, and folded Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, as a consequence many of the catyear have scarcely hay enough to ed either of roast beef or more chops, carry their breeding stock through | with which he drank porter and two satisfactory condition of the stock- at 11 consisted of a cold fowl, the er trade, not only in the Northwest, pedestrian having, we are told, conbut also in the older Provinces, is sumed five or six pounds of animal the poor quality of a large number food during the twenty-four hours, of the young cattle that have been garnished with such vegetables as placed on the market during the last | were in season. few years. Many of these were as far from the right kind of raw material from which to make finished beef as they well could be. During a quarter of a century ago, although period of high prices, markets are not so discriminating in the qual- | fair sex were credited with equaling ity of the goods offered, but when Captain Barclay's great walk, truit prices are low, markets are more sensitive; they are more easily overstocked; buyers are more careful in making their selections; and it becomes a case of the survival of the fittest only. A high class product of any kind will always command a fair price; but on a depressed market inferior stuff must be sacrificed at prices far below the cost of produc-The ranchers have also discovered that they must be more careful in the selection of their bulls than heretoforre, and Ontario breeders will do well to make a note of this. During recent years every bull-calf. that was eligible for registration was saved with a view to selling him at some sort of price for the ranches; that was walled about was common but the ranchers have discovered enough, but there are very few that they must pay more attention to quality and breeding, and that serve their walls. Of these few, unfirst-class bulls are cheaper at a doubtedly the most unique is Bergood price than registered scrubs as wick Upon-Tweed, the old bora very short time it will not be pos- a page of the history of England, sible to sell inferior bulls to the and which to this very day enjoys 84 Years Old. almost mad with excitement.

to victory at Newmarket, Charles | itors to the town.

wers, and it has been stated that none could excel him in his favorite walk from Whitehall to Hampton Court. The earliest long-distance walker whose performances were authenticated appears to have been Foster Powell, a limb of the law with a penchant for walking from London to York and back. His first journey was made in 1773, when be covered the distance of 394 miles in six days, with nearly six hours to spare. At the close of 1808 Capt. Barclay. Stock Commissioner, says that at fairly electrified the whole country by undertaking for a wage of 1,000 unprecedented. The match was much discussed, a start being made over two days in all. No performance was ever better authenticated and so thoroughly did the judges perform their task that the state of the weather was recorded and an elaborate diary written up each day Capt. Barclay proved successful in his lengthy undertaking. This interesting diary, however, discloses the this walk was no less gigantic than the task accomplished.

Breakfast at 5 consisted of such trifles as a roast fowl, washed down with a pint of strong ale, and foilowed by two cups of tea, with bread and butter. After what appears a very lengthy interval lunch followed at 12, either from beefsteaks or mutton chops, of which latter comor three glasses of wine, and to wind Another reason for the present un- up the day as he commenced, supper

After 1817 the craze for ling-distance walking seems almost to have died out, only to appear again a in the interval two members of the remarkable instances of feminine endurance if properly authenticated. In 1851, also, a sprightly country dame, wanting barely sixteen years to become a centenarian, suddenly resolved to see something of the world, and, accordingly, Mary Callinack, a Cornish fishwoman, actually succeeded in walking from Penzance to London, a distance of nearly 300 miles, in order to view the wonders of the great exhibition in Hype Park. Mary created a great sensation there, being noticed by Queen Victoria .- Strand Magazine.

W alled Town in Britain. In days of old, when might was right, the cities in the Old World towns in Britain to-day which preranchers at any price. W. A. Clemens, | the distinction of special mention as a place apart from the United Kingdom in every royal procamation is-Here the old battlements built in the time of Queen Elizabeth remains Remarkable Achievement of a Woman | intact with all but one of the ancient gateways, and even in some cases the very ponderous gates them-The present interest in long-dig- seles on their old rusty hinges. In tance walking, first aroused by the | reality there are two walls, the out-Stock Exchange's little jaunt to side and the old one, of which now Brighton, is but another instance only some fragments remain standof history repeating itself. Barely ing, dating back to the far off times a century ago the feats of Captain of Edward the First, who, in the Barclay and others attracted suf- great hall of Berwick Castle-only a ficient attention to send the town small part of which now remainsdecreed that Baliol should be King Even royalty itself has been num- of Scotland, a decree which, as evebered among the exponents of pe- ery schoolboy knows was soon set destrianism, and that much-abused defiance by Bruce and his hardy monarch. Charles II. is certainly warriors. On this outer line of the entitled to respect as a fine spe- ramparts still stands the tower in cimen of an all-around sportsman. which the warning notes of the Apart from enjoying perhaps the war bell were rung to denote the sovereigns of riding his own horses turally of great interest to all vis-

Are You Bilious? Blame the Liver

Scores of the Common IIIs of Life Due to Disorders of the Liver are Curable by

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY LIVER PILLS

If you are bilious, blame the liver. | liver. Overeating, excessive drinks If your digestion is impaired and ing or irregular meals are very likely, you suffer from headache and dizzy to urset the action of the liver, ovspells, blame the liver. If your erload the system with bile and do their style is naive, and their bowels are irregular, constitution bring on billiousness or sick headand looseness alternating, blame the ache. Keer the liver in health by liver. If you have gain under the using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills shoulder blades, feelings of fullness and you will avoid many of the ple, is a note from a sultana to after meals, aching limbs, a yellow common ills of life. There will then her commissioner: "Constantinople, muddy complexion, blame the liver. | be no constipation, the stomach Torrid, sluggish action of the liver troubles, no danger of kidney and is responsible for all these symp- urinary derangements. toms and while you have a right The position which Dr. Chase's ble friend, are there no other fea- to blame the liver, it may be we'l Kidney-Liver Pills hold to-day as therses leaved in the shop besides for you to set about to help the the leading family medicine is unsponsible for so many it's as the box erses remains, and these featherses Though bile, which the healthy prompt action on the liver and their are silky. They are dear, who liver filters from the blood, is na- combined effort on the kidneys and buys dhese? And, my noble friend, ture's cathartic, and is necessary to bowels. There is no medicine of we want a noat from yourself. healthful and regular action of the tainable which is more useful in Those you brot last tim were beau- bowels, it is roison when left in the cases of emergency when the digesriful. We had searched. My soul, I blood and gives rise to many distive. urinary or excretory systems want featherses. Again of those tressing symptoms. The use of Dr. are deranged than this great prefeatherses. In Kalada there is Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills promptly scription of Dr. A. W. Chase. One plenty of feather. Whatever been I cures torrid liver and biliousness, rill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all only want beautiful featherses. I and because of their combined ac- dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co.