Business is Business.

An exchange publishes the following pertinent article which is a rule the Review has adopted for some time. "In order to be just to all and partial to none it is essential in business that methodical rules be made and enforced, and in no line is this more essential than in the country newspaper. Here advertising is the chief source of support, and must be well guarded or financial failure will result. The insertion of anything intended as a pecuniary benefit to any person, church, society or firm, whether it be the local, advertising column, or correspondence, is chargeable, and the rate five cents a line per week. A notice for a church, society, or other meeting where no admission fee is charged or collection taken will go free, or, when we print posters, twenty-five per cent of the cost of such printing will be given free in local notices, otherwise the rate to one and all is five cents a line per week. Business is business.

Latest Millinery Ideas of the Season

Never have we enjoyed such a Millinery trade as we have this season: never have we delighted so many ladies. We wish to further please you by inviting you to see here the latest styles in ladies' headwear, which have come in only a few days ago. Lace, tulle, chiffon and mohair play a prominent part in the manufacture of these new hats.

Delicate colors—reseda green, pale blue with gold, white, pink, cream and mauve make up for the dressier hats. You ought to see them. "Sweet" is too common a word to employ for hats like these, but that word expresses the idea, nevertheless.

New Sailors and Straw Shapes in white & tuscans arriving every week. Something new in Children's Wear—embroidered hats and tams.

License and Local Option.

To-day, Tuesday, 1st of May, Egremont and Artemesia in S. Grey, and Owen Sound and the townships surrounding it in N. Grey, go under Local option, and no liquor can legally be sold within these borders. Upon the success or failure of the measure in the many places adopting it this year, will depend whether it will become more widely adopted. Temperance people will have to see to it that the commercial traveller class are properly catered to, or there will be a clamor that will lead to its repeal.

The S. Grey Commissioners at their annual licensing meeting in Durham renewed all the licenses, not in local option districts, notwithstanding a petition was presented asking not to grant one to Wm. Crawford of Varney on account of its proximity to a church. The Ayrton Advance referring to this petition says: "The commissioners argued and with a fair amount of honest reasoning and fair play that the hotel was first erected and if the members of the congregation had a pick abhorrence to the traffic they should have chosen a site more remote when erecting their church. It was further argued in Mr. Crawford's favor that he had done business for 24 years and never in that long time came under the lash of the law, for any violation of the same. It was therefore unanimously decided that his license be renewed with the others and so it was." Normanby therefore still has 9 licenses, and we presume still leads the Province in this respect, as it has done for some years.

Com. John Brown, it should be stated, opposed the issuing of the Varney license on the ground that there was no hotel trade proper to warrant it. This being so, there should be none issued for bar-room trade alone.

Says the Hamilton Times: This session of the Legislature bids fair to win the name monopoly session. It has the nurses' combine bill, the engineer's combine bill, the bill to kill the proprietary medicines trade in the interest of the medical combine, the bill promoted by Mr Carscallen to fine or jail a man who prepares a will or lease or any legal document without calling in a lawyer, the Downey bill to prevent companies from selling drugs in their stores unless every director is a licensed druggist and a half dozen clique and guild measures.

—Andrew Carnegie, Scottish Laird, Pittsburg steel king, author of "Triumph of Democracy," multimillionaire, philanthropist, founder of Libraries, &c., &c., was in Toronto last week, which was his first visit to Canada. He is, like St. Paul, weak in bodily presence but he has a strong message. He is a little man, slightly over 5 feet, 75 years old, and believing it to be "a disgrace for a man to die rich" has been for years giving money away to found Libraries, only exacting that the municipality give an equivalent. His theme in Toronto was Peace for the World, to be secured by the union of the English speaking races and he sees a mission for Canada to be the go-between to cement the union. We hope his Canadian tour will lead him to modify some of the very disparaging things he said about colonies and kings in his book.

—We are likely to learn more geography. Tabah, a district in Egypt near the Sinal peninsula, has been occupied by Turkish troops in a secretive manner, and Britain seems determined they shall get out. The claim of the Sultan is that Egypt is a tributary state, while Britain's acknowledged guardianship of Egypt gives her the right to forbid the assembling of troops. The Sultan's firmness leads some to think Germany is behind him, others profess to see the beginning of a "Holy War," others that it is one of Turkey's bluffs, from which she will back down by a display of force. Importance has been given the matter by the hurried return of King Edward from his Mediterranean holiday.
