PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Bert Moore, who has been in the West for some time, returned to town Saturday last.

Mr. Harry Cornish, accompanied by his sister Miss Minnie and Miss Dawson, of Normanby, visited at Mr. Geo. McDonald's on Sunday last.

Mr. Hugh McNab, of Riverview, Man., who has been at his home in Glenelg for the last three months drove to Drayton on Monday, where, with friends, he is gathering a few cars of settler's effects to take west.

Dr. Jamieson, M. P. P., and reeve Morice of Normanby, found themselves at Guelph on Friday last week and track to Palmerston blocked. They hired livery from town to town and got none in the evening.

To the Editor of the REVIEW: SIR: I see by the last issue of 'The Chronicle' that the individual who writes the mess which is dished up as 'Corner Concerns' has again been poking his nose into other people's business. So long as he confines his impertinent allusions to private individuals we bore with him, now when he gets so far ahead of his brain and decency in interfering with an order like the Sons of Scotland, an order which his nationality prevents him ever becoming even a member of, we certainly have to call him down. What on earth does he know about the order? Or Ben Nevis Camp who is isolated for or not? For the benefit of those who are interested, Mr. Miller was proposed and balloted for in a regular meeting of Ben Nevis Camp No. 45, Sons of Scotland, Feb. 19th. When the Society wishes to report any of their doings they can do so themselves without asking Jim Mack to do so from the second concession of Egremont and desire him to confine himself to the back line where he lives. Thanks for space. An officer of BEN NEVIS CAMP.

TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION.

The Legislature, free from the pyrotechnics of last year is getting through some work this year. A new Assessment bill is an important measure, but containing much that gives rise to criticism. Then the giving or guaranteeing a loan of $200,000 to reconstitute the Soo industries is a measure of importance, but perhaps the session will be remembered for its action or non-action in regard to legislation aiming to restrict the liquor traffic. A measure of this kind was to be introduced last year, but was shelved by the time taken up with Gamey charges. Now Premier Ross seems bound to make good the promise of Sir Oliver Mowat and concurred in by himself as a member of the government. A liberal caucus was held last week which might as well have been a public meeting, for the business done seems to be public property. Here it was found the Premier was far in advance of his party with a proposal to abolish bar and hotel license altogether and have the necessary sale for purposes other than beverage controlled by government. This received scant support. An alternative scheme to have a compellable vote for local option got more favor. Others want a reduction of about one-third in the number of licenses, but making the two-thirds pay an amount equal to the three. Some wanted an improvement in the personnel of the licensing commission, others had a proposal to change license inspectors from place to place to prevent collusion with license holders, &c. This week will likely see a bill introduced containing some of these suggestions.

Whatever is done it is high time the whole question was divorced from politics. We have no patience with so-called temperance men who want to manipulate the "vote" for party purposes and, like many others, are forced to consider the "vote" a very uncertain quantity anyway. The defeat of Dr. Stewart in Centre Bruce taught that fact very clearly. The constituency piled up a big vote at the referendum in favor of restriction. Dr. Stewart accepted the pledge of the temperance leaders, his opponent would not, and yet Dr. Stewart was defeated showing plainly that the principle in view at the referendum was trodden under foot in the mire of party politics.

THE LATE NOAR WENGER.

We take the following extract from the Ayton Advance of last week as being appropriately appreciative of its deceased townsman.

Deceased had a wonderful capacity for business. Business was a pleasure to him and no man dealt with the public on more honest, even and satisfactory conditions than he. These methods coupled with close application resulted in considerable of this world's goods, and wealth seldom centered into more liberal or unselfish hands than his. He valued it, chiefly because of the leverage it gave him in doing good, in being useful to his fellowman. Every philanthropic movement set on foot for the elevation of the needy and the betterment of humanity had his sanction and substantial support—no appeal was ever made to him from a distressed source that was not harkened to and relieved. His was a noble, generous nature, sifted clean of everything that was not good, kind and charitable. Noah Wenger would live in the fondest memory of the people of Ayton and surroundings. Since his demise the writer has heard it repeatedly remarked that he died without an enemy, and which of us on making out his exit from this mortal stage would wish to leave behind us a more enviable record than that.

Mr Wenger was a member of the Presbyterian church in this village and one of its best supporters. In politics he did not take an active part but supported the Liberal cause.

CHANGES IN FISHERY LAWS.

The Ontario Fisheries authorities have forwarded to the department of Fisheries at Ottawa a number of suggested changes in the regulations in this province from being fished out. These will probably be accepted at Ottawa, with possibly a few minor changes. Some of the more important suggestions are as follows:

- 1. To confer Dominion authority upon provincial fisheries overseers.
2. To specify a minimum penalty of $10 for fisheries violations.
3. To compel owners of private ponds to observe the regulations.
4. To prohibit all fishing except under provincial license excluding only hook and line angling.
5. Fishermen's huts on the ice to be licensed.
6. To define by law the mesh of all nets.
7. The following close seasons: Speckled trout, Sept 1 to April 30; black bass and maskinonge, Jan 1 to June 30; pickerel or dore and rainbow trout, Jan 1 to May 15; lake herring, criscoe, etc., Nov 1 to 30; lake trout, Oct 15 to Nov 30.
8. The following minimum sizes of fish which may be taken: Black bass ten inches; speckled trout, six inches; maskinonge, thirty inches; yellow pickerel, 15 inches; blue pickerel, 12 inches; sturgeon, 30 inches; whitefish, two pounds; lake trout, two pounds. All under the size and weight named above to be replaced alive in the water.
9. Number of fish to be legally allowed per diem: Black bass, eight; speckled trout, twenty; maskinonge, four; yellow pickerel, twelve, and lake trout, four.
10. Sale or export of black bass, maskinonge, and speckled trout to be prohibited for three years.
11. Netting of black bass and maskinonge to be forbidden.
12. Artificial lights and flares, drying and beating fish, to be prohibited.
13. Fishing with nets below a dam, fall, fishway, or mouth of a river, forbidden.
The Federal Commissioner considers three hundred yards excessive. The other suggestions he considered effective. He also submits grave reasons why trap nets should not be employed. He considers that a close season, enforced effectively, is all that is really needed. And that the prohibited sale and export of game fish will be more beneficial than a lengthy close season violated all the time.
