STALKING THE KING OF BEASTS.

Fifteen yards from him there was a small tuft of grass about ten yards wide. Ah, if I could reach that.

But before I could place that in straight line between him and me there were fifty yards of sunbaked mud to cross. I had lost many a shot from try: ing to approach too close to game and had sworn, "Never again," But the 'Devil of the Stalk" was in my heart. I would reach that grass or forgo the shot. I drew, examined and replaced the two cartridges in my five hundred magonto the stark, naked plain.

instantly turned towards me. The sun played full upon his face, and I could plainly see the wrinkles on his nose and the blood-fleeked slime dripping from his jowl. He took half a dozen steps towards me and then to my astonishment, returned and resumed his meal. Again I crept forward till at last the patch hid him from my view. I promptly rose to my feet, and bending low, glided rapidly towards the grass. Fifty yards-forty yards-thirty -twenty-ten, like midwinter snow my footfalls sank upon the dust. I held my breath. My fingers twitched on the trigger guard. THE BIRTH RATE, Something for the Good People Wh Are Troubled Over It.

Ontario has lost 8,000 young men to the west this spring. The withdrawal of so many young men from Ontario means the withdrawal of an almost equal number of young women when the settlers of 1905 come back or send back for brides.
