

SUNDAY AT HOME

The Master is Coming.
Jesus said: "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these brethren, ye have done it unto me."
(By Mrs. Emma A. Lent.)
The Master is coming to honor the town to-day.
And how can he tell at whose house or home the Master will choose to stay?
And I thought, while my heart beat wildly, What if He should come to mine? How would I strive to entertain And honor the Guest divine?
And straight I turned to telling To make my home more neat;
I swept, and polished, and dusted,
And decked it with blossoms sweet;
I was troubled for fear the Master Might come ere my task was done,
And I hastened and worked the faster,
And watched the hurrying sun.
But right in the midst of my duties A woman came to my door,
She had come to tell me of sorrows,
And my comfort and aid to implore,
And I said: "I cannot listen,
Nor help you by this hour;
I have greater things to attend to,"
And the pleader turned away.
But soon there came another—
A cripple, thin, pale, and gray—
And said: "Oh, my mother, and my rest
Awhile in your home I pray!
I have travelled far since morning,
My feet are weary and sore;
My heart is full of misery,
And comfort and help I seek."
And I said: "I am grieved and sorry,
But I cannot help you to-day;
I look for a greater and better,
And the cripple went away.
And the day wore onward swiftly,
And my task was nearly done,
And the prayer was ever in my heart
That the Master to me might come.
And I thought I would spring to meet Him
And serve Him with utmost care,
When a little child stood by me,
With a face so sweet and fair—
Sweet with marks of tears—
And my clothes were tattered and old;
A finger was bruised and bleeding,
And his little bare feet were cold.
And I said: "I am sorry for you;
You are surely in need of care,
But I cannot stop to give it,
You must hasten on elsewhere."
And the words were scarcely spoken,
Swept over his blue-veined brow;
"Some one will feed and clothe you, dear,
But I am too busy now."
At last the day was ended,
And the Master had not come;
My home was swept and garlanded,
And I watched in the dusk alone,
My heart sad and sorely wounded,
No one paused at my gate,
No one entered my cottage door,
I could only pray and wait.
I waited till night had deepened
And the Master had not come;
"He has entered some other door," I cried,
"And has gladdened some other home!"
And I bowed my head and wept,
For sate it of all, I slept.
Then the Master stood before me,
And his face was grave and true—
"Three times to-day I came to your door,
And craved for pity and care;
Three times you sent me onward,
Unheeded and uncomfited,
And the blessing you might have had was lost,
For sate it of all, I slept.
"O Lord, dear Lord, forgive me!
How could I know it was Thee?"
My very soul was ashamed and bowed
In the depths of humility.
And He said: "Thou art in darkness,
But the blessing is lost to thee;
For comforting not the least of Mine,
Ye have failed to comfort Me."
Heroes of the Sea.
(By a Banker.)
A wild tempest is raging, and the breakers on the great sand-bank a few miles from the shore are lashed into foam. The curling white-capped billows are hurled with the roar of thunder upon the sloping banks of pebbles which guard the land from the onslaughts of the ocean, and the scattering waters of the wind-driven surf eddy and swirl in a very turmoil of confusion and uproar after each rebuff from the adamantine buttress, which all the might of their infuriate assaults fails to overmaster; while a few hurrying lashed the tossing ocean into a frenzied chaos of contending waves.
And now in the distance, but approaching nearer and nearer, is observed a vessel in distress driving helplessly before the blasts of the storm, her sails in ribbons, her topmasts torn away and violently swinging, and the sea and wind waters hurrying across her deck; while she herself now plunges, bows forward, into the ocean depths, or now climbs up on the breast of the rolling wave towards the clouds above. Rudderless, and wholly at the mercy of the wrathful elements, she approaches ever nearer and yet nearer to the fatal death-trap of the yet nearer to the fatal death-trap of the seas, until at length she strikes the bank, her keel is embedded in the yield-every wave she quivers and trembles from stem to stern as though in mortal quicksand, and with the impact of terror and dread.
But those heroes of the sea, the life-boat men, realizing the dire peril in which she stands, are launching their boat. A dozen gallant and heroic men, grim and determined, but not daunted by the knowledge that perhaps the raging waves will claim them as their prey and will engulf them, they rapidly force through the buffeting surges at length arriving close to the fated bark. The mariners, mostly lashed to the masts, are rescued, and the brave men pull for the shore, happily beaching their boat in safety.
And some of us, too, make utter shipwreck of our lives. Ignoring our Pilot's orders, and obeying our own course, we find ourselves stranded on the quicksands of despair; the present but an unsatisfying, aching void, the future a dread and grim uncertainty. But if we will take Him who on the bitter cross received the punishment due to us, as our Saviour and our Guide, we shall be protected from real harm in this life, and then on angel wing be conveyed to the thrilling and startling joys of the gloryland.

