A simple and accurate way of finding out the required number of rolls of Wall Paper for a room is as follows:

How Lightning Acts.

The Scientific American in answer to the query "Will you please tell me if a lightning rod placed on a pole a few feet from a barn will insure the safety of the barn. In other words, if lightning is in a straight course for a building will a pole and rod placed in said position attract the lightning from its course" says; A lightning rod standing above a building but attached to a pole several feet from the building will make it less likely that the building will be struck by lightning. It does not work in the manner you describe, by drawing a discharge which is aimed at the building and is coming through the air from its source, and away from building. A flash of lightning takes place in some such way as this: A cloud comes over a place. The cloud is charged with electricity. This attracts electricity of the opposite kind from the earth and into the highest objects of the earth under the cloud. These charges of electricity in the cloud and in the earth re-act upon each other to rupture the air between them and then a flash which signals their coming together is seen. If the most intense part of the charge on the earth is in the building, the flash will go to the building; if it is in the lightning rod the flash goes to the rod. Now the chance is that the highest objects will be most highly charged by the action of the cloud, and thus be the points to be struck. No power can divert the discharge when once it starts for its destination, which is the most intense place charged by the opposite kind of electricity to that of the cloud. It goes to that point and to no other. Nor are we to think that the flash always starts from the cloud and falls to the earth. It as likely starts from the earth as from the cloud and starts from both at the same instant. It sometimes flies back and forth many times from cloud to earth and from earth to cloud before the surging action dies out.

South Grey Farmers' Institute

Successful Horse Show

The choice of Hanover seems to have been a happy one judging from the following in the Post: "Mr George Binnie, secretary of the South Grey Farmer's Institute, speaking to The Post last night said that he considered the horse show held in Hanover yesterday the most successful in the history of the association. When asked on what points he based his remark he said "both in quality and number of horses." It was a source of great pride and pleasure to Mr Val. Kirchner who has been prominenfly connected with the venture to have the event pan out so well. There was a fair crowd in attendance. Just now the farmers are very busy, in fact the show could not have "caught" them at a more unpropitious time. Some of them walked to town so that their horses would not be taken from the work. Dr Reid of Georgetown acted as judge, and gave an address on the breeding of horses which we will produce in The Post next week. President W J Young of Durham was among the men noted on the grounds. Hanover horse fanciers and many gentlemen from neighboring towns were present. There were four entries in the first class, four in the second and six in the third.

The result was that a Chesley Horse "Princ Favorite got 1st in the important class. Ed Hoy won 2nd and 3rd with "Moncrieff" and "Highborn."

Heavy horses, Canadian bred; prizes went to Ernst of Walkerton. Gowanlock of Maple Hill, Fyke of Hanover.

Light horses; prizes went to Harrison of Walkerton, Ernst of Walkerton, Pollock of Chesley.

Purchase of Horses in Canada for the Imperial Army.

A great deal of misunderstanding having arisen concerning the objects of the Imperial Government in sending officers to this country to purchase horses, or rather to see if horses suitable for the British Army can be purchased, the following short summary of the position should prove of value. This statement may be regarded as absolutely correct and authoritative.

First and foremost, the demands of the British Army in peace time can be easily met within the four corners of the United Kingdom. The demand is not large, and may be taken as a normal one of 2,500 horses annually, rising in certain years to possibly 3,500 of all kinds of classes.

There is an idea abroad, and certain ministers and statesmen in this country have brought it forward and may be considered responsible for it, that if the Imperial Government will purchase annually a fixed number of horses, say from 300 to 500, in Canada, a great stimulus will be given to horse breeding generally and to breeding of the military type of horses in particular. Falling in with this idea, the Imperial authorities are anxious to put it to the test and, for reasons of their own, they fully recognize the advantage that will accrue to the Empire from the opening up of a large and limitless market that can be drawn upon to meet the immense demand that will be created in time of war. The real question then that has now to be answered by the practical experiment of purchase during the next few months, is, can suitable horses be procured, and at an average price that will when the horses are landed in England, favourably compare with that paid for remounts throughout Great Britain and Ireland?

The average price paid in England is an open secret; it is £40, or say $200. The cost of freight and insurance will certainly not exceed another $50, leaving $150, or possibly slightly more, to be paid for the animals selected on the spot. A higher price can be paid for horses of special color and type, such as horses suitable for officer's chargers and household cavalry. It is therefore obvious that Canada is on its trial as to its ability to supply a suitable horse for army purposes.

It is, further, of more importance to Canada than to any one else that, as the horses purchased will be regarded in England, as well as in this country, as typical, it will be in every way a great misfortune if those sent home are of a class and quality that will engender a belief that the Canadian horse is of an inferior type. Such a belief will probably do more harm to Canadian horse breeding and the reputation of Canadian horses than anything else.

Two classes of horses are to be bought, 1st. Riding horses, fit for heavy and light Cavalry, from say 15 to 15¾ hands.

2nd Draught horses fit for being driven postillion, with Horse and Field Artillery. The latter must not be less than 1,280 lbs, 15.2 to 15.3½ hands in height, strong, active, and with good shoulders to enable them to move fast and even to gallop, when required; the age should be from 4 off to 6 years. In all cases the British Government require horses with short backs, good shoulders, plenty of bone and distinct evidence of quality.

In the case of riding horses, those with a near cross of the thoroughbred are most likely to take the eye of the Inspecting Officers.

The British Remount Officers are in possession of detailed specifications, showing the exact type and qualifications of the horses required.
