Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Impure blood always shows somewhere. If the skin, then boils, pimples, rashes. If the nerves, then neuralgia, nervousness, depression. If the stomach, then dyspepsia, biliousness, loss of appetite. Your doctor knows the remedy, used for 60 years.

Return from the Cuban war, I was a perfect wreck. My blood was bad, and my health was gone. But a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla completely cured me.

Reliable Seed Corn Difficult to Obtain.

As a fodder crop the corn plant is an important one. For ensilage purposes a proper combination of stalk, leaves and ears is desired. Varieties that are suitable for ensilage are now, as a rule, the most profitable to grow for husking on the same farm or in the immediate locality. The largest yields of fodder are obtained from the later ripening varieties and for ensilage the best returns are obtained from sorts that will just reach the glazed stage of ripeness before the time for the early frost. Varieties that give the largest yield of good ensilage in Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces are among the best varieties for husking in South Western Ontario, and the best varieties for ensilage in the latter district are grown for husking in the great belt. It is not to be recommended, then, that farmers along the northern corn belt grow their own seed for ensilage corn. In securing their supplies of seed they become accustomed to depend entirely on their seedsmen. A great deal, therefore depends on the care exercised by seed merchants in securing their supplies of seed corn.

Owing to the male and female organs of reproduction being borne on different parts of the same plant it is difficult to keep varieties pure. The pollen is borne on the tassel and must come in contact with the silk before seed formation can take place. The pollen is carried chiefly by the wind. Even when planted two or three hundred yards apart, two distinct varieties become cross-fertilized, and in consequence established types become broken down. The characters of a variety of corn cannot be preserved unless a system of continued selection of seed be followed and the crop for seed be grown at least a quarter of a mile distant from any other type or variety.

Variety names have become very much confused and are not a safe guide unless the seed be obtained from a skilled grower of seed corn. Cross-bred seed corns sold under the names of favourably known standard varieties have been the cause of much disappointment and loss in crop. There are, in many cases, exceedingly wide differences between two strains of seed which bear the same variety names. Under existing conditions Canadian corn growers cannot do better than endeavor to get seed of the best known standard varieties from sources that have proved to be the most reliable.

The Seed Grower's Association recently organized by Prof. Robertson has a wide field for useful work in encouraging the production of higher, pure-bred seed corn. There is no line of work, that the growers of pedigreed seed may take up, that is likely to prove remunerative than the growing of seed corn of varieties that are suitable for ensilage purposes in the northern dairy districts. Although there are seventy-five farmers in Ontario who are giving special attention to growing high class seed grain as members of the association, only nine of them are growing seed corn. It is hoped that others may be induced to take up the work. According to the rules of the association seed growers are required to grow but one variety on the same farm and keep it pure by following a system of selection similar to the plan adopted by the Illinois Seed Corn Breeders' Association. Arrangements are being made by Prof. Robertson for issuing an annual association catalogue for the purpose of advertising pedigreed seed produced by members. Herein is provided an opportunity for seed growers to build up a reputation as producers of high class pedigreed seed of corn and other cereals. Because of the increasing demand and limited supply of reliable seed corn the production of pure bred seed of this important cereal offers special inducements.

One of the great secrets of their usefulness was the strong financial position of the Foresters.

To those who had achieved that the thanks of the order was due. Nothing like the growth of the Foresters had been known of in Canada before. Much of this was due to the wonderful energy and organizing ability of the Supreme Chief Ranger. The growth of the order and its vitality showed not only that it had merit, but that its merit was appreciated. Such an order, extending over all the parts of the empire, strengthened the bonds of empire. These fraternal bodies, and especially the Foresters, were strengthening Imperialism, and he was glad to bear testimony to the good it was doing, and to the capable manner in which it was conducted. He wished long life and a continued successful career to the great chief of the order.

THE ROOM "TO-DAY."

Here is Wednesday. It is a day peculiar in its relation to you and to me, and unique in its part in the history of the world. No day is like this, and no day in the future will ever be just the same.

Tuesday is behind us. We go back and try the door, but it is closed, and the key is withdrawn. We walk to the room ahead and seek for admittance to that chamber which holds the secrets of to-morrow, but although we knock loudly we cannot secure admittance. We may not even peer through the keyhole, for we are not tall enough.

However, the rising of the sun will fling open this door ahead, and we may walk out.

And so we are prisoners in this room, the room of To-day, walled in between the past and the future.

Instead of thinking about this room behind us, which we can never enter again, or the room ahead which we may never reach, let us sit around and observe things. Let us be active in this present chamber. Let us do something to make it worth while for ourselves and those we call our friends and the world at large. It is not as though we could take our time about it.

There is order in all nature. There is the coming and going, the dying and the birth of things. It is all mysterious. And this morning I saw a sparrow that carried a straw to the house-top. This sparrow is building a home for itself. It has never been informed of the probabilities. It does not know that to-day is April 6, 1904, but yet it builds a nest. And so this sparrow was one of the things worth noting as I passed through this room To-day, walking west.

He said plainly in his flight with the straw and as he sat peering over the eaves: "Never mind if the winter has been long. Spring is coming, and I am building my summer home."

Thus the warmer weather seemed just a little nearer.—CHARLES F. RAYMOND, in Toronto Star.