The man who believes that the best is the cheapest is apt to carry his theory even to the selection of a wife.
The greatest pleasure next to seeing your own home happy is seeing somebody else's home happy.

Crime of Lese Majesty

In all monarchial countries it is an axiom, accepted by everybody that the person and character of the ruling sovereign are sacred, and even though the idea may rest upon nothing more tangible than custom or an unwritten law, it is observed in most countries in a royal spirit. Especially is this the case in England, where there could probably be found a newspaper, however scurrilous, that would dare to disrespectfully speak of King Edward; and one might walk about in the public places and listen in vain for an expression of contempt or opprobrium uttered against any member of the royal family.

In Germany, on the other hand, where he laws regarding "lese majeste" are so strict, scarcely a week passes without the conviction of some unfortunate person who has dared to infringe one of the cores of clauses in the law, and suffers accordingly. "Lese majeste" is a German word which is a compound of "lese", meaning to offend, and "majeste", meaning the majesty of the monarch.

The law is so worded as to bring within its scope any remark which can be construed as an insult to the monarch, or to any member of the royal family, or to any official of the monarch, or to any member of the royal family, or to any official of the monarch.

Lived on Bread and Milk!

BECAUSE COULDN'T DIGEST STRONGER FOOD.
INTERESTING BILEAN CURE.

No matter of how long standing the ailments for which Bileans are applied those ailments gradually vanish.
For the greater portion of her life, Mrs. Francis Clare, of 40 Warrington Road, Widnes, had suffered from indigestion, headache and allied ailments. Yet long-standing as these ailments were, Bileans had cured them. Here is her story:
"Practically from girlhood I suffered from indigestion although it was of course, worse some times than at others. I was subject to racking headaches, my head seemed to go round and round, I ached all over, and every limb shook. Every time I ate or drank I had such a heavy feeling, and didn't want to do anything but lie down. If death had come to me then I should not have minded, and many a time I prayed that I might die. I was actually afraid to eat, and often I have lived for days at a time on nothing but bread and milk."
"I was treated at Welbeck Dispensary, at St. George's Hospital, at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, and at Croynon Hospital, but without result. We have spent pounds and pounds on doctors, but they never gave me any benefit. Sometimes I got relief for a day or two, but the pains soon returned."
"The doctors didn't seem to know what was the matter with me. One said one thing and another said something else; but in spite of all my medicines I got no better. One day an insurance agent in Runcorn said that if I was suffering from indigestion I should take Bileans, which had cured him of that complaint."
"I had no faith in proprietary medicines, and had never taken any, but I determined to follow his advice. For the first week of taking Bileans I felt no very great improvement, as my friend had foretold, but I persevered with them and soon began to feel an improvement. From that day I never looked back. Gradually the indigestion, headache, dizziness, and other ailments were overcome. I took in all nine boxes of Bileans and they cured me completely."
"I'm glad to say I only wish I had known of them earlier. I am pleased to let other people know how I have benefited by them."
Bileans for Biliousness cure headache, constipation, piles, liver troubles, indigestion, all digestive disorders, female ailments, skin eruptions, biliousness, sick headache, bad taste in the mouth, foul breath, dizziness, fainting, buzzing noises in the head, aching in the joints, neuralgic pains, anemic debility, etc.
Obtainable from all druggists and stores at 50 cents per box, or direct from the Bilean Co., Colborne street, Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50 as much as £60 in a month in this way.

