The Unknown Bridegroom.

"Go, sir!" Monica repeated in a low, imperative tone; "you know that I never miss fire, and you may be sure I shall not in this instance, if you come near me. I shall never submit to you again, Carl King; and the first money that comes into my hands after escaping from Dr. Flint's power, I spent for this weapon, to defend myself, in case you and I should ever meet again. I am never without it, and I warn you that it will not be for you to attempt to lay hands upon me now or hereafter. Florence, please open the door for him, as he seems unable to act for himself," she calmly and rather scornfully concluded, but without removing her eye from her foe or lowering her weapon.

Neither father or daughter appeared to be in a very amiable frame of mind, for Carl King was still chafing wrathfully over his defeat yesterday, while Inez was deeply chagrined and disappointed over not having once seen Sir Walter Leighton, except at a distance, during her sojourn at the resort.
She had seen him, day after day, stare out with his yachting parties; she had seen him driving over the beach with his guests; in the Brighton papers she had read of the gay doings at the Towers, but although the baronet knew she was there, he had never sought her out—he had not sent her an invitation to share in the gaieties of his home, and she was furious over the slight.

ABOUT INCUBATORS
Best Machines are the Cheapest--
Directors Should be Followed.

At this season of the year the incubator question is an important one to the poultryman, says Mr. F. C. Elford, Acting Chief of the Poultry Division, Ottawa. An inexperienced person or beginner in the poultry business should exercise the same care and judgment in buying an incubator that a farmer would in selecting an expensive farm implement. In other words, he should take care to buy the best. It is simply wasting money to buy a poor machine, as it can never be depended upon. With a first-class machine, all that the beginner has to do is to learn to run his machine according to the manufacturer's directions. Five or ten minutes' morning and night, will be all the time required to care for the machine, and it can be depended upon to maintain the proper degree of heat and bring the eggs to a successful termination of the hatch if the operator simply follows the instructions and does not interfere with the machine or attempt experiments on his own behalf. It is not likely to know more about the machine than the manufacturer.

A LITTLE LIFE SAVER.
Baby's Own Tablets have saved many a precious little life.

Baby's Own Tablets have saved many a precious little life. They are the best medicine in the world for all stomach and bowel troubles, simple fevers and teething troubles, and they contain not one particle of opiate or harmful drug. Mrs. Elbridge Lowe, Sheet Harbor, N. S., says: "My baby was always sickly until I began giving him Baby's Own Tablets, but they have changed him into a fine, healthy child. I can never without the Tablets in the house. The Tablets can be given with perfect safety to a new born babe, and are good through every stage of childhood. If you do not find the Tablets at your medicine dealers send 25 cents to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and get a box by mail post paid.

THE FARMER'S ICE HOUSE.
ICE HOUSE.

The season of the year has arrived in no reason why most farm houses may not have a continuous supply of ice throughout the summer. Where a stream of water is within reach, the cost of building is small. An ice house can be constructed very cheaply after the following fashion: Large posts six or eight inches in diameter may be sunk into the ground to support the frame work forming the sides of the house. For a small ice house, or at the most three, posts on each side would be sufficient. Inside the posts two-inch plank may be nailed on, the posts and the plank completing the walls of the house. A door may be constructed of suit the builder. The shanty roof shingle would perhaps be as cheap and satisfactory as any.

WOMEN NIGHT WORKERS.
A Regimen of Them Now to be Added to the Army of Night Working Men.

"When we speak of the night works of the great city," said a man, who is one of them—"of the printers, of the surface and the elevator and now the subway car men, the hotel and restaurant and saloon men, the telegraphers and the bakers and the market men, the policemen and the firemen, the telephone men and the newspaper men and so on—we have in mind men only as a rule. Yet there are nowadays a great many women night workers, as well, women who work at night and sleep days, just as the night working men do.
"Here, for instance are the scrub women, plenty of them, who work at night in great office buildings, cleaning after the tenants have gone; the women employed in restaurants and in restaurant kitchens; the little army of women employed in telephone exchanges, the women nurses employed in hospitals and in homes; women stenographers and typewriters; the matrons in police stations, who work as the policemen do, in relays, some by day and some by night; the stewardesses on steamboats; the women's cloak and hat attendants; women cashiers in drug stores; bakers' wives who help to get the bread and rolls ready for early customers, and so on and so on. Then there are, but not least, the women newspaper sellers who are up and out long before daybreak to get their morning newspapers.
"The men, to be sure, still count up by far the greater number, but at a moderate calculation there are now some thousands of women, a very fair brigade of them regularly so employed, who are entitled to be enrolled in the city's big army of night workers."—N. Y. Sun.
