We find it again our duty to report another death in our widst. The youth and midule-aged may die, but the aged conted the highest mark allotted to man On the morning of Tuesday, Dec. 13th, there passed away peacefully to her everlasting home, Mrs Hector McKinnon, uative of the Isle of Tyree, Argyleshire. Scotland, at the good old age of eighty-tour years. Mrs McKinnon has been alling for a number of years, although able always to go about her domestic duties until about a few months ago. daughter and granddaughters, Mrs Roger McEachern and family.

Mrs McKinnon emigrated to this counwith the trials associated with life a newly settled country, for she, like the majority of her robust country people, in the early history of the place, had to be content with her lot, which by no means, was like that of the man that fared

Our Men's Fur Country people, in the early history of the place, had to be content with her lot, which by no means, was like that of the man that fared.

They are great values. sumptuously, but she with peace of mind and conscience could lay down on her pillow at night, thanking the Lord tor all his goodness in providing for herself and family the simple means of avelihood at her disposal.

In giving a backward look we find that lew there be that are left now of the good old mothers and fathers, who endured pioneer life in the Woods some 50 or 60 years ago, and in a little while there memory and name will be gone and heir lives will be only as a tale that has been told, for the places they occupied in this world shall know tuem no

Mrs McKinnon in religion was a staunch old Presbyterian and while she had her health she was attenuive at the house of Prayer until late years as the nature of per sickness disabled her from attenuing any place of worship. She was buried in the cemetery in this village on Dec 15th, the tuneral sermon being preached by Rev Mr Matheson. The funeral was largery attended. The hu-band is left in dan, hier and grandchildren.

The annual Sunday School Anniversary beld on Thursday evening, the 15th Dec., in the Presbyterian church was, without exception, the best of the kind ever held in Priceville. The church was full to its utmost. The night was an ideal one with clear keen frost but ca'm. The moon shone most gloriously and the roads were unsurpassable in goodness. The ladies, who are always to the front in every good work, provided for the first part of the program by way of a supper, abundance of all the good things of the season. The program was an excellent one, and we are sorry that it would take up too much space f we attempted to give it in full for it consisted of so many different parts that it is impossible for us to describe, but we must make special mention of a few of those who took part as seniors. And those little boys and girls who so splendidry did their part in reciting will excuse us for not giving each one in detail. The pastor, Rev M: Matheson, occupied the chair and gave those unruly fellows up stairs to understand that order was to be the rate of the eyening, and so it was. Mis C'Neil, Elocutionist, gave some splendid pieces which were well rendered. Mr Ramage (for he was rebuking us for calling him professor) in his usual way gave some splendid pieces of music. The choir never did better, so we now feel poud that we have a choir in Priceville that can compete with any other town or village in the country. Miss Reily deserves credit for the manner in which she trained the group of girls for a drill, of which we have no name, but they acted to perfection. Mr Roach gave a short address in his usual good style, wishing all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Misses Annie James, Emma McLeod and Miss Watson sang beautiful solos. Misses Lots 32 x 33, Con. 2 S. D. R., containing 100 acres more or less. About 90 Albert McNally. He is suffering from a acres cleared and in good state of culsevere attack of quinsy. We are hoping to the sickness of brick house next summer, and Messrs Chas Lawrence and Henry Reav have of Chatsworth, gave one of the best addresses ever delivered in Priceville on music. Mr Matheson is a good speaker and clearly pointed out the good results that are derived from good singing &c. Mr Mathesen served as a student in Friceville some 8 years age and he says he will never forget his first attempt of preaching his first Gaelie Sermon. The choir during the eyening gave plenty of music at intervals. Alter " vote of thanks to all concerned in making the entertainment a success, all went home near the big bour of the night, 12.
