

LIGHTNING PROTECTION.

The subject of lightning protection has been considered by the Royal Canadian Commission on Lightning Protection since its formation in 1921. The first steps were taken in 1922 when the commission was organized with a view to the organization of lightning rods in British Columbia and the protection of buildings in the Northwest Territories. The commission has since then been engaged in a study of lightning protection in Canada, and its report, published in 1925, is the first comprehensive report on this subject in the Dominion.

The commission's report is divided into two parts: the first part deals with the general subject of lightning protection, and the second part deals with the protection of buildings in the Northwest Territories. The commission's findings are that lightning is a natural phenomenon which cannot be prevented, but its effects can be minimized by the use of lightning rods. The commission recommends that lightning rods be installed on all buildings, and that they be installed in accordance with the following principles:

- Lightning rods should be installed on all buildings, and should be made of a material which is a good conductor of electricity.
- The rods should be connected to the ground by a conductor which is as short and direct as possible.
- The rods should be placed at intervals of about 20 feet, and should extend at least 18 inches above the highest part of the building.
- The rods should be protected by a cap, and should be painted with a material which is a good conductor of electricity.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure a Young Man Who Had Reached a Very Critical Stage of Kidney Disease.

His Case was More Serious Than He Thought, but Thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills he is Well and Strong Now.

St. Leon, Gl. Co., N. B., April 16.—(Special)—Mr. Patrick Downing, of this place, is a young man only twenty years of age, but some time ago kidney disease had him firmly in its grip and had not been for some months. He would probably not have been alive to-day.

"I think the cause of my trouble was over work," says Mr. Downing, "any way, it began with a heavy dragging pain in my back and across my loins. Then I was subject to headaches, cramp in the muscles, dizzy spells and weakness till I felt fit for nothing. But the worst symptom of my case was when I noticed my urine was streaked with blood, then I knew that my kidneys were affected. Hearing of Dodd's Kidney Pills I sent for some and I am glad to say they cured me. I am now strong as ever I was."

JIMMY'S THREAT FAILED.

Theatre Manager's Story of a Street Arab.

A mite of a boy, with neatly-patched knickerbockers and a pinched look that comes from want of nourishing food, plucked at the sleeve of George Kingsbury, manager of the Hippodrome at New York, recently. "Say, mister, are you Mr. Dundy?" he inquired, hesitatingly.

"No, son," replied the busy manager. "What do you want?"

"I want a seat for granny down where de big mugs sit, an' one for meself up over de peanut gallery, but de guy in de cage won't sell 'em, says 'I'm tuffin' fer de specs on de walk. Oh, I've got de mazuma all right," he added, diving into a pocket and bringing out a handful of coppers, nickels and dimes.

Real Aim for the Reformer.
 Charles E. Hughes, speaking before the Ethical Culture society yesterday, found an admirably terse expression for the cause of corporate malfeasance. He said: "When we say a corporation has or has not done a certain thing we mean that the directors have attended to or neglected a duty. In other words the responsibility is always personal. To attack the corporation as such is so much as to say that the directors are irresponsible and constitute the soul under the ribs of death. Since they are subject to the usual moral and judicial penalties, they alone are really worthy of a reformer's effort."

Canal-Boat Churches.
 Both in England and France, says Sunday Magazine, canal boats have proved of great service in the spreading of the Gospel. In England the canal boat travels along the Fens, and reaches scattered districts on the banks of the Broad which otherwise would be lacking a religious service. Services are held on the boat itself. In France, where it is possible to travel thousands of miles by canal, the McCall Mission has done good work. A boat-chapel, which seats 150 people, moves slowly on its way, stopping at hamlet after hamlet for a fortnight or more. Usually the boat is crowded and an overflow congregation listens from the banks. Sometimes the boat is moored under a bridge, and then, too, holds its crowds of listeners, for the services are very popular. On the Delaware River is a wooden church built on the decks of two large boats, and it is towed from point to point, as required.

A SOUR STOMACH AND A SOUR TEMPER travel hand-in-hand, and are the precursors of mental and physical wreck. Nine hundred and ninety-nine times in a thousand food ferment (indigestion) is the cause. Dr. Von Siaz's Pepsinogen Tablets keep the stomach sweet-and digestion-keep the nerve centres well balanced-they're nature's pancreas-pleasant and harmless.

