Wars Not Near an End.

(Washington Times.) long as the struggle for existence, the effort of self-preservation and the economic contests of trade engage our attention. Of wars and rumors of wars there will be no end until humanity is evolved into something higher than it now is. Nevertheless, useless wars, wars of mere vainglory, wars waged only for mere prestige, should be restricted, and can be. There is occasion now for the world to bring pressure to bear upon William of Germany. Unless he can be quieted, unless his impulsive nature can be soothed into something like rest, he will precipitate a war that must be disastrous to his own people.

Portrait of Chinese Empress.

The portrait of the Dowager Empress hibition at the St. Louis Fair, is to be the property of this country, an unexthought a respectful resting place for so august a gift. Indeed, considering the prejudices of the people, the painting and exhibiting of a portrait of a Chinese ruler is a daring innovation. It is said that this portrait, like former Chinese drawings of the Empress, is misleading.
