The complaints of excessive tipping New York ought to have one good effect. They ought to make it plain to the persons who dine much at hotels and restaurants that they need not give so much. What he gets in a month's salary from the restaurant would not keep him a week. The average pay of waiters in the good New York restaurants is said to be $10 a month. With this pay two or three waiters together have to pay the omnibus or boy who removes the dishes from their table and helps them serve the meals.

There can be no doubt that the Utopian day is coming, for all the nominees are pledged to see that the city owns everything in the way of a public utility which is not nailed down too fast. The fact that the trolley roads are spiked will make no difference. The motormen are waiting for the day when their names will be on the city pay roll just as if they were firemen or policemen, and they will insist then on a three platoon system.

The vestibules of all street ears are to be fenced in with bevelled French plate glass and the coat of arms of the city will be cut in the panes. Morris chairs will be placed on the carpeted front platforms and the brake handles and controllers will be depressed so that they will be within easy reach of the reclining motormen.

The city will provide not more than six nor less than four large cigars for each day, and on a tabouret will be disposed one large highball for every call of the starter.

With the introduction of the new era all street car employees will have not more than eight hours work a day. There is a probability that they will go to work at ten o'clock in the morning and quit at four o'clock in the afternoon except on Saturday half holidays and Sundays. The custom of travelling twenty-four hours out of the twenty-four is to be discouraged when municipal ownership wins, whether it be on the Ivans, Hearst or McClellan ticket.

In the Bottom of the Sea. A French writer in a scientific maga-

At that level plants deprived of light cannot exist, and the animal life must be carnivorous. The organ of sight, not being used, has disappeared, and yet there is light even in that sightless world. A German exploring ship found a fish with enormous eyes at a depth of 6,400 feet. Phosphorezcence is common in these hollows of the sea, and sometimes special organs flash light.

How to Keep a Bouget.

The debutante often receives more flowers than she can carry, and it is a grief to her when she sees her favorite bouquets all withered the second or third day after she has got them. She might try how the following directions, contributed by one who has had experience with flowers, work out:

When you receive a bouquet, sprinkle it lightly with fresh water; then put it into a vessel containing some soap-suds. which nourish the stems and keep the flowers as bright as new. Take the bouquet out of the suds every morning. USE and lay it sideways in fresh water, the stock entering first into the water; keep 1 it there a minute or two, then take it out and sprinkle the flowers lightly with ! pure water. Replace one bouquet in the scap suds, and the flowers will bloom as fresh as when first gathered. The soapsuds need to be changed every third day. By observing these rules, a bouquet can be kept bright and beautiful for three or four weeks.
