TOPICS OF THE WEEK

The Canadian Government has asserted their rights in Hudson Bay.

Port Arthur has been "falling" every other day for a fortnight. The Japs are near but the flag of Russia still floats.

Perry, the winner of the King's prize at Bisley camp, England, was given a great reception in Toronto on Tuesday. A grandfather's clock by the city, a cabinet of silver by his military friends, were two of the many presents he received.

France presents a strange contrast to England just now. Trying to liberalize education, the former has had to break all diplomatic relations with the Vatican. England on the other hand, by her Education Act, has taken a backward step which is causing a mild revolution at home, at present described as "passive resistance."

Latest news from the seat of war seems to place Japan within a mile of Port Arthur fortress. Stoessel, the Russian General in charge, seems to think the place doomed, for he has been writing good bye to a friend remarking that he will never surrender. "Port Arthur will be my tomb." Kuropatkin is still hemmed in on three sides, with a small chance of escaping.

Successful Agricultural Societies.

A Better Method Needed.

Some very interesting information is being gathered by H. B. Cowan, Superintendent of agricultural societies, who is making an investigation of the work being done by various agricultural societies of the province. It has been found that as a general rule the exhibitions that are paying out the largest sums for special attractions are giving the least for agricultural purposes. Many of the township societies in the province receiving small grants are holding much better exhibitions and doing more for the cause of agriculture than a large number of district societies are doing, while there are many township societies which hold such poor exhibitions that they should be closed up or utilize their funds for other purposes. In quite a few counties in the province there are so many exhibitions that they conflict with each other seriously. Fewer but better exhibitions would be a great improvement in these counties.

It has been found that a township society near Toronto paid out in 1902 over $2300 in Agricultural prizes, being the largest sum paid out by any society either district or township in the province for that year. Of the four societies which paid out the most for agricultural purposes, two are organizations. One township society receiving a grant of $80, paid out over $1000 in agricultural prizes, while a district society receiving a grant of $800, paid out only $1128. One district society receiving a government grant of $520, whose total receipts were $420 paid out less than $300 for agricultural purposes. Another district society receiving a grant of $380 with total receipts of $5100, paid out about $800 in agricultural prizes. Another society receiving a grant of $350 with total receipts of over $1200 paid less than $250 for agricultural work.

Among the township societies, one which received a grant of $121, paid out only $72 for agricultural prizes; another one receiving $90 for a government grant with total receipts of $1200 paid out but $15 for agricultural. A third society receiving a grant of $140 paid $85 for agricultural work. A large number of cases of this kind have been discovered. The suggestion that has been made that the government grant shall be distributed to societies in proportion to what they actually expend for agricultural purposes, is being advocated strongly in many sections. A detailed report concerning the work being done by different societies, will be presented by Supt. Cowan at the next annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions.
