

A Word of Cheer for the Home Girl

The stay-at-home girl has her dark hours like all the rest of us. She feels that she is not making anything of her life; that her work is so trivial a matter that anyone could do it, and that no one is happier for her existence.

She envies her sisters who are out in the world earning their living, and feels that could she but do likewise she would be perfectly happy.

Dear little home bird, she does not understand that, though her work may seem humble, it is the work that makes the basis for the greatest happiness on earth, says an exchange writer.

Supposing all the women were to leave home and enter the lists as wage-earners, what would become of the home?

The girl who stays at home and helps with the home cares and duties is earning her own living just as much as the one who receives a stated salary.

To her belongs the great privilege and duty of helping lift the burden from the tired shoulders that for many years have cheerfully and uncomplainingly borne it.

She has the chance to make herself indispensable, to make herself loved and appreciated beyond measure.

To be a good home-maker is to fill the highest career open to women. The girl who stays at home has every chance to learn the womanly art of catering to the comfort and happiness of those she loves.

She can be of the greatest possible assistance to the sister who goes to business every day.

Of course, if she wishes to do all this, she must go about it in a cheerful, light-hearted manner.

Her patience will often be tried, and there will be many hours when the daily routine seems dull and uninteresting.

But it will be of comfort to her to know that she is fulfilling woman's highest duty in making others happy.

You know it's very comforting to think you have a talent. Some of us imagine our talent is to write, some to sing, some to teach, and others to be business women, etc.

But underneath it all, if we are true women, we all know that every woman's real talent is to be a good wife and mother.

This talent is woman's birthright. The girl who stays at home has great opportunity of rehearsing for her future happiness.

She can practice on her mother, father, sisters and brothers.

If she makes them happy, and they all love her, it is pretty safe to assume that later she will make her husband and children happy.

So cheer up, little Miss Stay-at-Home.

You are doing a splendid work. Put all your heart and soul into it and the reward is sure to come.

HE MEANT EVERY WORD HE SAID.

Ex-Reeve's Rheumatism Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Was So Crippled That He Could Hardly Get Around and Could Get No Relief From Doctors or Medicines.

Dresden, Ont., Jan. 22.—(Special).—“Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Rheumatism sick and clean.” Mr. W. G. Cragg, the well-known merchant and ex-Reeve of this place, was the speaker, and he evidently meant every word he said.

“It was the inflammatory kind of Rheumatism I had and it crippled me up so that I could hardly get around to do my work in my store. I had the best doctors and everything in the line of medicines I could hear of, but nothing even gave me relief.

“Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, and six boxes cured me completely.”

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by curing the Kidneys. Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid in the blood. If the Kidneys are right they will strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood and the Rheumatism will go with it.

Man and Wife.

The snow was falling. The day was still and gray and cold. Dr. Parkhurst, shaking the white flakes from his shoulders, said:

“I have just witnessed an instructive happening—a happening that might teach us why some marriages do not succeed.

“A man and his wife were walking down a back street. The man had his hands in his pockets. The woman carried a basket filled with cabbages and beet.

“A group of boys danced like imps on a corner. They had snowballs in their hands. As soon as the married couple had passed them, they let drive.

“But only the woman was struck. She got two heavy blows about the head and face. Every snowball, somehow, missed the man.

“He looked at his wife as she brushed the snow out of her ears and hair, and then he shook his fist at the boys and shouted:

“It's a good thing for you, you young rascals, that you didn't hit me!”

Class Houses.

“Ha! Ha! You don't know how funny these items really are,” said the drummer. Listen to this: “Ed. Mosbach was seen driving Sunday. He had a fine new horse and a pretty girl.” “Ha! Ha!”

“Well, I dunno,” the good-box philosopher replied. “Here's an item from the New York Howler: ‘Mrs. Van der Vest was observed driving in the Park yesterday. It was noted that her lap-dog wore a coat of soft green leather, a departure from the ruby velvet which has been so popular.’”

Gold dissolved in a woman's tears is said to make an excellent cement for mending broken hearts.

ROSES AS BAIT FOR RATS.

Fragrance of the Flower Lures Animals to the Doom.

The use of choice roses as rat bait is to be experimented upon by the biological bureau of the Department of Agriculture. The bureau has been informed of a number of cases where rodents that spurned tempting cheese and crackers were easily enticed by a rose, and it is believed that the result of the experiments proposed by the bureau will be to show conclusively that the flowers surpass cheese, crackers, rinds of bacon and other baits that are commonly used to entice the rats into traps.

The use of choice flowers as bait for rats will, no doubt, be looked upon as unworthy and degrading by the horticulturists and others interested in plant industry, but when the great value and importance of roses used in this manner is demonstrated it is believed they will take another view of the case.

It is explained that it is not so much the taste of roses that attracts the rat as it is their fragrance, and for this reason roses are expected to be the popular bait for the future.