A High Personage.
For a fortnight, each May, the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in session at Edinburgh, in one of the great halls of Holyrood Palace, under the presidency of a peer of the realm, holding a patent from the King as his Lord High Commissioner. During that fortnight the Lord High Commissioner enjoys altogether ceremonial honors. He is received on his arrival in the Scottish capital by its municipal dignitaries, headed by the Lord Provost, and by the Lord-Lieutenant of the country, who escorted by cavalry, dragoon, and then, escorted by military band, through streets lined with troops, to Holyrood Palace, where he is quartered during his two weeks' stay. Like the Viceroy of Ireland and the princes of the reigning house, he is addressed as "Sir," and "Your Grace." Not merely men, but ladies as well, are expected to rise from their seats when he enters a room and to remain standing until he bids them be seated. He has a large staff of lords and gentlemen-in-waiting, while his wife has her maids-of-honor.

SECRETS IN HANDWRITING.

Curious Puzzles Experts are Expected to Solve.
Yes, said an expert in handwriting it is no easy matter to tell which is a forged name and which is a bona-fide one, for the professional forger of to-day is an artist in his lawless work. Fifty or sixty years ago handwriting experts were suspicious by their absence, how there are scores of them in London alone, and the leading ones are constantly brought before the public in connection with law cases—big, sensational and curious.
Professional handwriting artists have much to do. I am called upon almost daily to handle new confessions in matrimonial squabbles. Some weeks ago a young lady brought to me a birthday card she had received bearing a few words, but no name written with a pen. She was anxious to know whether the name was a certain young man with whom she had quarrelled three months before and not afterward. She showed me the card and I examined it from him in days of yore, and though the handwriting on the birthday card was different from the name which she had written on the card, I was able to identify the handwriting with the letter, that is from the young fellow in question. The lady was very pleased when she had received the card, and I have since heard that the quarrel had been patched up and the parties are to be married.

Fascinations of the Heresy Hunt.
"After all," soliloquized Mr. Edward M. Shepard, "when it comes to the fundaments, Dr. Crapsey, in his place, and Bishop Walker, with his higher and wider official responsibility, are both striving for the same things, and are in agreement upon the great fundamentals." But as long as there is any chance that the Bishop, and the rector may or do agree on the "great fundamentals" there are zealous priests and laymen who demand that their disagreement on the "fine points" is what the Church is most interested in. And the more insignificant the priest or layman the more earnestly do they try to be prominent in prosecuting somebody.

KEEP THE WATCH CLEAN.
Useful Hint for Automobilists Making Long Runs.
It frequently happens, especially during long runs, that automobilists are troubled with accumulation of fine dust and grit that finds its way in some manner to the working parts of their watches. A good way to avoid this annoyance, says The Automobile, is to open the front case of the watch, and, with a match, cut oil-chisel-shaped, as one end, apply a thin coat of vasoline all about the seat of the case where the lid fits. When this is done treat the back lid of the case in the same manner. Only a small quantity of vasoline is required, just enough to make an unbroken film of it all the way round, and it will make at these points. At the end of a month or six weeks open the case, and you will be surprised at the amount of dirt that has collected at the edges of the case. This removed, the treatment as outlined above can be repeated.

Another Wonderful Case.
Here is something that will be welcome news to many a Discouraged One.

"For several years I have been troubled with gas around my heart, shortness of breath, my food did not digest properly, I turned sour in my stomach, causing me, often, to have attacks of indigestion. I had tried Dr. Reed's Anti-Pill and from the very first found relief. Anti-Pill has indeed cured me."

