COUNTY COUNCIL.
Concluded from last week.

Mr Gordon supported Mr Brown's view that the clause was not running concurrent with the object in erecting the house of refuge—which was to create a place where the aged poor and indigent would be treated as they should be in a civilized community. The clause was a direct incentive to improper motives—that of not sending persons to the house of refuge, but of starving them out of the municipality into some other, where if they were not cared for they were going to die. The intention was to give fair Christian-like treatment to the unfortunate. He had, as they knew, visited the other houses of refuge, and wherever the proposed system had been adopted it was found to be a failure. Out of fourteen counties having houses of refuge only two—Simcoe and Essex—had adopted the proposed plan and Simcoe was about to change it at its January session. It statistics count there is the most overwhelming proof that the county of Grey was making a mistake. It was unfortunate to start wrong, and the burden of evidence was against the adoption of the clause, which was not in keeping with the true spirit of the movement. He read a list of the names of refuge he had visited, showing that with two exceptions all were supplied by the county town.

Mr Shute said that the county council had agreed to the providing of the house of refuge and had met the cost of all its supplies. The people had said "Give us a house for the poor," and the county had supplied the demand. Now they were asked to maintain it. He thought that it was fair now that the house was supplied that the municipalities should assume the individual responsibility.

Mr Bell said while he had great confidence in experience the house of refuge was a new matter to them. The by-law was not cast iron and if it was found after experience that the proposed system was not adapted to the requirements, it could be changed. Mr Gordon's explanation would lead to the conclusion that the amendment would perhaps be the best move. But as the by-law read it would be the most popular in the county of Grey at present.

Mr McKinnon thought nothing could be fairer than the provision set forth in the by-law as it read. The municipality paying the largest county rate would probably have the largest proportion of inmates in any case. He did not see that there was anything to be gained by allowing the by-law to pass as it was. He intimated the case of the grant to the local municipalities out of the county funds for the construction of road and bridges. Had that not been repealed the county would not now have to be building bridges all over the county. The house of refuge support if borne by the municipalities would be less expensive and cause less friction.

Mr Paterson thought little would be gained by a continued discussion. The by-law as it now read would make provision that would be the most popular all over the county. They were there to legislate as the representatives of the majority. The county had met all the expense of supplying and equipping the house of refuge and it was now but fair and equitable that the municipalities should look after their own indigents.

Mr Brown said that he had no doubt that the municipalities which he represented were quite able to take care of all his poor. But when the council knew that Simcoe was about to recede the very step suggested by the by-law, was it wise not to amend the by-law now? He contended that the by-law should not have been left to the eleventh hour but that plenty of time should have been taken to thresh out the points on which they differed in opinion.

No further discussion followed and Mr Brown's amendment was defeated. Messrs Gordon and Schenk being the other supporters. The other clauses were passed without debate.

Bylaw 643 relating to the inspectors remuneration as altered by recent statute was filled up in committee as follows. For West Grey inspectors the salary was fixed at $120, for South Grey $126, and for East Grey $741 over and above such sums as may be payable by the government.

Bylaw 646 relating to the guaranteeing of the debentures by the county of Grey opened another debate by the suggestion of Mr Shute that the bylaw be made permissive instead of imperative. Mr Gordon contended that the change would defeat the effect of the bylaw. Mr Allen was opposed to the laying over of the bylaw until the January session, and both he and Mr McKinnon scored the council on its dilatoriness in getting down to business in the early stages of the session while Mr Paterson defended the council on the ground that the committees had not advanced their work far enough to admit of any deliberation sooner. It was after 12 o'clock when the motion to rise with power to sit again was passed.

An afternoon session was inevitable and the council adjourned until 2 o'clock.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The closing hours of the November session was remarkable for the expeditious transaction of business. Mr Schenk was the only one compelled to catch a train. Mr Doyle taking his seat and exchanging greetings with the members.

It was decided without discussion to accept Mr Allen's suggestion and leave bylaw 647 over until the January session. Bylaw 647 to guarantee the local improvement debentures of the town of Owen Sound was then taken up in committee. Its provisions were accepted without debate, Mr Allen simply recording his opposition on the principle.

Bylaws 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 647 as passed in committee were on motion passed through their final stages.

A motion authorizing the payment of $10 to each chairman of the standing committees was carried.

The warden was then requested to vacate the chair and Mr Pringle asked to preside, when it was moved by Mr Gordon, seconded by Mr Paterson, that the thanks of this council are hereby tendered to D K

Preston, Esq., for the able, courteous and impartial manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of this council, a warden, for this year, and that, to cover his disbursements while attending to the duties of his office, the sum of one hundred dollars be paid to him. The motion was carried unanimously. The council joining heartily in singing He's a Jolly Good Fellow.

On returning to the chair Mr Preston expressed his deepest sense of appreciation at the kindly feeling as displayed by the council. He was indeed indebted to them for the courteous attention and assistance they had afforded him in all the deliberations of the council. He could not but express the appreciation further of the assistance the county clerk had been to him. In all the relationships and duties Mr Rutherford's actions had been those of a brother rather than as an official of the county.

Auld Lang Syne and the national anthem concluded the session.