Cases have been known where rodents, attracted by the sweet perfume of a rose in a house, have gnawed through doors to get at the flower. Rats have been known to become suspicious of traps with the familiar bait of cheese and bacon rinds and easily evade a trap for a long time. From experience it has been found that white roses, such as the dainty bride rose or the snowy Nephthys have proved preferable in rat-catching.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Commissioner James R. Garfield, at a dinner in Chicago, told a story of Adam Black, the founder of the well-known Edinburgh publishing house.

“One day a short time after Mr. Black had opened his book shop,” he said, “a rough-looking man entered stealthily, leaned over the counter, winked and whispered in Mr. Black's ear: ‘I've got some fine smuggled whiskey that you can have at a great bargain.’”

“Go away,” said Mr. Black. “I want nothing of that kind. You are a bad man. Go away!”

“But the smuggler must have doubted the sincerity of this repulse, for now, leaning over the counter again, he whispered still more earnestly:

“I'll take prayer books for it.”

Finger Nails and Tuberculosis. Tuberculosis, particularly of the glands the bones and joints, is common among children, and it is generally surmised to be of local origin. The bacilli have been repeatedly found in the dust of rooms and corridors, especially in houses occupied by tubercular patients, and evidence has been given to show that the same micro-organisms can often be demonstrated in the dirt found beneath the finger nails of children, whence they become a source of great danger. The observations were made upon children from six months to two years of age, for a period of two and half months, during which they were kept indoors a great deal. The dirt from the finger nails was rubbed upon a sterile glass slide with a drop of sterile bouillon, and the resulting emulsion was spread on the slide and used for injection under the skin of guinea pigs. Great importance was attached to the inoculation, but it was found that a number of the animals soon died as a result of acute infection. Accordingly, reliance had to be placed principally on the results of staining, as it also developed that the number of tubercle bacilli in the dirt was insufficient for successful inoculation. Sixty-six cases were thus examined, and positive results obtained in twenty-four—21.04 per cent.

The results of this investigation make it sure that the greatest care should be taken to keep the finger nails of children as clean as possible and also to prevent them from putting their fingers in their mouths. There is the further danger to children, especially at an age when they creep or play about on the floors, from living in a house or room previously occupied by a tubercular patient.

Amazement in the Pension Office. (Harper's Weekly).

William H. Elliott, an Indiana civil war veteran, who refused to accept an accumulated pension of $16,500, on the ground that he was never in a skirmish nor heard a shot fired. This is remarkable enough, but what is more so is the fact that it was with the greatest difficulty he was convinced the pension office he was not taking.

The Modern Actor. Ellen Terry, the well-known English actress, had a grievance. She writes in the Windsor Magazine as follows: “We hear too much of the charm and amiability of this actor and that, of his skill at golf or his proficiency as a painter or musician. We hear of his popularity socially. The actress' beauty is much more discussed than her talent. Nowadays capability for their work is not often the qualification for which actors are recommended.”

English is la Française. “Here,” said a liverman, “is a specimen of French-English. A Frenchman sent his horse to me to board along with this note. The note was so funny I framed it and hung it over my desk:

The framed note ran: “I don't speak the English too much. Put my horse on the barn and rub him in. If he dry drink him and eat a quart of oats.”

How Four-Leaved Clovers Are Made.

Four leaved-clovers may be grown in abundance on lawns or in flower beds. The raising of four leaved clovers has been made possible by Professor De Vries, of Amsterdam, who has found a plant bearing six or seven four leaved clovers, capable of being transplanted.

He first sowed them, and since then he has had a new generation each year. Each time he chose his seeds from a fourth of the best plants; that is, from those which had the most four and five leaved clovers. It was the third generation which began to be rich in the desired form of letters, but only with four and five leaflets, and these only in the adult plant. During August and September of the same year he remarked a very few reduced his selection to a severe standard.

He chose for his progenitors only those plants having two-thirds of all their leaves with four or more leaflets. But he had discovered a curious fact that much simplified his selection from then on. In sowing clover one may observe that the first leaf of each young and subsequent leaflets have regularly three leaflets. This knowledge makes it possible for him to make his selection much more quickly.

He had only to choose the young clovers with compound leaves and transplant them from his glass house to his garden, leaving the others to perish. Thus he did not need so many hundred individuals as before, and each year he still selected some thousands of seedlings from their sowing pots. At last, after eight years of effort, the new variety of clover came into existence. Of this crop nearly all young plants had their first leaf compounded and all, with few exceptions were five leaved.

Motor Cars at Aden. A German newspaper correspondent at Aden reports that the demand for motor cars is steadily growing in the coast districts of the Red Sea. At the present time he says, coast railways are in construction to connect Aden with various parts of Arabia and the officials have no choice but to survey the track by motor cars or motor cycles. Yet the supply is still far below the demand.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, &c. Costly Colonial Enterprise. No small part of the white man's burden can be charged to his persistent attempts to deprive the African black man of his native land and liberty. The latest statistics of the uprising in German southwest Africa show that it has cost the German empire 1,997 lives, including 10 officers, and $1,000,000 in cash. The Queen asked him the coming year of the few thousand troops in the revolted territory will be at the rate of $5,000 per man. And this is the only part of the story. The struggle is still going on; while, worse than all, the entire German scheme of African colonization is so hopelessly discredited that the dream of an African empire will be realized only by a future generation, if at all.