Good to Win.
Finally, acknowledgment must be made of the supreme courtesy with which the Greek people entertained their guests. Everyone one met with the most charming treatment, and in the eyes of those who realized the bitter disappointment of the defeat of the national champions in the great Marathon race, the magnificent reception given to the victor was a triumph of cordiality and good sportsmanship.

Bleeding Piles Cured
—After Years of Suffering.
Miracle-days may be past—but the day of our people's suffering is over-going.

Who more distressing than bleeding piles? Some say the only cure is the knife. We say, operations are unnecessary. Read this letter:
"For years I had piles, which protruded and bled freely. The itching pain was sometimes almost unbearable. Often I suffered so severely it was next to impossible to remain on duty. It took a hardish to walk. I tried many remedies, but with no success."
"This winter, in New York—at the Beach— I suffered greatly—was almost compelled to remain in my room. I had several remedies—without relief."
"On my return home, I read your advertisement. I read it. In only a short time, all the irritation and pain ceased. I can now walk as usual and attend my duties as a member of the Fire Department."
"I strongly recommend Mrs. O'Connell's suffering from this suffering complaint."

Apaches Never Scalped Victims.

The taking of scalps has been spoken of so commonly in the press of the United States that it has become a general practice when speaking of a man losing his life among the Indians to say "he lost his scalp." Novelists even to-day, when locating their stories in Apache-land, almost invariably scalp the victims of Apache vengeance. As a matter of fact, one can say that the Apaches never took scalps. Men who have been closely associated with them for thirty years or more claim that no full-blooded Apache ever scalped a man he killed. On the contrary, he would touch a body after death and would throw away his weapons if stained with human blood. Their own dead the men never help to bury. This task is left to the women.—Scribner.

Amazing Marine Procession.
The fleets of the world which roam the seven seas occasionally bunch up in some prominent port or passageway like the Suez canal and make an imposing showing. But in point of magnitude almost any of these marine processions fall short of that unending commercial parade which is forever steaming down the great lakes and through the canal. The immensity of this traffic is reflected in the official figures for April, 1906, for the " Soo" canal alone. During the thirty days of last month, 1,079 vessels of 2,066,640 tons net register and carrying 2,513,267 tons of freight passed through this great highway. Nearly one-half of this traffic was iron ore, with coal to the extent of about 650,000 tons second in prominence and grain and flour next on the list.—Portland Oregonian.

Czar's Wealth in Forests.
Few people who have not travelled about the Russian empire can imagine how boundless is its wealth in timber. "Wooden Russia" is the name applied to the vast forest areas of Russia in Europe, which cover nearly 5,000,000 acres, or 36 per cent. of the entire area of the country. In Russia houses built of any other material than wood are almost unknown outside the cities and wood constitutes the principal fuel. The forest belt called the "Taiga," in Siberia, stretches in a direct line from the Ural to the Pacific for 4,000 miles and is a great many parts is 500 miles broad. All this is the property of the czar.

Do You Get Duns?
Lots of people regard every request made to them, either verbal or in writing, to settle a bill, as a dun. A dun is supposed to be more or less offensive. Just why any man should find fault when some one to whom he owes money asks him to pay it is more than we have been able to comprehend. If you owe a man money you ought to pay him if you can. If you cannot, it is your business for more time, but you should be able to explain why you cannot do it and ask creditor why you cannot do it and ask creditor why you cannot do it and ask creditor why you cannot do it and ask creditor why you cannot do it.

The Open Door in Egypt.
While there can be no doubting the intention of the British Government to henceforth dominate openly the political control of Egypt as a part of the British empire, the proposals of Lord Cromer clearly indicate that there is to be equal opportunity for all nationalities and full respect for acquired and vested rights. In other words, modern Egypt is to be governed on the open door principle so strongly advocated by the United States in China and the far east generally. While England will rule, she does not propose to insist upon any monopoly of trade or franchises, but, on the contrary, extends equal opportunity to all comers.—New Orleans Picayune.
