

Winslow's Soothing Syrup should be used for Children Teething. It softens the gums, cures warts and the child, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea.

FOR SALE.

MILL COMPLETE IN BEST Lumber, Steel, Mus-

Splendid Investment. Reason

D. T. Hodgson, Brantford, Ont.

AGENTS WANTED.

YOU SEE IT? WHAT? Lee's Foolish Recipe: 2000 secret for the cure of all diseases, an eventual of human endeavor; with full in-contents, 300 pages, bound in cloth; cents for a copy, and if you think it is a good money, it is worth your money will be returned: this is a line for carvers. William Briggs, Book Room, Toronto, Ont.

OUR LINE IS JUST WHAT people want; our prices are low, and our services are prompt; write for full information. William Briggs, Wesley Building,

MISCELLANEOUS.

—WHEN IN NEED, SEND
for our special style of garments to 115 units, in cloth, silk and also raincoats, skirts and waists.
M. London, Out.

CO.

ONTARIO.

FURS

comes, Send Law
New York
Box, and all

dache.

A vegetable
in the Far Asia, which height feet,
its leaves at sunset, form of a sleep, like disturbance as if agitation becomes s, and at ating odor ments, will

CO.

seven years
so I confined t
a could n
age
SDS LIN
sked me e
as so well
ured more
me, and at facts for this village

MIRT.

May, 39.

and fell on venue last
to her assist-prepared to
was being the cristi-
avalanche!
and friends

NOT BE

did a good ada when we were os
Since then 9, 12 and farm fence
price which to replace
den fences
water-wheels, thereby their own property and the value of the surrounding land. Now it transpired that being brought to bear upon ment to go back to the old these grades of wire. That edge would work injury to the community admits of no argument, practically none of the wires on the free list are in Canada, so that any would be put on the wire an equal tax upon the farmer. A tariff of say one cent per pound would mean a loss of 10 cents to each farmer, and fully one-half of his farm income gone. That there would be alarm at with the passing and the increasing of stock raising, now fencing older parts of the Dominion ment of farm buildings and of new fences have been very rapid strides during the years, and it would prove a grave matter if a check were its much-needed advance by on a tax that could work
the farmer and at the same the Canadian manufacturing who use wire as a raw material. This hamper farm imand democratize an industry to agriculture, by placing now admitted free of duty list, it would be much the present tariff of on Nos. 7 and 11, which the farmers to get a stronger ace without increasing the

that State Ducks.
(Chicago Tribune)
ing racoon was killed in the Garfield Park yesterday.
eral days' disappearance
was noticed in the snow.
was tracked through the snow,
was seen killed it was trap around his neck. The
it was a pet.

MOBILIZATION STOPPED.
Order Has Been Established at Warsaw
and Lodz.

It is officially announced that the Czar, Czarsina and the Dowager Empress, condoling from their hearts with the families of the killed and wounded in the British troops which within St. Petersburg itself—that is, at such places as Alexander Park, and on the Nevsky Prospect. The greatest bloodshed was outside the city limits. The worst sufferers were the column led by Father Gapon and the crowd at the Moscow railway crossing.

That State Ducks.
(Chicago Tribune)
ing racoon was killed in the Garfield Park yesterday.
eral days' disappearance
was noticed in the snow.
was tracked through the snow,
was seen killed it was
trap around his neck. The
it was a pet.

JAPS LOSE HEAVILY AND WILL ABANDON SANDEPAS

Japanese Wounded Died While Crawling From the Battle Field and Presented Horrible Sight.

Remarkable Success With the Sick in Gen. Oku's Army, Only Forty Dying From Disease.

Istoloi Says Russian Revolution Must be Peaceful, People Must Get the Land.

A London cable: The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Telegraph sends the following remarkable statement:

In a few days we shall witness a political transformation scene as thoroughly amazing as anything a modern pantomime or ancient fairy tale can offer. The captives who languish in cells in the fortress will be released to-morrow and their misdemeanors will be forgotten. The press will be allowed to speak freely. Later Governor-General Treppoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.

Gen. Trepoff will be sent to Manchuria, and in ten days a brand new representative Chamber will be created under the magic wand of M. de Witte, and a new era of prosperity will begin for the Russian people. That is the latest item of the political programme. I am enabled to vouch for its accuracy."

The correspondent ascribes the decision to the influence of M. de Witte and M. Yermoloff, Minister of Agriculture and State Domains. He relates a scene that occurred when the latter had an audience of the Czar. The Minister told His Majesty that the present system of government had outlived its usefulness. He declared that it would be impossible henceforth to carry on the business of the empire without the assistance of the Russian people.