Wyndham and Irving Barred.

Old precedents die hard! The ancient custom of discriminating against playerfolk in England still prevails, and seems doubly absurd since they bar the entrance to St. James' against all actors, even though they have been honored with titles. Henry Irving and Charles Wyndham, both having been knighted, write a "Sir" before their names, and yet they cannot be received at court until they abandon the profession which won them their titles. Gorrie said he answered an advertiseager of the Queen Laundry. He was employed, on the stipulation that he should provide $200 to pay off the "silent partner," and half pay for the machinery.
