Geo. Ewen Dead.

Very startling was the news that spread around on Monday that Geo. Ewen, son of Mr John Ewen, Rocky Saugeen, had died the day before at or near Lumsden, Sask., from typhoid fever. He left here only a few weeks ago in the full flush of young manhood to take his share in developing the West and his death comes with a startling suddenness.

Startling to the mere acquaintauce. What can we call it for the parents, who for the second time in about two years have given up a son as a sacrifice to the West. To them in their great grief, sympathy broad and deep will go out. Sorrow upon sorrow to be denied even the privilege of ministering to him in illness, or of waiting
