Care of a Strawberry Plantation.

May is the best month for planting strawberries. As soon as possible after setting, the ground should be cultivated to a depth of about two inches in order to loosen up the soil. Cultivation should be continued at intervals of about ten days during the summer so that a fine dry earth may be maintained and the weeds held in check. Runners root much more quickly in loose soil than in that which is unloosened. Any blossoms which may appear should be pinched out before the fruit sets. Fruiting the first season weakens the plant and reduces the crop for the succeeding year. The first runners should be permitted to grow, as the plants will be, "An average of eight or ten plants from each one set should give a row sufficiently thick for a good yield of fruit. Late formed runners should be cut off because they form plants too weak to be of any value, and they also draw nourishment from the berries already formed.

Mulching is of first importance in the strawberry culture. As soon as the ground becomes frozen fairly hard in the fall, the plants should be covered with a mulch of straw manure or marsh hay. This will protect the ground from the alternate freezing and thawing which heaves the plants out of the soil, breaking their roots and causing rot. Then about the middle of April, preferably on a cloudy day, the mulch should be raked off the rows into the paths between. As the fruiting season approaches, more mulch should be put between the rows, to assist in holding the moisture and to keep the sand off the berries and the pickers.

It is seldom advisable to harvest more than one crop from a plantation, but if one desires to take a crop the second year the old rows should be narrowed down to about six inches, the weeds and many of the old plants taken out, and just enough old plants left to start a new stand. Keep the ground well cultivated to encourage the formation of new runners, the plants which will bear the next season's crop. Then mulch again in the fall the same as the previous year.

Boys who rob birds' nests should remember that if it were not for the little birds the army worms would swarm on our fruit trees in myriads and would eat every leaf. In three years there would not be a leaf on a tree. There would be no more apples, cherries, plums, berries or anything of the kind. A few years ago big storms destroyed nearly all the birds' nests in June for two or three years consecutively. In 1900 the birds became so scarce that the army worms had full swing, and destroyed thousands of trees. The next year, however, the birds became numerous and they attacked the pest. At last the army worm was again destroyed and people had no trouble in raising them off their trees. Parents should teach their boys the uses of birds, and should warn them of the danger resulting from their destruction. One pair of birds and their brood will destroy thousands of insects, and will prevent the breeding of ten thousand more. It is a crime to destroy birds or their nests. There are only four kinds that can be killed under any circumstances. Boys should be severely punished when caught in the act. -E.K.

Grand Mogul Pure Tea

Grand Mogul is not exposed to store dust or microbes. The clean, air-tight packages are the housekeeper's protection against inferiority and dirt.

It comes to you free from adulteration - the nicest possible blend of the finest teas of Ceylon - and affords you double the satisfaction of "just as good" teas that are sold in bulk, or packed in poisonous lead. Grand Mogul appeals to the palate and tones up the nerves. Not a mere substitute for bitters.

Grand Mogul Tea

Sold at 25c, 30c, 40c and 50c per pound, black, green or mixed. Advertising appropriation is divided with buyers of Grand Mogul Tea through premium coupons in the packages.

The Big Store

Bargain Seekers

Delight to visit our store during the summer months as we are continually placing exceptional values on the Bargain Counters at such ridiculously low figures. It helps us out to clean up our stocks and it must surely benefit the customers. Every person says we are doing the trade in Durham and what everybody says must be true.

You will always find it to be the case in every city or town that the Store selling the most goods sells the best goods and at the lowest prices. Business succeeds business.
