- Gossiping, Flirting, Gambling, Blatant lying, Saying that fate is against you, Fasting with the weather, Anticipating evils for the future, Going around with a gloomy face, Faultfinding, nagging and worrying, Taking offence where none is intended, Dwelling on fancied slights & wrongs, Talking big things and doing small ones, Scolding and flying into a passion over trifles, Boasting of what you can do instead of doing it, Thinking that life is a grind, and not worth living, Talking continually about yourself and your affairs, Depreciating yourself and making light of your abilities, Saying unkind things about acquaintances and friends, Exaggerating and making mountains out of molehills, Lamenting the past, holding on to disagreeable experiences, Pitying yourself and bemoaning your lack of opportunities, Comparing yourself with others to your own disadvantage, Writing letters when the blood is hot, which you may regret later, Thinking that all the good chances and opportunities are gone by, Thinking of yourself to the exclusion of everything and everyone else, Dreaming that you will be happier in some other place or circumstances, Belittling those whom you envy because you feel that they are superior to yourself, Dilating on your pains and aches and misfortunes to everyone who will listen to you, Speculating as to what you would do in some one else's place, and not doing your best in your own, Gazing idly into the future and dreaming about it instead of making the most of the present, Longing for the good things that others have instead of going to work and earning them for yourself, Looking for opportunities hundreds or thousands of miles away instead of right where you are.—Success.

Home Newspaper's Value.

The value of advertising is best obtained in the home paper as the chief contention in an able paper, read by Mr. M. Lee, at the Circulation Managers' Convention at Toronto.

THE TRAMP NEWSPAPER. "Three kinds of newspapers come into my home" said Mr. Lee. "One I have never paid for and never expect to, for it circulates free. Sometimes I glance through it; sometimes not. It's advertisements I never read. It goes to the waste can before any of my family get a chance to read it. That paper has a wide circulation. What is it worth to advertise in such a sheet? Practically nothing."

ANOTHER TRAMP—A YELLOW. "Another paper that comes regularly to my home is a sensational sheet, full of big headlines and cheap trash. This one I glance over hurriedly. It goes the way the other one before any one of my family have a chance to see it—for it is not for my family to read. That paper also circulates widely. What value has its circulation to the advertiser when the head of the family has so little respect for either its news or its advertisements that he will not permit it to be read by the members of his family?"

THE FAMILY JOURNAL. "The other kind of paper I take" mentioned Mr. Stark, "is a respectable home paper. It contains a picture of life with the joys and its sorrows, its successes and its failures, its news of the individual and of the State. Its news is eagerly sought after by all my family, and it reads it. That paper also circulates widely because it deserves to. Its utterances command respect, whether in the news columns or the advertising columns. What is the value of that newspaper to the alert advertiser? Ask him. He knows."

Mr. Stark emphasized the truth that the value of advertising depends ultimately upon the respectability of the home demanding respectability, cleanliness and dignity, and therefore, veracity in the family journal. "People may read magazines once a month," he said. "They may read daily papers. They may pass bill-boards and glance at dodgers. But the circulating medium for which they watch as regularly as for their meals, is the home paper. The respectable paper commands respect, just as a gentleman commands respect. The tramp newspaper filled with flashy headlines and sensational advertisements, gets the back door in any respectable family, just as the tramp does."

Canada and the epidemic and other

Canada and the epidemic and other... The epidemic in New Orleans where 87 deaths have already occurred out of 288 cases. The surrounding cities and even the States are establishing a strict quarantine against the infected city, and Philadelphia, New York, Savannah and other seaports have also raised the fence. Business is of course demoralized. Sunday last while hundreds more were cleaning the gutters and streets and pouring oil upon chimneys and stagnant pools. Ministers led their flocks in prayer and then with a fine blending of faith and works, donned white duck suits and went cleaning or giving personal ministrations. The mosquito is being blamed as the chief agency in spreading the disease, and if all the sermons against his life succeed, he will soon be as extinct as the Dodo. The disease has had a foothold in unsanitary spots of the city since May last.

Mr. Glendenning, of Manila, Ont., is becoming famous as the discover of the rapid method of curing hay. Formerly he cut the hay one day and drew it in the next. Now he cuts and draws in the same day. His method in detail in brief as follows: Hay is properly cured when it comes out of the mow in perfect condition with flowers and leaves attached and no dust whatever. The flowers when chewed taste of honey. This makes it palatable, which is necessary in feed for animals as it is for people. Clover should be cut when in full bloom, Drawing it in the same day of cutting saves the aroma which is the natural spice of the food. Never cut when the dew is on but start about nine o'clock. Cut with two mowers and have a tedder follow two or three times over. This lets in the air and sun. Ted again after damp and draw in. Don't cut when damp. Never cut when the dew is on but start when wind is southeast. Don't cut when barometer is falling. He had never found any trouble from heating which he believed was due to foreign moisture. He never cut clover on the day following a rain storm.