Just One of the Difficulties.
 Public ownership and operation by the various provinces would be attended with many difficulties and much friction. At every provincial boundary the people living on either side would be compelled in communicating with each other to make use of the trucks, lines, and ferries, provinces which would be attended with difficulties of double connections and double tolls so far as the people concerned and the amount of keeping and adjusting of revenue by the different provinces.

MARTYRDOM DESCRIBED.

Kingston Man Tells How He Suffered and How He was Cured.

"For years a martyr," is how Chas. H. Powell, of 105 Raglan street, Kingston, begins his story. "A martyr to chronic constipation, but now I am free from it and all through the use of Dr. Leonard's Antipill."
 "I was induced to try Anti-Pill by reading the testimony of someone who had been cured of constipation by it. I had suffered for eighteen years and had taken tons of stuff recommended as cures, but which made me worse rather than better. Doctors told me there was no cure for me. Dr. Leonard's Antipill cured me."

Miss Krupp.

Miss Bertha Krupp, the richest woman in the world perhaps, is now known as "Queen Krupp" all around Eosen, where she is loved for her generous ways and her beautiful appearance. In that place alone she has 40,000 workmen toiling for her, who, with their families, make up a population dependent upon her. In other countries she has a total of 200,000 dependent on her—ships, railways, telegraphs, telephones, her own slaughter houses and general stores. She has even her own army, regular drilled, with stern rules of discipline. It is called a brigade, but is so many a body of picked troops as in Germany. Her army numbers more than 200 men, well armed. Finally, she has her ambassadors in every court in Europe. They may not be known in the regular diplomatic world as such but they are there all the same.

TOLD ALL IN ONE SENTENCE.

(Aurora Agency.)
 Doll Faulkner was the victim of quite a serious accident yesterday evening, while riding a bicycle out to her brother Tom's home in the southern part of the city, as a result of the breaking of the frame near the front wheel, pitching Doll headlong to the ground, striking upon her face, which was crushed and bruised in a most frightful manner, chief of which was a terrible gash across her forehead, while the nose, mouth and chin were badly cut.

WAGES OF M. P'S.

Under old constitutional usage members were paid what was termed their "wages" by the constituencies that sent them to Parliament. Andrew Marvell was the last man to receive his Parliamentary wages but before his time it was quite common for members chosen by counties and boroughs to exact payment from those who sent them. The custom of paying members wages only died out. It was never abolished by act of Parliament, though in the reign of Charles II. an act was introduced for that purpose and read second time. Therefore there may still be a common law obligation on constituencies to pay their members' wages—in the expenses to which they are put by representation—if such members demand it. Lord Campbell, indeed, some forty years ago expressed his opinion that a writ could still be sued out by a member of Parliament requiring his constituency to pay him his wages. To test this, why should not some member of Parliament who is interested in the matter, but who believes with us that local payment is a far better solution than payment out of the national treasury, bring a friendly action against the borough or county for which he sits, asking for his wages. If the courts decide, as we believe they might, that his contention was good, and an order was made for his wages, a very interesting point of law would have been established, and it would be recorded to those who say that if a constituency desires to be represented by a poor man it should not be debarred from exercising its choice because it is impossible for him to attend at Westminster. The order would be made for a very interesting point of law would have been established, and it would be recorded to those who say that if a constituency desires to be represented by a poor man it should not be debarred from exercising its choice because it is impossible for him to attend at Westminster.—Leviston Journal.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. SUMMERS, Box 8, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. What's the Matter.

Rowland Hill was greatly annoyed when there happened to be any noise in his chapel to divert the attention of his hearers from what he was saying. On one occasion he was preaching to one of the most crowded congregations that ever assembled to hear him. In the middle of his discourse he was interrupted by a great commotion in one of the galleries, and looking in that direction he exclaimed, "What's the matter there? The devil seems to have got among you!" A plain country-looking man immediately started to his feet, and addressing Mr. Hill in a friendly way, said, "No, sir, it isn't the devil that's making so much noise, but my own cough and sneeze, which are doing me no good."

Limit to Size of Battle Ships.

The announcement that the United States will build a battle ship of 19,000 tons displacement, or about 1,500 tons over the Spanish Dreadnought, which has been launched by King Edward, is possibly the forerunner of the new construction which will put all previous battleships of this class in the shade. Naval experts decline to admit that the limit of size, combined with effectiveness, has been reached. The Dreadnought is a perfectly practical ship, then why not one little larger? This is the argument of the ship-building nations. But if there is no limit upon the size of ships which may be built there may be attained one day another limit—that of the pocketbook of the so-called naval powers.