LUNATICS AT LARGE.

Many Who Pass as Sane Are Mentally Unbalanced.

“That hundreds of ‘erratic,’ ‘sensitive,’ or ‘queer’ people are really more or less mentally unbalanced is asserted in a recent issue of the Journal of the Kansas Medical Society. By Dr. C. G. Giddard, of the University of Kansas. “These,” says the doctor, “are borderland peculiarities and types of neuro-psychosis (victim of insane delusions) creates hell in neighborhoods and families; is constantly quarrelling with friends and neighbors; creating litigation on all subjects; disputing, and makes the living of a great many lawyers; imagines every one is trying to annoy, rob or smirch his reputation; all these are well over the border and can be put in the class of mental aberration. Many a morbid religionist, going about not daring to smile or see an amusing thing in life, carrying a visage of gloom, with a thorough pessimistic nature, fearing to offend and thereby be eternally damned by a God that is supposed to stand for love, but by them is made to represent misery and sorrow, are without a question, within the territory of mental alienation. So many cases of mental travel the road of life together, making it difficult to distinguish one from the other, while peculiarities of ideation are propagated and handed down to future ages; until finally it is a question: Is anyone fit to sit in judgment upon his fellow? for often the judge is crazier than the subject.”

After taking up the topics of hysteria and moral perversion, the author asks: “Who then is insane?” and answers: “As his neurons are, so the man is,” intimating that the sanity or insanity of an individual depends entirely upon the condition of his nerve-cells, including all their processes.

What Makes Shoes Shine. The philosophy of polish on any substance, says The Technical World Magazine, is simply the production by friction of such smoothness of the surface layer of its particles that they readily reflect the rays of light falling upon them. Different articles are used to aid in procuring this smoothness or different substances. With leather the best substance seems to be a paste containing bone-black—that is, the powder obtained from charred bones or ivory—to which is added a small quantity of soft to dissolve it, oil to preserve the soft texture of the leather, and treading and gum to render the mass adhesive.

TOOK HIS ADVICE.

Eloped With His Employer's Daughter and Married Her.

“The late Bishop Thomas Frederick Davies, of Detroit,” said a Detroit man, “once told me an interesting story of an elopement. He figured in this elopement as the officiating clergyman. It was in Philadelphia, during his rectorship of St. Peter's.

“It seems that the proprietor of one of the largest dry goods houses in Philadelphia had noticed for some months the melancholy of his head clerk, a young man whom he held in high regard.

“The clerk's pallor and increasing leanness, his frequent sighs and absent-mindedness worried the millionaire proprietor. He questioned the young man daily. And finally the clerk admitted to him that he was in love.

“Well, said the head, ‘marry her. Your salary is big enough.’

“Ah,” said the clerk sadly, ‘you don't understand. She belongs to one of the first families of Philadelphia and her father is a millionaire.’

“Well, maybe he wasn't when he married. You have a high position and a good name. You are a fair match for any girl,’ said the other.

“It's no use sighed the clerk. ‘Her parents would not listen to me for one moment.’

“Then,” said the head, ‘elope with her.’

“Do you advise that?” the clerk asked excitedly.

“Certainly, I do. Is she—do I know her?”

“Yes. She will be at your dance at Devon-to-morrow night.”

“Well, see here,” said the head. “I'll have my coachman out in front of my gate at 9.30. Rush the girl off into the town and marry her. I'll arrange with a clergyman for you.”

By jove, said the clerk, I'll do it. And he did. The next night Dr. Davies performed the ceremony and an hour or two later the millionaire found his daughter missing and was telegraphing in every direction to the young couple to come home and all would be forgiven.”

Spotted Cigars. “Little yellow specks on the wrapper are positive indications of a cigar's excellence. Choose a speckled cigar and you can't go wrong.”

The speaker was a skate salesman. The tobacco salesman laughed at him.

“Are you a victim of that error, too?” he said. “Listen and I'll tell you all about those little yellow specks.

“These drops become burning glasses in the sunlight. The same as the lenses they concentrate the sun's heat and on the leaf beneath them the little specks that you venerate, are burnt. Those little yellow specks indicate the tobacco's quality to more than freckles on a man's nose indicate his ability.

“To choose cigars whose specks are as foolish as it would be to choose salmon by their freckles.”—Chicago Chronicle.

UNDER THE HEAVY LASH.—The torture and torment of the victim of nervous prostration and nervous debility no one can rightly estimate who has not been under the ruthless lash of these relentless human foes. King Paid His Carfare. We hear from Bucharest that a few days ago King Carol, who had been taking a walk, stepped into a street motor, to the amazement of the conductor and a number of the passengers, who recognized him. The conductor was as at a loss to know whether to offer his Majesty a ticket or not, but the King says Modern Society, soon put him at ease by asking for one, accompanying the payment with a handsome tip. During the drive he entered into conversation with a few of his subjects, who were delighted with the rare opportunity afforded them.
