For Want of a Nail

"For want of a Nail, the Shoe was lost: For want of a Shoe, the Horse was lost: For want of a Horse, the Rider was lost: And all for the want of a horseshoe Nail."

Darling's Baking Powder. Perhaps some of our best cooks have lost many Cakes and Pastry by the use of inferior Baking Powder. It's easy to cook with Darling's Baking Powder and its use assures success. No soggy cake, no biscuit thrown away, but digestible food at every baking—that causes the smile that won't come off.

Ino. A. Darling.

RETURNS FROM THE COUNTRY These will be found on our inside pages, though of course the figures in some cases have varied since these were printed. South Grey appears as 200 while it is really 316; North Grey as 5 instead of 23, &c. The correct standing of the parties by provinces as late as we have been able to get them is found on page 8, 3rd column.

WAR NEWS. The struggle of politics for the last month has obscured the great and sanguinary conflict in the East but now that the smoke has cleared away and we turn our eyes to Manchuria we see the gallant Stoessel still holding out in Port Arthur, though his active and never tiring foe is creeping steadily nearer, every few days capturing a fort or some coign of vantage, though at an appalling cost of human life.

Kuropatkin has been chased a few miles further north, but the Japs have not yet got into Mukden, so greatly desired for winter quarters. The opposing armies are face to face for over 20 miles and only a few hundred yards apart, and while Russia would like to close the campaign at the present stage, Japan is not so minded and another record-breaking battle is imminent in the next few days. Both sides are receiving reinforcements and thousands more will soon go to swell the roll of dead which on Japan's side in the last 3 months is estimated to amount to 40,000.

The Baltic fleet, which, in the North sea, fired on a British fishing fleet, killing some men and injuring others and sinking some boats has had a disgraceful start. The excuse given is that they were about to be attacked by Japanese torpedoes! The facts seem to be that the officers were loaded with liquor, and in a state of nervous tension. Russia has apologized and the whole matter is to be investigated at the Hague tribunal. For a few days there was danger of war, but the Russians held their fleet at Vigo in Spain, till reparation was planned for. The fleet sailed to Tangier and has sailed from there westward, but whether to go by Cape Horn or Good Hope is not known. It is being shadowed by a chain of British war vessels connected by wireless telegraphy, and goes on to almost certain destruction.

The Globe's expert on Tuesday says: "The capture of Port Arthur, which must follow in a few days upon the storming of the Kekwan forts, will no doubt compensate for the slow progress of the northern campaign. The Baltic fleet now en route to the east will have no other port than Vladivostok long before it is due to arrive, and we may be very sure that the Japanese will never allow the fleet to reach a harbor without fighting a general engagement. With Russia's naval power absolutely destroyed, Port Arthur captured, Corea in process of Japanese, the Manchurian railway in her hands, and a great army in the north, the Island Kingdom can await in confidence the opening of the second campaign of the greatest of modern wars."

GOD SAVE THE KING.

To-day, Wednesday, Nov. 9, King Edward VII attains the age of 63 years. The autumn season prevents outdoor celebrations in the Northern hemisphere anyway, and his Majesty, recognizing this has ordered his birthday to be celebrated on Empire Day, May 24, which, by this generation, will always be associated in memory with the good Queen Victoria. King Edward since mounting the throne has not been a figure head. He has been a great peace promoter, he recognizes his high station as an influence for good, he has a noble woman for wife and all will heartily pray God Save the King & Queen.

THE ONTARIO ELECTIONS.

Scarcely has the din of battle in the Dominion died away, till rumors of a provincial engagement go abroad. Premier Ross is described by the Toronto News as "Shivering on the Brink," while those who know him well, and the News should certainly, are convinced there's no shivering about him. He is a statesman in the unfortunate position of being at the far end of a long lease of power, and has to face the added calamities of a third of a century of vituperation, with the weaknesses which inevitably creep into a party so long in power. These weaknesses have without doubt in some cases become crimes. We do not shrink from the question, we do not attempt to palliate them much less to justify them. He has been blamed for profiting by them, but it can never be shown that G. W. Ross at any time conspired at the crimes of unwise partisans, ever attempted to justify them, and where judicially and legally proved has not been slow to condemn.

One thing he has not done. He has not committed political suicide by giving up the reins to his opponents. Had he done so he would have gone to opposition admitting his personal complicity. He deplores corruption as much as any man, but the man has not yet been found who, because his neighbor is diseased, will voluntarily do himself to death. The long record of power has much brilliant legislation to its credit. Ontario has prospered through good and evil times, more than any other province. No stain of neglect of the needy and the helpless lies at their door, the needs of the great farming class have received due attention, the conservation of the Forest wealth of the province has been fairly well attended to, the development of the mineral wealth has been encouraged, and not one cent of debt rests on the province while during 18 years of Conservative rule in the Dominion $13,000,000 was added to the debt, and during the last 8 years of Reform rule the debt has been reduced. Stratton and Davis it is reported, have resigned, Gibson will likely follow suit. These men have been under grave charges, especially Stratton, yet a bench of judges, however, if without adjudging them guilty, there is no doubt the public conscience in looking for a scapegoat has fastened upon them, and their action in resigning will give the Hon. G. W. Ross an opportunity with a reconstructed cabinet to face the electors, and when he does so his long and excellent record will go far to carry him and his administration to victory once more.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

Under the above heading a late issue of the "Oregon Statesman" pays a warm tribute to Mr. J. N. Grieve, whose wife was Miss Jenima Arrowsmith, daughter of Mrs Arrowsmith of town. Mr Grieve is government emigration agent at Salem. Part of the article is an interview, Mr Grieve beginning with complimentary references to town and neighborhood, and the reporter says: "Really now, wouldn't you rather live here than any other place you ever saw?" I asked. "No. I can't say that I would," he said as he stroked his chin reflectively. "Do you know there's a place in Canada that used to be away back in the '30s, 40s miles from any place that has always dwelt in my mind as the dearest spot on earth. I wasn't born there, but my boyhood days were all spent in that log house and later the school house was built of logs and I don't know but what we got about as much real, good, practical hard sense knocked into us by those hardships, as we'd call them now, as the average public school gives to-day."

The editor comments at the close as follows: "Starting with only a common school education he forged his way ahead, became a municipal officer, served six years in Parliament and eight years ago was appointed Government Emigration Commissioner and went to Michigan where he worked for seven years. At present he has the states of Washington, Oregon, California and Idaho to look after, but his strong executive ability and personality make his task seem light and shows how a lad brought up in the woods may imbibe enough of Nature's smiles to have a plenty to scatter all through life."

FLOWER, FRUIT AND HONEY SHOW

Gifts given for Attendance. A novel method of advertising the Provincial Fruit, Flower and Honey Show, which will be held in Toronto, November 15-19, has been devised. The Fruit Growers and Florists interested have decided to give apples and flowers free to every person who attends the exhibition on two days of the show. It is expected this will greatly increase the attendance and add greatly to the interest taken in the exhibition. The Fruit Growers, with the idea of increasing the demand for fruit, arranging to distribute free of cost, neatly gotten up booklets containing numerous recipes for the cooking, preserving, etc., of all varieties of fruit, such as apples, pears, peaches, plums and grapes. Much the same line of work is being followed by the Bee Keepers. Everything possible is being done to make the show of as great educational value as possible. It is expected it will be a strong rival, in its way, to the big Winter Fair at Guelph.
